

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

RULES OF THE

Suffolk Institute of Archaeology and Natural History.

1. The Society shall be called the "Suffolk Institute of Archaeology and Natural History."

2. The object of the Institute shall be—

1. To collect and publish information on the Archaeology and Natural History of the District.

2. To oppose and prevent, as far as may be practicable, any injuries with which ancient monuments of every description, within the district, may from time to time be threatened, and to collect accurate drawings, plans, and descriptions thereof.

3. The Institute shall consist of Ordinary and Honorary Members.

4. Each Ordinary Member shall pay an Annual Subscription of 10s., to be due in advance on the 1st of January, and shall be considered to belong to the Institute until he withdraws from it by a notice in writing to the Secretary. A donor of £5 shall be a Life Member.

5. The Officers of the Institute shall be a President, Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer, and Honorary Secretary, all of whom shall be elected for the year at the Annual Meeting.

6. The general management of the affairs and property of the Institute shall be vested in the Council, consisting of the officers, and of twelve members elected from the general body of the Subscribers, to retire annually, but eligible for re-election.

7. The Council shall meet to transact the ordinary business of the Institute, not less than three times a year. They shall have power to make Bye-Laws, appoint Committees and Local Secretaries, recommend Honorary Members for election by the Annual Meeting, supply vacancies that may occur during the year in their own body or among the officers, and to make arrangements for Excursions and other meetings. They shall also annually frame a Report and prepare the Accounts for submission to the Annual Meeting. At the Meetings of the Council, three to be a quorum, and the Chairman to have a casting vote.

8. The ordinary place of meeting shall be Bury S. Edmund's, but it shall be in the discretion of the Council to hold meetings at other places, if and when they shall think it advisable.

9. Each Member shall be entitled to free admission to the General Meetings of the Institute; and he shall also be entitled to the use of the Library, and to a copy of each publication of the Institute; but no copy of any such publication shall be delivered to any member whose subscription is more than twelve months in arrear.

10. The Annual Meeting shall be held in the month of April or May in each year, or at such other time as shall be fixed upon by the Council.

11. All papers presented to the Institute shall thereby be considered its property, and the Council may publish the same in any way, and at any time, that they may think proper.

REPORT, 1894—1895.

"PROGRESS" is still the watchword of the "Suffolk Institute of Archæology and Natural History." It is true the hand of death has removed several prominent members, amongst them the Lord Bishop of Bath and Wells, a good friend of the Institute, and one of its founders. The Rev. Canon Cooke, another old and esteemed member who contributed to our Proceedings, has also been called to his rest, and some four other names have to be added to the obituary list. On the other hand, the Council have much satisfaction in reporting that eleven gentlemen and one or two ladies have allowed their names to be added to the membership roll, while the same number are awaiting election. The Council regard this constant strengthening of the ranks of the Institute with much satisfaction as a token of an awakened interest connected with antiquarian and archæological research, and they would venture to express the belief that if the advantages of the Institute were better understood the value of its work present and future would be more generally recognized, and even more generous support in the practical form of membership would be accorded.

The Institute is in the happy position of having kind-hearted sympathetic friends all over the wide and important district embraced within its sphere of operations. The hearty manner in which this is made manifest on the occasions of the Annual Excursions is one of the most pleasing features of those pleasant and attractive gatherings. The remembrance of the successful excursion in July to Southwold and neighbourhood will long remain in the minds of all who were able to join the excursionists. The day's proceedings embraced a large area. The rendezvous was the popular watering place of Southwold, and the chief object of interest was the fine old Church dedicated to S. Edmund. The Vicar gave the visitors a hearty welcome, and as that gentleman had only recently been instituted to the benefice, Captain Grubbe readily responded to the request made to him, and read an admirable paper on the Church. The party subsequently crossed the Blyth at the ferry, and were soon busily engaged in a critical examination of the "ruins" in order to better picture to themselves the former grandeur of one of the noblest country churches in the kingdom. In this they were assisted by the Vicar, the Rev. T. H. R. Oakes, who had prepared a paper giving a valuable resumé of facts which he had collated with much care and judgment. Here there were other points to be explored, including Blythburgh Priory, as to which Mr. H. Watling furnished entertaining particulars. Blyford Church was next visited, and here the Rev. John F. Noot, B.A., gave a cordial welcome to the visitors, and pointed out the various restorations and improvements which had been effected in this church under his personal superintendence. He read a short paper which constitutes his last contribution to the antiquarian literature of the Institute. Since the visit of the Society to this parish the old vicar has been gathered to his fathers.

The last place visited was the ruins of Mells Chapel, where the Honorary Secretary, read to the members as they stood within the once consecrated area, a summary of the paper by Dr. Gowers which is given, and well illustrated in the last "Part" of "Proceedings."

It may be mentioned that as there had been frequent applications for the first four parts of the Society's publications, the Council have reprinted the same together with the illustrations. The work has been done with special regard to the adoption of similarity of style, the type being similar and arranged line for line so that the original index reference is strictly accurate; the Illustrations have also been carefully copied, and in some instances by photographic processes. As the result of this action on the part of the Council, many members will now be enabled to complete their sets, and it is anticipated that not only will purchasers be found for the re-print, but for other parts of the Institute's Proceedings also. These voluminous Transactions giving a full and detailed account of the Society's doings since its establishment as far back as 1848, would constitute a valuable addition to any library, having a special value for reference purposes connected with the history of ancient families, and buildings in East Anglia; while the lapse of time will add to the worth of the volumes, and at the same time greatly enhance the interest of the literary contributions of numerous ardent antiquaries extending over a long period.

Before the close of last year Part 3, with index, completing Volume VII., embellished by thirteen illustrations, was issued to members, and its illustrations and general character is considered, the Council hope, equal to former issues.

With the last part and bound up with it, was the index of Archæological Papers published in 1893, issued under the direction of the Congress of Archæological Societies in union with the Society of Antiquaries of London.

The Council would add that the "Church Plate in Suffolk" continues to make satisfactory progress; six Deaneries have been finished and published, and it is proposed to continue this undertaking, a branch of work organized under the auspices of the Institute which is attracting a good deal of notice, and which bids fair to add greatly to the value of the operations already completed.

CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK.

DEANERY OF CLARE.

THERE are eighteen Churches in this Deanery, the Communion Plate of which may fairly be described as quite up to, if not above, the average interest.

Of English pre-Reformation Plate there is no specimen. In date and interest the first place must be given to the Cup at Clare. It is of foreign workmanship, probably Flemish, and very elaborate. The bowl is small in comparison with the height of the stem and breadth of base. It is supposed to have formed part of the spoils of the Spanish Armada, and to have been presented to Clare by Queen Elizabeth. That Queen was also the donor of the brass eagle lecterns in Clare and Cavendish churches.

Next in probable date come the Cups of Denston, Wixoe, and Stoke. These are marked with the fleur-de-lis only : the first two having engraved bands of intermittent lines. They are of Elizabethan shape. At Wixoe and Stoke there are also Patens which fit the cups as covers. It may be of interest to note that Archbishop Parker was Dean of Stoke College (1537—1559), and it seems no improbable conjecture that his own Injunctions of 1569 were early carried out in the churches near his old home. Hence one is led to expect to find some Elizabethan plate in the Deanery. The Cup of Clare belongs probably to this period.

During the troubled years of the Rebellion there would seem to have been very little addition to the Plate in the Deanery, the only specimens being; (i) a small "dish" at Denston, with date-letter for 1640, it is saucer shaped, very shallow, and has two handles which resemble scallop shells; (ii) also a very handsome set at Hawkedon, date-letter for 1659; and (iii) of the same year a cup at Haverhill. The larger part of the plate, some 24 pieces, was added during the hundred years between the Restoration and the middle of the 18th century.

Other specimens of interest are the handsome set presented to Depden by Bishop Anthony Sparrow (Exeter 1667—1676, Norwich 1676—1685), who was a native of that parish. Also the two saucer-shaped trays or dishes at Denston and Barnardiston. These are less than one inch in depth, the surface covered with an embossed pattern. There are several such dishes in England, e.g., at Bredgar in Kent; S. Andrew's, Canterbury; Bishampton and Chalton in Hampshire (Archæologia Cantiana, xvi., 348). They are now used as patens, but seem more likely to have been alms "basons."

Hundon Vicarage, Suffolk.

ARTHUR HAMP, M.A.

BARNARDISTON. ALL SAINTS.

CUP: very white silver, plain, with a baluster stem. Height 5½ inches; diameter of bowl 3½ inches; depth 3 inches. Marks: leopard's head crowned; black letter capital F in shield for 1663; lion passant.

Engraved on the bowl $\begin{matrix} B & D \\ G & T \end{matrix}$

PATEN : saucer shape, without foot. 6 inches diameter ; no hall marks, but E.P. four times. Inscription :— $\begin{smallmatrix} B & D \\ G & T \end{smallmatrix}$; has apparently had two handles ; bottom embossed. In the church plate of Kent (Arch. Cant. xvi. 348) some such dishes are mentioned as at Bredgar, these are dated 1600 to 1650, and were probably used as Alms dishes.

FLAGON : pewter, tankard shaped, hinged cover, no lip.

Height 11 inches ; diameter at base $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

CAVENDISH. S. MARY VIRGIN.

CUPS : (1) with two handles ; was presented by Captain Stammers of Cavendish, in 1825. Height 7 inches ; diameter 4 inches ; depth of bowl $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Inscription :—Cavendish Communion Cup 1825. Marks : leopard's head crowned ; maker's mark I M ; Roman capital F for 1801 ; lion passant.

(2) quite modern ; supposed to be silver. Height $7\frac{1}{4}$ inches ; diameter at top $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches ; depth $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches ; diameter of base 5 inches ; maker's mark T.P. ; no other, but a shield, the figure not decipherable.

PATENS : (1) silver gilt, plain, very shallow. Diameter $6\frac{1}{4}$ inches, on the rim a cross patonce with a dot between each arm.

Marks : leopard's head ; maker's mark T P ; small old English t for 1874 ; lion passant ; head of Victoria.

(2) with foot. Height $1\frac{1}{2}$ inch ; diameter $8\frac{7}{8}$ inches.

Marks : D G within a diamond.

FLAGONS : pewter ; tankard shaped. Height 9 inches ; base 6 inches ; top $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Marks : a lion rampant, K B within shields.

Another similar was lost but since restored to the church.

Two pewter plates. Diameter $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Marks as above.

Under the old Poor-law system it had been the custom not only to give relief in Cavendish Church, but also to keep the money for the purpose in a chest in the church wherein the silver vessels for the Communion were also preserved. It is said that in 1825, distress being very great at the time, a robbery of the church was planned and carried out, both money and the vessels being stolen. It was supposed to have been done by some who had seen the plate when receiving their parish relief. Nothing was left but the pewter vessels named above.

CLARE. SS. PETER AND PAUL.

CUP : (1) silver gilt, beautifully embossed, supposed Flemish work, is said to have been taken from the Spanish Armada, and presented to the church by Queen Elizabeth. There are marks on this remarkable cup, and also on one of the disks. They are the same on both but indistinct ;—a flower or sprig in cusp ; two spears or swords crossed and above them what may be a mitre in cusp.

Height $11\frac{1}{2}$ inches ; depth $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches ; diameter at top $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches ; at base 6 inches.

Rev. W. A. Pywell, the present Rector, supplies the following particulars:—

Henry and Dorothy Berkeley are buried in the chancel here, and the entrance to the vault is marked by a slate slab, just giving their names, and stating the vault to be 10 feet square.

An elaborate wall tablet of marble, white and dark, overlooks a chancel pew near the vault. The inscription is appended.

There is this entry in the old Register, year 1735:—"Dame Dorothy Berkley, wife of Henry Berkley, Esq., (Lord of the Manor of Water Hall,) was buried on the north side of the chancel, in a vault, November 22."

"Water Hall" is the name of a large farmhouse in this parish, and the "Manor" is still "the Manor of Water Hall."

Under the year 1751, the Register records:—"William Berkley, Esq., buried August 8th." This would seem to be a careless entry for "Henry," as it agrees with the date of Henry's death on the monument.

At the top part of the monument is a coat-of-arms, coloured, surmounted by a mitre, probably because they claimed Bishop Berkeley as of their family. There are three fox or goat (?) heads in the middle of the coat-of-arms. Hence, no doubt, the fox or goat head in the middle of the "silver waiter" paten (2). Such head being the Berkeley crest presumably.

On page 1 of the Register, already quoted, are the two following entries:—

"September the 6th 1699.

"Given to this Parish Church of Wixoe by the Pious and Charitable Lady, the Lady Dorothy Myddelton Patroness of this Rectory one Crimson Damask Cushion fringed with gold and four Rich and large Golden Tazels thereunto appendant.

O. Cobb, Rector."

"April y^e 20th 1730.

"A Blew Cloath Covering, one Damask Table Cloth & one Damask Napkin were given to The Parish Church of Wixoe by Henry Berkley Esq. & Dame Dorothey Berkley Patron and Patroness of the said church.

John Emerson, Rector."

CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK.

DEANERY OF NORTH DUNWICH.

The Church Plate in this Deanery does not call for any special remark; there are fine Elizabethan Cups at Halesworth and several other places;—a fleur-de-lis Cup at Westhall, while at Southwold and Frostenden there is Charles II. Plate, of Norwich make. Church Plate does not appear to have suffered as a rule during the Commonwealth, but the ruined Churches at Covehithe, Walberswick, Corton, &c., on this coast, support the fact that in this district there is more than the usual amount of Plate just later than that period. The Plate at Linstead is very curious.

EDMUND C. HOPPER.

PATEN: diameter 8 inches. On a foot. Bears the sacred monogram, and is marked with a right hand.

FLAGON: height 10 inches. Marks as on the paten.

CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK.

DEANERY OF SOUTH DENSWICH.

This Deanery was originally undertaken by Rev. George Irving-Davies, Rector of Kelsale and Rural Dean. After his death in 1894. the returns were sent to me to complete and prepare for publication. Such pieces as I have seen appear to be either of Elizabethan or of more modern work, presenting no special point of notice.

EDMUND C. HOPPER

ALDRINGHAM. S. ANDREW.

CUP : silver plated on British metal. By James Dixon and Sons, Sheffield. Height 8 inches ; diameter 4 inches.

PATEN : plated ; IHS in centre ; no foot. Diameter $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches ; height $\frac{3}{4}$ inch.

FLAGON : plated, with lid surmounted by a cross. By Cox & Sons, London. Height 9 inches.

ALMS DISH : plated.

PLATE : pewter.

BLYTHBURGH. HOLY TRINITY.

Here the CUP, originally secular, and two PATENS, are each marked with the leopard's head crowned ; $\begin{smallmatrix} R & B \\ W & B \end{smallmatrix}$ maker (Bateman) ; Roman capital K for 1805 ; lion passant ; king's head.

The Cup measures 7 inches by $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches ; the Patens are 5 inches and 7 inches in diameter.

BRAMFIELD. S. ANDREW.

CUP ; measures $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches by $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches ; weighs 13 oz. 17 dwts.

PATEN COVER : weighs 6 oz. 11 dwts.

ALMS DISH : or large PATEN weighs 15 oz. 10 dwts.

FLAGON : large tankard, weighs 56 oz. 5 dwts.

The marks on each of these four pieces are : Britannia ; Court hand m for 1707 ; Ti for Robert Timbrell ; lion's head erased. Each piece also bears this inscription :—"In usum Bramfeldensium in sacris dedit Thomas Neale Armig, 1704." The Flagon is also hall marked on the lid. It will be observed that though given in 1704 they were not made till 1707. Perhaps Mr. Neale, a local landowner of the time, gave money for them in 1704.

CARLTON. S. PETER.

CUP: plain, with thick stem. Height $7\frac{1}{4}$ inches; depth of bowl $3\frac{7}{8}$ inches; diameter at top $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Marks: Britannia; maker MA; Court hand f for 1701; lion's head erased. Under the foot is the lion's head erased repeated.

PATEN: with foot; on the latter is engraved:— 1588
CARLE
1715

Diameter at top $4\frac{5}{8}$ inches; ditto of foot 2 inches; height $1\frac{1}{8}$ inch. Marks: Britannia; and lion's head erased; other two marks obscure. This is interesting, if, as apparently is the case, the date of the older plate is preserved.

DARSHAM. ALL SAINTS.

CUPS: (1) tall, with small cover; 7 inches by $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Weight $9\frac{1}{4}$ oz. Elizabethan, with band, but no marks. The Cover is quite plain, no marks.

PATEN: weight $10\frac{3}{4}$ oz. Inscribed:—“Deo et Ecclesiae parochiali Darsham Sacrum Tho: Bedingfeld 1684.” Marks: leopard's head crowned; small black letter f for 1683; G G, rather indistinct (Geo. Garthorne); lion passant.

CUP: (2) large, 9 inches, 5 inches deep. Weight 22 oz. Inscribed as paten. Marks same as paten.

ALMS DISH: IHS in centre. Weight 30 oz. 12 inches in diameter. Marks: the leopard's head crowned; E G, maker; Q for 1673; lion passant.

DUNWICH. S. JAMES.

Antiquarians will remember how Dunwich has nearly all disappeared into the sea, and how many churches no longer exist. At the new Church of S. James, there is now only a CUP, PATEN, and ALMS DISH, none of them of silver, but each is inscribed:—“Dunwich 1831.” Dunwich old Church, now a ruin, was disused for some 100 years; it is not wonderful, therefore, that the Churchwarden (Mr. Scarlett,) could give no information about any older plate.

HEVENINGHAM. S. MARGARET.

CUP: small Elizabethan, with floriated band, and plain PATEN COVER, bear a fleur-de-lis only.

PATEN: has a small hole in the centre, similar to the Medieval Paten at Barsham; it is probably but little altered from its pre-Reformation form.

FLAGON: of pewter.

KELSALE. S. MARY.

CUPS: (1) on thick stem with cover. On the rim under the foot is engraved—Cup & cover ūcis 16 2; under the foot—1707; and a punch of lion's head erased. Height $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches; depth of bowl $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches; diameter at top 4 inches. Marks: Britannia; court band 1 for 1706; crown over mullet with P.Y. (Benjamin Pyne's mark); lion's head erased. Cup and cover weigh 16 oz. 2 dwts.

(2) on baluster stem; silver gilt. Height $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches; depth of bowl 3 inches; diameter at top $3\frac{1}{8}$ inches. Marks: leopard's head; maker C.T.F. over G.F; old English capital 6 for 1842; lion passant; head of Victoria.

PATEN: Britannia; and others as on Cup (1).

FLAGON: tankard-shaped, with large handle; domed lid with thumb piece. Height $11\frac{1}{2}$ inches; depth of cover $1\frac{1}{2}$ inch.

Underneath is inscribed:—"Ex dono G. Golding 1789 2 lbs. 5 oz.

Marks: leopard's head crowned; maker I.R (John Robins); small Roman n for 1788; lion passant; head of George III.

Extract from Kelsale Terrier, 1894:—A set of Communion vessels Silver gilt consisting of Chalice inlaid with Carbuncles, Flagon, two Patens large and small, Water Cruet, in oak case, was presented by Parishioners and others to the Rev. G. I. Davies on his completing twenty five years Incumbency and was afterwards given by him to the use of Kelsale Church.

KNODDISHALL. S. LAWRENCE.

CUP: Elizabethan; measuring 5 inches in height. The foot is damaged. There is no inscription, and the only mark is the sexfoil.

PATEN: cover to Cup, has been repaired; these two pieces have the usual Elizabethan ornamentation PATEN: plain. Marks: leopard's head; maker $\begin{smallmatrix} M & B \\ A & T \end{smallmatrix}$; "Cox, Buckley & Co., An. Dom. 1887;" H for 1883; lion passant; Queen's head.

FLAGON: glass, with silver-topped cork. Same marks as Paten, except the date, letter L for 1886.

The last two pieces were Jubilee gifts.

LEISTON. S. MARGARET.

CUPS: (1) on the bowl is inscribed:—"Deo, et Ecclesie de Leiston Suffolciense cum summa humilitate

Dicat Tho Trigg A M
Hujus Parochie Minister
1766

Height 8 inches; depth of bowl 4 inches; diameter $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

Marks: k for 1765; J S for John Swift; and the silver marks.

(2) Medieval shape, with wide base; gilt inside. Presented by Frank Garrett, Esq., for use specially in the Licenced Mission Chapel in the hamlet of Coldton Green, and used also in the church on week days. Height $7\frac{3}{4}$ inches; depth of bowl 3 inches; diameter $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches.

PATENS: (1) In the centre, at back, is Laiston, and round the rim:—“The Gift of the Rev^d. Thomas Bull, A.M. Rector of this Parish 1772.” Marks: leopard’s head crowned; maker E.C. (probably Ebenezer Coker); old English capital R for 1772; lion passant.

Diameter 6 inches; height 1 inch. 6 oz. 19 dwts.

(2) with foot. Inscribed:—“Dedit Tho^s. Trigg A.M. Parochiæ Minister 1766.” Diameter 5 inches; height $1\frac{1}{4}$ inch. Marks as on Cup.

(3) without foot; with I H S and cross in centre.

Diameter $5\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

FLAGON: jug-shaped, with handle, lip; domed lid, with knob at top. On the side is engraved:—“Sum Dei, et Ecclesie de Leiston Suffolciensis Dedit Tho^s Trigg A.M. Parochiæ Minister 1766.”

Height 9 inches. Scratched at base, 22 oz. 11 dwts.

Marks: D.B., twice; and a mark apparently intended for the Agnus Dei.

ALMS DISH: of brass.

SPOON: engraved:—“Dedit T T 1766.” Length $8\frac{1}{4}$ inches; width $1\frac{3}{4}$ inch. Marks: leopard’s head crowned; maker’s mark, J P (John Payne); old English capital H for 1763; lion passant.

MIDDLETON. HOLY TRINITY.

CUP: plain.

PATEN: plain.

Both the foregoing were the gift of a former Rector, the Rev. Daniel Packard, in the early part of the century. The inscription is:—“The gift of D. Packard, Clerk A.B. Rector of this Parish. Maker’s initials, R.B.; Date, letter N for 1808; and the silver marks (ex inform. Rev. G. Hamilton).

Fordley. “Ecclesia Destructa.”

PEASENHALL. S. MICHAEL.

CUP: inscribed round the base of the bowl:—“The Towne of Pesnaulle.” Height 6 inches; depth 3 inches; chased at base $\frac{3}{4}$ inch wide.

PATENS: (1) with foot, not cover of present cup.

Inscription underneath:—“For the Towne of Pesnaulle.”

No marks nor date, but old. Diameter $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches; height $1\frac{1}{2}$ inch.

(2) with foot. Inscription at back:—“The Gift of Widdow Elizabeth Barker 1714.” Diameter $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches; height 2 inches.

FLAGON: tankard-shaped. Height $11\frac{1}{4}$ inches; measures, round the base, $19\frac{1}{2}$ inches; round the centre, 12 inches; from top of lid, 11 inches.

SIBTON. S. PETER.

CUP: with cover. Height 7 inches; depth 4 inches; diameter $4\frac{1}{4}$ inches. Only mark, the sexfoil.

PATENS: (1) also cover, with this inscription:—" This Crpe Pertineth to SYPTEN Anno 1572."

(2) with foot, and this inscription:—" The Gift of y^e Widdow Elizabeth Barker 1713." Diameter $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches; height 2 inches.

FLAGON: tankard-shaped. Height 11 inches, and inscription as on Paten. The Flagon and Paten bear: Britannia; court hand S for 1713; and St. Gabriel Sleath's mark; lion's head erased.

THEBERTON. S. PETER.

CUP: Norwich shape; Elizabethan, with floriated band round upper part of bowl; plain stem, ornament at top and bottom. Metal somewhat thin and battered. The only mark a sexfoil.

PATEN: Cover to Cup; metal very thin, and much knocked about. Diameter $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches, having a small hole $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch through the centre.

FLAGON: of pewter, without lid. Inscribed in front:—

Theberton

Ex dono Thome Ingham

Ibidem Generosis

Height 8 inches; diameter at top $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

ALMS DISHES: two supposed to be pewter. Inscribed up the upper side are the sacred monogram and cross within rays, and beneath:—" The Gift of The Rev^d Tho^s Strong to the Parish of Theberton." Marks: two suns. Diameter $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

THORINGTON. S. PETER.

CUP: having slightly bell-shaped bowl and spreading foot. Height $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches; diameter at top $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches; depth of bowl $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

Marks: leopard's head crowned; maker's mark obscure; court hand P for 1652; lion passant. In the hollow of the foot is the mark of a lion passant only.

PATEN: with foot, in the old Terriers it is entered as the Cover of the Cup. Diameter 5 inches; height 1 inch; diameter of foot $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

Marks: leopard's head crowned; maker's mark obscure; court hand P for 1652; lion passant.

FLAGON: tankard-shaped with large handle; lid, with thumb piece. Upon the front is engraved:—

By Henry Coke Esqr }

Marks: leopard's head crowned; W M, with a mullet underneath; black letter capital B for 1659; lion passant. Height $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches; depth of lid $1\frac{1}{2}$ inch. Lid bears the same Hall marks.

ALMS DISH: also bears the inscription:—

"To God and his service { 1660."

By Henry Coke Esqr }

Hall marks on the rim immediately opposite the inscription the same as on the Flagon, and scratched on the reverse centre:—Thorington in Suffolk. Diameter $11\frac{1}{2}$ inches; rim $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

Henry Coke was buried at Thorington, 19 Nov., 1661.

(See Thorington Parish Registers, p. 73.)

UBBESTON. S. PETER.

CUP: Elizabethan; ornamented with flower scroll. Marked only with a fleur-de-lis near the rim.

Height $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches; diameter at top $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches; depth of bowl $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

PATENS: (1) with foot, also cover to Cup. No mark excepting the fleur-de-lis. Diameter $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches; height $1\frac{1}{4}$ inch.

(2) with foot. Inscription around, under surface:—Ex Dono Indigni Participis Hujus Mensæ Sacræ pro Ubbeston Ecclesiæ. No note of name of donor, or date of gift, but somewhat recent, judging from character of lettering.

Marks: on upper surface, Britannia; maker H.O; large capital F for 1721; lion's head erased. Diameter $7\frac{7}{8}$ inches; height $2\frac{3}{8}$ inches.

WALBERSWICK. S. ANDREW.

CUP and PATEN: modern, Electro-plated.

FLAGON: small of Pewter. The present Vicar knows nothing of any old plate.

WALPOLE. S. MARY.

CUP: Elizabethan, with the usual band of scroll work. Under the lip is a fleur-de-lis, but no other mark.

Height 6 inches; diameter at top $3\frac{1}{4}$ inches; depth of bowl $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

PATEN: with foot, and fits the Cup as a cover. Height of foot 1 inch. Has a fleur-de-lis on the lower side, and the following mark on the base of the foot:—

FLAGON: ewer-shaped; not silver. Presented in 1878.

WENHASTON. S. PETER.

CUP: with cover, and inscribed:—WENHASTON. 1567; having the maker's mark a trefoil slipped in plain shield (Cripps. p. 90); Norwich castle and lion. Height 5 inches; diameter at top 3 inches; depth of bowl $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK.

DEANERY OF LAVENHAM.

This Deanery is one of three into which the ancient Deanery of Sudbury (which comprised 48 benefices, or 52 parishes) has been divided. Of these, sixteen parishes make the Deanery of Lavenham.

This South-west angle of Suffolk, from its comparative nearness to the metropolis, early settlement by considerable and noble families, and later replenishment in wealth by the great clothiers and wool-staplers, must of old have been in a much more flourishing condition than, alas! is now the case. We might naturally look for signs of this opulence, not only in the Insignia of Corporations and Guilds, or in the richness of church edifices, but in the Church Plate of the district. This does not seem to be so now, though possibly it was once distinguished in this branch of Sacred Art, but the sacrilegious and avaricious hands which had power in the middle of the 16th and 17th centuries, were felt heavily in Suffolk. The lateness of date in many cases, of the Altar vessels seems to show how little that was capable of being stolen was left to the dismantled churches; for it cannot be supposed that all the ancient silver vessels were re-formed into the modern ones by mistaken taste, though the huge flagons frequently met with seem to be the outcome of puritanical quarterly "Assemblies."

Again, the importance of some of the benefices in the Deanery of Lavenham, either from the patrons or from their (once) ample incomes, would naturally seem to secure rectors of some eminence, able and willing to adorn and enrich the Services of the Church, for the King appointed to two, the Archbishop of Canterbury to one, important Colleges at Cambridge to four, and landowners to four of them.

There are indications of this influence, notably at Cockfield, in gifts by Dr. Jonathan Hall in 1743, and by Henry Wrigley, B.D., in 1752; at Hitcham by Laurence Breton, B.D., in 1640, as fully detailed in "Walker's Sufferings of the Clergy"; at Monks Eleigh by Dr. Wilkins in 1745 (he had S. T. P. Comitiis Regiis at Cambridge in 1717); by T. Tanner, about 1782; and by A. J. C. Wallace in 1847. All these were rectors; others, no doubt were benefactors, though their records are not cut in silver. At Brent Eleigh the Flagon and Alms Dish have the arms of the Colmans, given by Sir R. Gipps as "az. upon a Pale radiant rationée or. a Lyon rampant g." They purchased the estate in 1647. Dr. Colman, who founded the Library, spelt his name Coleman at his B.A. at Cambridge in 1691, and at his three subsequent degrees omitted the e; he was probably the donor. The Mildens plate is worth attention, as detailed further on; and the Lawshall, for some inscriptions. Was the Preston Paten of 1624, with its simple "Reticebo," the result of a penance on some evil-speaker; or the submissive gift and exclamation of one whom the Hand of God had heavily visited? The stealing of the Brettenham Plate, sixty or more years ago, is a terrible loss, as it is likely to have been interesting and valuable; the Wenyeves being paramount there from (at least) the time of Queen Elizabeth to Queen Anne, and still owners into the days of Queen Victoria; one of them rector as late as 1739; and the family apparently staunch to Church and Queen, and restorers of the fabric and furniture left desolate by the great Rebellion.

The poorness of the Plate at so grand a church as Lavenham is striking, as is the interesting Chalice, &c., in so small a church as Mildens, probably given by one of the Allingtons about 1600. A large monument of the family remains.

C. J. BETHAM, RURAL DEAN.

BRETENHAM. S. MARY THE VIRGIN.

According to the Terriers, the ancient Altar Plate was sacrilegiously stolen out of the Church (some time in the reign of King William IV.) It is described as having been "very handsome." After this lamentable loss, a plated set was procured, good of its kind, but quite uninteresting.

The Service now used was presented in 1884, as inscribed.

CUPS: (1) upright with slender stem, 8 inches high.

(2) of handsome modern-antique design, bowl gilt inside, has a bold knop on stem. Height $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches; diameter at top $3\frac{1}{8}$ inches; foot $5\frac{1}{4}$ inches. On opposite side of the base are chased a floriated cross, and

I H C. Marks: outside, leopard's head; maker $\begin{matrix} H & E \\ & W \end{matrix}$ within a trefoil; Roman capital H for 1883; lion passant; head of Victoria.

PATENS: (1) on foot; $3\frac{3}{8}$ inches high; 7 inches diameter.

(2) sunk centre with an "Agnus Dei" chased on it, and chased edge. Diameter 6 inches. Marks same as on Cup. Both the Cup and Paten are engraved underneath:—+ Eccles: de Brettenham grato animo D.D. Car^s Jepson Betham A.M. Annos. jam 25. implens. Rector. in. Fest. S.S. Trir^s 1884: et. Fil. unic. dilectus. Car^s Goddard Betham A.M.

FLAGON: with hinged lid, ordinary handle and spout.

Height 10 inches; diameter $5\frac{1}{2}$ inches at base, $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches at top.

PLATE: of pewter, $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches diameter, apparently older than the above. Marked beneath with two fighting cocks, &c.

COCKFIELD: S. PETER.

CUP: bell-shaped, with a band of scroll work. Height 8 inches; depth of bowl 5 inches; diameter at top $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

PATEN: with foot, not a cover to cup, no ornamentation. Diameter $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches, height $1\frac{1}{2}$ inch; diameter at foot $2\frac{3}{8}$ inches.

FLAGONS: two, tankard-shaped, with hinged lids.

Height $10\frac{1}{2}$ inches; to top of lid $12\frac{1}{2}$ inches; diameter of base 7 inches, of top $4\frac{1}{8}$ inches. Engraved is the sacred monogram and maltese cross, and on each the inscription:—"The gift of the Rev. Jonathan Hall D.D. Rector of Cockfield, to the said Parish 1743."

ALMS DISH: diameter $11\frac{1}{8}$ inches. Inscription:—"The Gift of H. Wrigley B D Rector of Cockfield 1752." Between these two clauses is a coat of arms, apparently three knives or cutlasses, on an oval shield.

HITCHAM. ALL SAINTS.

CUP: plain with knop on stem. Height $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches; depth of bowl $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches; diameter at top 5 inches. No ornament or arms, but on the foot is Hicham in Suffolke, 1640. Marks: leopard's head crowned; maker R W; court hand B for 1639; lion passant.

PATENS (1): cover to Cup. On a foot upon which is engraved within a border a lamb carrying a flag staff, with a cross at the top, and a banner with a cross; no other ornament. Marks: same as on Cup.

(2) Diameter $5\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Inscription beneath: Hitcham in Suffolk, 1731. Marks: indistinct.

FLAGONS: two tankard-shaped, with straight sides, with lids and thumb pieces, very heavy, exactly alike. Inscription underneath: Hitcham in Suff. 1638. Height 10 inch, lid $1\frac{3}{8}$ inch; diameter at top 4 inches. Marks: leopard's head crowned; maker not distinct; small italic v for 1637; lion passant.

From Terriers. Account of Books, Ornaments, &c. "First, two silver flagons, weighing 49 ounces; also a silver Chalice and ewer weighing 18 ounces; also a silver patene, weighing 8 ounces."

Extract from Walker's Sufferings of the Clergy, 1714.

LAWRENCE BRETTON, B.D., RECTOR OF HITCHAM.

Both his living and his temporal estate were seized and put under sequestration A.D. 1643. He had, just before the breaking out of the rebellion, furnished the Communion Table of his Church with *two large Flagons, a large Cup, and a very handsome Basin for the offerings,

* The Rector, Rev. A. R. Grant, states that he never saw this basin. It would appear that a small plate, dated 1731, was substituted for it.

all of silver, which I mention as an instance, not only of his Piety, but of his great modesty likewise; for he would neither permit his name, nor his arms, nor anything but the word "Hitcham," to be engraven upon them; which was happily the occasion of saving them in the time of the Rebellion, for, being seized by the Plunderers as Mr. Bretton's household plate, it was carried before the Committee, who, finding no other inscription than that mentioned upon it, were satisfied that it belonged to the Parish, and, in a fit of tenderness, not common in those times, sent it back again.

KETTLEBASTON. S. MARY.

No returns.

LAVENHAM. S. PETER.

Marks: leopard's head; maker I K; lion passant.

PATEN: without foot, $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches diameter.

Engraved:—"O Lamb of God that takest away the sins of the world have mercy upon us." Marks: leopard's head; maker I K; lion passant.

FLAGON: ewer-shaped, engraved on the bottom:—"The flagon from the silver of which this piece of plate is made A^o dm. 1857, for Lawshall Church was inscribed beneath + "The gift of Frances Lee, Widdow, Glory be to God on high."

Height 12 inches; weight 16 oz. Marks: maker I K; lion passant.

ALMS DISHES: upon them these inscriptions:—

(1) "Freely ye have received freely give."

(2) "Lay not up for yourselves treasure upon the earth."

(3) "Praise the Lord O my soul and forget not all his benefits."

MILDEN. S. PETER.

CUP: supposed by the Rector to be of continental make. Date about 1600, hammered, has an engraved scroll $\frac{3}{4}$ inch wide.

Height $4\frac{5}{8}$ inches; diameter $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches.

PATENS: (1) of London make, date 1696; turned edge, hammered foot otherwise quite plain. Diameter $5\frac{1}{8}$ inches; height $1\frac{1}{4}$ inch. (2) of London make, date George III., 1788.

MONKS ELEIGH. S. PETER.

CUP: Elizabethan with a band of foliated strap-work round the bowl, but no marks. Inscribed underneath is:—“The Church of Monks Eleigh.”

Height $7\frac{1}{4}$ inches; depth of bowl $3\frac{1}{8}$ inches; diameter at top 4 inches. The stem is thick having a central knop, beneath this is the reel ornament and a chased device.

PATENS: (1) with foot, cover to cup, grooved on the upper edge. Diameter $4\frac{1}{8}$ inches. On the foot are the letters M S, there are also the initials G L linked.

(2) Inscribed beneath:—“Given to the Church of Monks Eleigh by Rev^d A. C. J. Wallace, Rector 1847.” In the centre is the sacred monogram with cross within rays. Diameter $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

Marks: leopard's head; maker $\begin{smallmatrix} C R \\ G S \end{smallmatrix}$; old English capital M for 1847; lion passant; head of Victoria.

FLAGON: tankard-shaped, with domed cover with thumb piece and large handle. In front is the sacred monogram with cross within rays, and beneath the same is inscribed “Ex Dono T. Tanner hujus Ecclesiae Rectoris.” Height 8 inches without lid, $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches with same; diameter at top $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches; depth $6\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

Besides the above, are four Pewter Flagons of various sizes, measuring:—(1) $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches in height; diameter at top $3\frac{3}{8}$ inches. Mark: a crown; stamped on centre of bottom (inside) P M.

(2) Height 6 inches; diameter at top 4 inches. Marks: similar to the above.

(3) has thumb piece to the lid. Height $8\frac{3}{4}$ inches; diameter $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches. On centre of bottom S T.

(4) lid with thumb piece. Height $11\frac{1}{2}$ inches to the top of lid knob, without lid $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches; diameter at top $4\frac{1}{8}$ inches.

The Rev. A. C. J. Connell supplies the following information respecting his predecessors:—1845, Rev. A. C. J. Wallace died in 1871, at least that is the date when his successor became Rector. He is buried at Great Horkesley, Essex.

The entry among the Rectors as to T. Tanner is as follows:—
 “1745, Tho^s Tanner, M.A., collated by Archbp. Potter; inducted by John Child, Oct. 29th, then Curate. Resigned S. Edmund the King, Lombard Street, London; also Rector of Hadleigh, where he was buried, March 20, 1786.” (History of Hadleigh, p. 281. By Rev. Hugh Pigot.)

David Wilkins was Tanner's predecessor, 1719 to 1745; also Rector of Hadleigh, where he was buried.

PRESTON. S. MARY.

RETICEBO

Marks: leopard's head crowned; maker I B; rest illegible.

FLAGON: jug shaped. Height $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches; diameter 4 inches.

Marks: leopard's head; maker's mark P.

This Flagon was given in 1870, by Mr. Geo. Barnes Williams, brother of the rector, Professor Williams, B.D. (of Arabic, Cambridge.)

The present rector, the Rev. R. G. P. Brownrigg, says, though he can find no record of the donors of the Cup and Paten, probably they were both given—the Paten at any rate, by Robert Ryece, who in 1621, as our church board says, “did endow ye Vicarage of this Church with the Rectorial tithes of the same”; and whose tombstone recording his death in Feby., 1629, lies at the north side of the Communion Table.

Mr. G. Barnes Williams died on the 18th of June, 1887, and is buried in the churchyard (St. Margaret's?) Lee, Kent, where his monument stands.

Professor H. G. Williams, rector, died in the last days of July, 1870, and was buried in Preston St. Mary's Churchyard, where a stone has been placed in his memory.

SHIMPLINGTHORNE. S. GEORGE.

The old Cup was cut shorter and the portion cut out made into a bottle for the wine, and all fitted up for a private communion service by command of the vestry. Height of cup 6 inches. The under part of the bowl, the knop, and rim of foot are all chased. Inscription beneath:—"Great Waldingfield 1617." Depth of bowl 3 inches; diameter at top $3\frac{1}{4}$ inches; of foot $3\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

Marks: leopard's head; maker $\begin{smallmatrix} F \\ W \end{smallmatrix}$

PATEN: small, with foot. Diameter $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches; at foot $1\frac{7}{8}$ inch; height $1\frac{1}{2}$ inch.

No inscription but Hall marks same as on small cup.

ALMS DISH: on foot. Diameter 9 inches; at foot $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches; height $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches.

The rim and foot are stamped with rope pattern.

Inscribed on surface in a circle:—“Deo et Ecclesiae Sa: Waldingfield Mag: D.D.D. Hen Kerington Gen A. D. 1702.”

Marks: Britannia; maker Pa (either Simon Pantin or Humphry Payne); court hand f for 1701; lion's head erased.

WALDINGFIELD, LITTLE. S. LAWRENCE.

This parish now possesses a CUP; PATEN; FLAGON; and ALMS DISH. The ancient Plate was sold in 1868, as appears by Vestry minutes copied by Rev. A. N. Wilson, the present Vicar.

“1868. June 22nd. The old Communion Service was disposed of to Messrs. Johnson and Walker, of Aldegate, London, by the Vicar for the sum of Thirty nine pounds, fourteen shillings, and one penny. £39 . 14 . 1.

(Signed) Robert Andrews (Vicar).”

“1869. Feby. 4th. A new service was procured of Messrs. Watherston of 12 Pall Mall, London, by the Vicar, for the sum of Forty two pounds—£42. The balance expended £2 . 5 . 11 . together with the expenses of selling old plate—journey to London &c., amounting to £2 . 10/- was defrayed by the Vicar.

CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK.

DEANERY OF LOTHINGLAND.

In this Deanery there are eight Elizabethan Communion Cups of the usual pattern, and four rather unique examples at Blundeston, Bradwell, Gunton, and Herringfleet, dated 1637—1668, about which time we do not often find new plate. At S. Margaret's, Lowestoft, there is heraldic plate, and these, with the Barnby Cup, which has often been considered a pre-Reformation Chalice, are the examples most deserving of notice.

EDMUND C. HOPPER.

ASHBY. S. MARY.

CUP: Elizabethan, of Norwich pattern. Height 6 inches; diameter $4\frac{3}{4}$ inches. Marks: Norwich castle in chief, and lion passant in base on shield; the trefoil slipped (as at Kirkley); Roman capital C in square punch for 1568. This inscription:—FOR THE TOWNE OF ASBE.

PATEN: on foot, with IHS and rays. Diameter 5 inches.

On foot is the weight 4.14.

Marks: Dublin harp and crown; Britannia; G B; no date letter.

FLAGON: height 9 inches. It bears the sacred monogram and rays, and "Presented by Edward Thurlow 1860."

Marks: leopard's head; maker's mark $\begin{smallmatrix} C & T & F \\ G & F \end{smallmatrix}$; small old English x for 1856; lion passant; head of Victoria.

BARNBY. S. JOHN BAPTIST.

CUP: apparently a pre-Reformation chalice, very slightly altered, the bowl being quite of medieval shape, the stem more Elizabethan. Height $5\frac{1}{8}$ inches; diameter of bowl $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

Marks: merely five small pellets forming a cross within a border: apparently rare.

Rev. C. R. Manning, who has seen this rather remarkable cup, thinks that it is of local make, about A.D. 1600.

PATEN : cover to cup, no foot, apparently an ancient paten, but slightly re-hammered : no sexfoil or other depression, but a circle as for some device. Diameter 4 inches. No marks.

FLAGON : glass, with silver top. Marks : leopard's head ; maker M B A T ; Roman capital H for 1883 ; lion passant ; head of Victoria.

BELTON. ALL SAINTS.

CUPS : (1) of good Elizabethan shape. Height 5 inches ; diameter 3 inches. Marks : Norwich castle and lion ; maidenhead in plain shield ; C in square punch for 1568. Within a plain band is ✝ FOR THE TOWNE OF BELTON.

(2) modern, of good medieval shape, silver gilt, bears the sacred monogram. Height 8 inches. Marks : leopard's head ; maker I. K. (J. Keith) ; old English capital T for 1854 ; lion passant ; head of Victoria.

PATEN : has a sexfoil depression, in centre I. H. S. Diameter 7½ inches. On the rim "By thy Cross and Passion good Lord deliver us." Marks : leopard's head ; maker I. K. ; small old English m for 1867 ; lion passant ; head of Victoria.

FLAGON : ewer-shaped. Within a band is :— ✝ "Glory be to God on high." Height 11 inches. Marks : leopard's head ; maker I F ; small old English t for 1874 ; lion passant ; head of Victoria.

The present Rector, Rev. Wm. C. Leeper, is of opinion that the donor, of the three pieces of modern plate, was the late Rector, Rev. T. E. F. Howes, who died March 30th, 1895.

BLUNDESTON. S. MARY.

CUP : good, straight sides. Height 7 inches.

Inscribed :—BLUNDESTON. X^mBER. THE XX. 1647.

Marks : a quatrefoil and A H, each repeated.

PATEN : is on a foot similar to Elizabethan plate. Has the same four marks only as on Cup. (Commonwealth Communion Plate is rare.)

FLAGON : tankard form. Height 11 inches.

Inscribed :—"Blundeston cum Flixton, Anno Domini 1721."

Marks : Britannia ; maker F A (possibly Fawdery's mark) ; Roman capital F for 1721 ; lion's head erased.

Underneath the base is the inscription :—"What y^e Flixton Cup wanted of y^e purchase of this Flaggon was given by Greg. Clarke Rector, and Anne his wife, daughter of William Wells of Lowestoft, Merch Anno 1717."

ALMS DISH : pewter. Diameter 8½ inches. T B. B. 1748.

Copied from Register :—"Gregory Clarke died June 11th 1726 buried on the 14th." By Robt. Baldwin Rect.

"Anne Clarke the dear and loving wife of Gregory Clarke Rector of this parish departed this life Jan. 21st and was buried in the chancel Jan. 24th 1717 aged 36. She was devout, serious, and constant in her devotions to Almighty God : charitable and loving to all her neighbours and of the best of wives."

"William Wells of Lowestoffe merchant my dear wifes father was buried in the chancel of Blundeston May 27. 1710. he died in the 63.^d year of his age. he earnestly desired his grave may not be broke up for a year . . . (unreadable) which I hope my successors will observe as is desired by me."

Gregory Clarke Rector.

BRADWELL S. NICHOLAS.

CUPS: (1) gilt inside. Engraved is I H S within rays, and "BRADWELL . CHVRCH . CVP . 1668."

Norwich pattern, with baluster stem.

Height $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches ; diameter at top $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches ; at base $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches ; depth of bowl 3 inches.

Marks : probably Norwich castle and lion ; maker a broad arrow over net work ; a crown ; seeded rose.

The sacred monogram is a modern addition.

(2) Up to about 1860 one Cup was the only piece of silver or any sort of plate belonging to this church, when Rev. William Trivett gave a Paten and Flagon in memory of his fiftieth year of holding the Rectory. Rev. Wm. Trivett died Nov. 1863. M.I. in churchyard.

The second Cup was presented by the present rector, Rev. John Walker. It was made to match the older in shape and size, and bears the sacred monogram.

CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK.

DEANERY OF ORFORD.

In this Deanery there is a great deal of good Elizabethan Plate, chiefly either of tall narrow make with straight sides and bearing the London Hall Marks, or of wider make, more bell shaped, having a single mark, the G. Plate thus marked seems to be common in South East Suffolk, just as the fleur-de-lis is met with nearer Bury. There is apparently no Norwich Plate in the Deanery of Orford. The Plate at Benhall and Orford is large and massive, and there is good modern plate at Saxmundham and Tunstall.

EDMUND C. HOPPER.

CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK.

DEANERY OF SOUTH ELMHAM.

There are only eight parishes in this Deanery, but in each will be found Church Plate of some interest. There are four good Elizabethan cups, one of which has fortunately been restored to its parish of late years; while the returns from Flixton prove the value of this Inventory. Happily Sir H. E. Adair, Bart., has now presented a Cup of good silver; and it is earnestly hoped that no more old silver may be sold to make way for modern vessels, some of which are of inferior value.

EDMUND C. HOPPER.

ELMHAM, SOUTH. ALL SAINTS.

CUP: inscribed "All Saints South Elmham in Suffolke 1716."

Marks: Britannia; maker E A (John Eastt); Roman capital A for 1716; lion's head erased.

PATEN: of good medieval shape; in the centre is the "Agnus Dei" and round the rim, "O Lamb of God, that taketh away the sins of the world, have mercy upon us:" the back is inscribed "Presented to the Church of All Saints South Elmham, by Mrs. Esther Payne Durrant, Dec. 25, 1870." Mrs. E. P. Durrant died Oct. 9, 1873.

Marks: leopard's head; maker $\begin{smallmatrix} H & L \\ H & L \end{smallmatrix}$; small old English l for 1866; lion passant; head of Victoria.

FLAGONS: (1) electro-plated; inscribed "Presented to the Church of All Saints South Elmham, by Harriet Durrant, Christmas 1887."

(2) large, of pewter, no marks.

ALMS DISHES: (1) of pewter; has I K under a star within a shield, and a flaming star; (2) of bronze dated 1871. Presented by Rev. R. N. Durrant who died Nov. 20, 1892.

ELMHAM, SOUTH. S. GEORGE, OTHERWISE SANDCROFT.

CUP: on the Cup is "Saint George in South Elmham." Of Norwich make; has the castle and lion; crowned rose; the date letter P for 1638, not very clear, and a shield with a lion rampant.

PATEN: also Cover to Cup.

Marks: the same as on Cup.

CRUET: given by Rev. W. M. Smith, present Rector.

Marks: leopard's head; maker H. E. W.; Roman capital M for 1887; lion passant; head of Victoria.

NOTE. There is some doubt as to the true name of this parish. The Church is dedicated to S. George, but the Parish is often known as "S. Cross," which some think is a corruption of Sandcroft. An old Inventory calls the Parish "Cross croft."

ELMHAM, SOUTH. S. JAMES THE GREAT.

Here the Plate is all modern, the old having been sold when that now in use was bought.

CUP: on the side is the pilgrim's staff and purse.

Marks; leopard's head; maker S S within a square; Roman capital D for 1879; lion passant; head of Victoria.

PATEN: bears the inscription "Given to the Rector and Churchwardens of S James South Elmham, by the widow of the Rev. T. L. Clarkson 1880."

Marks: Roman capital C for 1878; others as on Cup.

FLAGON: Marks; capital B for 1877; others as on Cup.

ELMHAM, SOUTH. S. MARGARET.

CUPS: (1) good Elizabethan with cover, a duplicate of that at Homersfield, the only mark being the sexfoil as there. Near the band is engraved:—"SAYNTE MERGETES OF ELLMUM": on the cover 1567.

This Cup was sold when the new one was bought, it was happily recovered by Rev. E. A. Holmes, whose private property it remained until it was re-presented to the parish by his children Easter Eve 1891.

(2) On the side is "S^t Margaret's South Elmham, Edward Adolphus Holmes, Rector, George Freestone, Churchwarden, 1836."

E B

Marks: leopard's head; maker B; small Roman t for 1834; lion passant; head of William IV. J W

PATEN: is Irish, bearing the Dublin harp crowned, which is repeated on the foot, the maker's initials T B linked (for Thomas Bolton), and the date letter R for 1705. This paten was bought second hand when the church was restored.

DRINKERY OF SOUTH ELMHAM

Inscription:—"SEANT PETER OF SOUTH ELMHAM."

PATEN: not silver, no marks, nor inscription.

FLAGON: large pewter; X beneath a crown, Exeter mark (?)

ALMS DISH: "St. Peter South Elmham," duplicate of the S. Margaret's dish.

FLIXTON. S. MARY

In an Inventory dated 1845 appears:—"A silver Cup and Cover, engraved on the Com^d Cup thus, Flixton, Roger Gillingwater Churchwarden 1678, and at the bottom Wm Beaumont C. W. 1844 Flixton." These were probably the Elizabethan Cup with paten cover: other instances occur of Churchwardens names being added later. New plate was provided in 1861, but it is not known what became of the old.

CUP: good, date about 1860, not silver and no marks.

PATEN: plain, slightly concave without foot or rim.

Marks: lion passant; maker J. H. & Co.; anchor (Birmingham); M for 1861; head of Victoria.

FLAGON: marks: leopard's head; maker ^{C. T. F.}
G. F.; small old English b for 1857; lion passant; head of Victoria.

Since this inventory was taken the CUP has been tested, and being found not to be silver, another has been presented to the Church by the Patron of the Living, Sir Hugh E. Adair, Bart., similar in shape and design; it is, like the other $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, it bears the leopard's head; maker ^{J F}
E H (the initials of Fraser and Hawes, 31, Regent Street, London); T for 1894; lion passant (the queen's head being absent, there being now no duty on plate).

At the same time Rev. F. R. Smith had "Flixton S. Mary" engraved below on each piece.

ALMS DISH: good, of Bronze, it is marked: + Thesaurizate vobis thesauros in Cœlo.

HOMERSFIELD. S. MARY.

PATEN: also cover has 1567 upon the same.

FLAGON: marks: leopard's head; maker A S; small old English l for 1866; lion passant; head of Victoria. This was given by the late Lady Adair.

CRUET: electro plated.

ALMS DISH: bronze. Engraved:—1866 HUMERSFYLDE.

CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK.

DEANERY OF SUDBURY.

The Deanery of Sudbury contains, since the division of the Diocese in 1837, eighteen parishes only. It was anciently very much larger, and had churches which are now in the Deaneries of Clare, Hadleigh, and Lavenham. The Church Plate is not remarkable. There are only three Cups that are at all likely to be Elizabethan, and only one of these, that at All Saints, Sudbury, is a fine specimen. There is a considerable amount of seventeenth century plate, and the names of various donors occur frequently. Of the time of Queen Anne and the Georges, there is a fair proportion, and the armorial Flagon at All Saints, Sudbury, is a notable example. But a great many churches have been supplied with new services of plate during the present reign. Of these, there are some excellent specimens of modern medieval design, as at S. Peter's and S. Gregory's, Sudbury, Bures, Chilton, Great Cornard, and Glemsford. When the clergy of the last forty or fifty years entered upon their livings, there was a great revival of taste in church furniture, and a higher view than before of beauty and order in divine service. It was therefore natural that they should desire the altar-vessels to be of a more dignified form and appropriate ornament than they found in the plain and somewhat ugly pieces of former days. In many cases, in consequence, the old was exchanged for new. While we commend their zeal, and the liberality of the donors, we may regret that these silent witnesses to parochial history were not also allowed to continue in possession side by side.

Diss Rectory, Norfolk.

C. R. MANNING, F.S.A.

ALPHETON.

The Communion Plate of this parish formerly consisted, as appears by the Terriers of 1801 and later, of "one silver plate & one silver cup, each weighing about $6\frac{1}{2}$ oz." In 1842 a subscription was raised, and the present plated set was provided from Cowie & Co., Long Acre, at a cost of £9 19s. 6d., of which £2 13s. 6d. was allowed for the old silver. It consists of a CUP : having a bell shaped bowl, with I. H. S. in rays, and round foot. Height $7\frac{1}{4}$ inches ; diameter of bowl $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches.

PATEN : is on a foot, with I. H. S. in rays in the centre. Diameter $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

ALMS DISH : is similar in size and design.

FLAGON : stoup-shaped, with the same I. H. S. Height 12 inches.

There is also a small (plated ?) Cup kept with these vessels, but not of the same set, and has probably been an ordinary drinking cup. The bowl is embossed in panels.

Height $5\frac{1}{2}$ inches ; diameter of bowl $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches. There are no marks.

ASSINGTON. S. EDMUND.

A set of handsome vessels, all of octagon design, with modern Gothic tracery in panels.

CUPS : a pair, with bowl, stem and knop, and base of octagon form ; I H S in rays on bowls.

Height $10\frac{3}{4}$ inches ; diameter of bowl 4 inches.

Marks : leopard's head uncrowned ; date letter, black letter capital H on one for 1843 ; lion passant ; head of Victoria ; and I on the other for 1844.

PATEN : octagonal, on a foot, with Gothic tracery, and I. H. S. in the centre. Diameter 9 inches. Marks : the same ; letter H.

It is inscribed below, in Roman capitals.—"E DONO D. R. FEARON, M.A. VICARII. 1845."

FLAGON : octagonal. Height 12 inches ; with the same marks (letter H) ; and the same inscription.

BOXTED.

CUP : silver gilt ; the bowl is slightly bell shaped, encircled by a raised moulding. The foot is round.

Height $7\frac{3}{8}$ inches ; diameter of bowl 4 inches.

Is inscribed :—" Ex dono Johannis Poley, Armigeri. Anno Domini, 1708."

Marks : Britannia ; maker's mark, Yo. in quatrefoil (for Edward York, as in Cripps in 1706) ; court hand N for 1708 ; lion's head erased.

John Poley, of the ancient family of Poley of Boxted Hall, whose fine monuments remain in the church, was probably the second son of Sir John Poley, Knt., M.P. for Sudbury. He was born in 1676, and died a.p.

PATEN : diameter 5 inches ; has a short foot. Marks and inscription as on Cup.

FLAGON : is stoup-shaped. Height 11 inches ; with the same marks and inscription.

ALMS DISH : 10 inches in diameter.

Marks : leopard's head crowned ; maker's mark I. S. with escallop below, in shape ; capital black letter R in shield (for 1674 ?) ; lion passant.

BURES S. MARY.

CUP : a good modern medieval one, with a cross on the bowl ; boss in stem pierced with tracery, and six-foiled foot, with i h c on it.

Height $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches ; diameter of bowl $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

Marks : leopard's head uncrowned ; I. K. in long square ; black letter capital R for 1852 ; lion passant ; head of Victoria.

Inscription underneath, in black letter : + " Bures St. Mary, 1853. A. Hanbury, Vicar."

PATEN : is of the same set. Diameter 7 inches. In the centre a circle enclosing a double triangle, with i h c in black letter.

On the back the same marks and inscription.

FLAGON : is a handsome ewer shaped one of the same set.

Height 11 inches.

On a band round the body is inscribed, in black letter :—" Gloria in excelsis Deo. Alleluia." The marks are the same.

ALMS DISH : is much older. Diameter 8 inches. In the centre is a modern i h c in a quatrefoil, probably added in 1853. Of the marks only the lion passant remains ; the rest erased.

Inscription below :—" Ex Dono Jemimæ Sewell } Bures St^a Marie in De Henney in Com'. Ess' } Com'. Suff'. 1734."

With these is preserved a small set for private communion.

CUP : has a bell shaped bowl, and is in height $4\frac{1}{4}$ inches ; diameter of bowl $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

Inscription round it :—" Bures St. Mary. to be used at y^e. Communion of y^e. Sick . 1740."

Marks : leopard's head ; the lion passant ; the rest obliterated.

PATEN : has a foot, and is in diameter $3\frac{1}{4}$ inches, with the same inscription.

CHILTON.

CUP : is silver-gilt ; height $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches ; diameter of bowl $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Of good modern medieval make. The bowl has a cross bottomnée in a circle ; the stem has a knop with fleurs-de-lis ornaments on the facets ; and the foot is six-foiled, with i h c in one panel.

Marks : leopard's head uncrowned ; maker's mark I. K. in long square ; black letter small m for 1867 ; lion passant ; head of Victoria.

PATEN : is plated and gilt ; diameter 6 inches with a cross in a circle at the bottom.

FLAGON : is small ewer-shaped with a cross lid.

ALMS DISH : is of the same set, plated and gilt.

CORNARD, GREAT. S. ANDREW.

CUP : is modern medieval ; height $7\frac{1}{4}$ inches ; diameter of bowl 4 inches. It has a boss in the stem, pierced with tracery ; and a sexfoiled foot, with a cross in one panel.

Marks : leopard's head uncrowned ; maker's mark T. P. in long square ; a capital R in shield ; lion passant.

PATEN : 7 inches in diameter ; and is inscribed in the middle "Cornard Magna in Suffolk."

Marks : Britannia ; maker's mark M. A. in circle ; court hand letter P for 1710 ; lion's head erased.

ALMS DISH : a handsome brass one, with deep basin ; a large cross in the centre. On the rim is inscribed, in black letter capitals "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

CORNARD, LITTLE. ALL SAINTS.

CUP : has a plain bowl, a boss in the stem, and a round foot. Height 6 inches, diameter of bowl $3\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

Marks : leopard's head crowned ; maker's mark I W, with an oval object below, in shield (as in Cripps in 1655) ; court hand F for 1643 ; lion passant.

PATEN : $7\frac{1}{4}$ inches in diameter, and is inscribed in the middle : "Cornearth parva, 1708." Marks : Britannia ; maker's mark G I, with a star above, in a trefoil (for John Gibbons, as in Cripps in 1706) ; court hand M in plain shield for 1707 ; lion's head erased.

FLAGON : plated. Height 12 inches, with a cross on the top.

ALMS DISH : also plated. Diameter 9 inches, C. P. and T. L. on the edge.

EDWARDSTON. S. MARY.

CUP : 10 inches in height, diameter $4\frac{1}{4}$ inches, and has a sexfoiled bowl with I. H. S. in rays upon it.

Marks : leopard's head uncrowned ; maker's mark $\begin{smallmatrix} J A \\ L A \end{smallmatrix}$ with a crown in the centre, in a quatrefoil ; small Roman g in cornered square shield for 1831 ; lion passant ; sovereign's head.

Inscription below :—"Presented by Charles Dawson, Esq., 1839."

PATEN : a sexfoil in shape. Diameter 8 inches, with a foot, and has the same I. H. S. in the centre, and the same marks and inscription.

A second PATEN or ALMS PLATE : is 8 inches in diameter, and has the same inscription and the same marks, except that the date letter is a Roman S for 1833, and the maker's mark is R. H. in long square.

FLAGON : in height 11 inches, and has I. H. S. in rays on the side, and the same inscription without the date of the year.

There is also an ALMS BOWL of brass, with inscription in black letter on the rim :—"It is more blessed to give than to receive."

ALTAR CANDLESTICKS : a beautiful pair is in use at this church. They are tall, with triangular feet, and of French design, but they are not of silver.

GLEMSFORD. S. MARY.

Here are two sets of Church Plate. The older set is now used at a Licensed Mission Room at Finsted End.

CUP: is $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, and has a slightly bell shaped bowl with I. H. S. in rays upon it, and a hexagonal stem and foot.

Marks: leopard's head crowned; small black letter d for 1678; lion passant. Inscribed:—"Glemsford."

PATEN: $4\frac{3}{4}$ inches in diameter, with I. H. S. in rays in the centre, and has a foot. The marks and inscription are the same.

A second PATEN or ALMS PLATE: is 7 inches in diameter, with a similar I. H. S. It is very thin, and has been repaired.

Marks: leopard's head is just discernible; inscription the same.

The modern plate is of good medieval design.

CUP: height $9\frac{1}{4}$ inches; diameter of bowl $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches. It has a boss in the stem and a hexagon foot, with cross on the base.

Marks: leopard's head uncrowned; small black letter s in cornered square for 1873; maker's mark $\begin{smallmatrix} H & E \\ W \end{smallmatrix}$ in a trefoil; lion passant; head of Victoria.

Underneath is an inscription in black letter:—"In memoriam Henrietta Coldham, Rachel Sophia Coldham, H. B. Faulkner (S. Mary's Church, Glemsford, 1873.)" PATEN: diameter $6\frac{3}{4}$ inches; has a floriated cross in the centre, and the same marks.

Inscription on the back of rim:—"In Memoriam H. C. and R. S. C. Glemsford Church, from the Rev. H. B. Faulkner."

Henrietta Coldham died March 9, 1863.

Rachel Sophia Coldham died August 20, 1866.

FLAGON: is ewer shaped, with i h s on opposite sides, with a cross between, and a sexfoil base.

Height $14\frac{1}{2}$ inches. The same marks and inscription as the Paten.

The Rev. H. B. Faulkner, M.A., of Westgate House, Long Melford, by Will directed that after his decease, a memorial, in value £50, should be placed in the Parish Church of Glemsford, in memory of his daughter Henrietta Coldham, and his grand daughter Rachel Sophia Coldham, wife and daughter of the Rev. George Coldham, rector of Glemsford. Accordingly in Jan'y. 1874, the Executors supplied the foregoing service of Plate to the church.*

HARTST. ALL SAINTS.

CUP: height 6 inches; diameter $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches; the bowl is bell shaped, and has a band of foliage round it. The only marks are a fleur-de-lis in two places. It may be Elizabethan or rather later.

Marks : leopard's head crowned ; maker's mark O: in cornered square ; black letter capital R in shield for 1674 ; lion passant.

PATENS : (1) with a foot. Diameter $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

Marks : leopard's head crowned ; maker's mark W D conjoined, with a pheon below, in a heater shield ; Italic k in plain shield for 1627 ; lion passant. The foot is inscribed 1628.

(2) second PATEN or ALMS DISH : diameter $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches, with a corded edge.

Marks : Britannia ; maker's mark Ro in a heart shaped shield, for Hugh Roberts, Newgate St, as in Cripps under 1697 ; court hand C in plain shield for 1698 ; lion's head erased.

Underneath is an inscription :—"Wilhelmus Alston, Churchwarden of Newton, 1628." This piece seems to have been restamped in 1698.

FLAGON : is a tall plated ewer, probably of the time of George III.

SOMERTON.

CUP : height $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches ; diameter of bowl $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches. It is slightly bell shaped, and has a knop in the stem. On the bowl is I. H. S. in rays, and an inscription ;—"The Gift of the Right Hon^{ble} Mary, Viscountess Blundell to Somerton Church, November 20th 1756."

Marks : leopard's head crowned ; maker's mark F. K. in italic capitals (probably Frederick Kandler) ; date letter apparently a black letter capital F for 1761 ; lion passant.

The Rev. W. Rotherham, Rector of the parish, has kindly supplied the following particulars of the donor. "The lady was the widow of Montague, Viscount Blundell, and was buried at Somerton 15 Dec. 1756. Her husband, the last male of his line, was also buried at Somerton 30 August of the same year. He was descended from Francis Blundell, who was born at Great Linford, Bucks, a successful adventurer in Ireland during the reign of James I. He was appointed to Stewardship of the possessions of the dissolved monastery of Bury Edmund's, which he held from 1613 to 1615; and this connection doubtless led him to purchase in 1622 of Edward Copley, the Mar and Advowson of Somerton, with extensive property in it and adjacent parishes. The present representative of the family is the Marquis Downshire, who is the Patron of the living."

PATEN: 6 inches in diameter, with I H S in the centre, and has the same marks as the Cup, and was given by the same donor, and appears by a Terrier.

ALMS DISH: $12\frac{3}{4}$ inches in diameter, and has the same device and marks, and also the same inscription. In the church chest there are also a Pewter FLAGON; and a DISH; which has the usual mark X, with an anchor above, and a device with the name of Henry Sewdley

STANSTEAD. S. JAMES.

CUP: 6 inches high; diameter of bowl $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches. The bowl is bell shaped, with a circular band of rows of short lines. The foot is round. It has one mark only, a fleur de lis; and is probably of Elizabethan date.

The COVER has a knob of foliage, but is of more modern make, and apparently not silver.

PATEN: diameter 9 inches; has a high foot.

It is inscribed on the face in capitals:—"TO THE GLORY OF GOD AND IN MEMORY OF ROBERT MAPLETOFT ESQ, BY SUBSCRIPTION 1857."

The marks are those of electro-plate or some such material: (1) T W in long square; (2) an object like the figure 3 in a circle; (3) a tall ewer with handles; (4) apparently a vase; (5) a stag (?) trippant to the sinister.

FLAGON: plated, and 11 inches high; stoup form; and has the same marks and inscription.

ALMS DISH: also plated; diameter 12 inches; and has the same inscription and similar marks, except that one may be a shuttle.

SUDBURY. ALL SAINTS.

CUP: a very fine Elizabethan, with an excellent modern duplicate, gilt inside, with paten shaped covers.

Height $6\frac{3}{4}$ inches; diameter of bowl $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches.

The bowls are deep and have two bands of foliage, the stem and base are moulded.

The old Cup has no marks, the other has: leopard's head; maker's mark E. P. in long square; a capital black letter T in shield for 1854; lion passant; head of Victoria.

The Covers are also gilt, and have similar bands of foliage, and the same marks.

ALL SAINTS, SUDBURY.

The feet of the PATEN COVERS are evidently preserved from the old Elizabethan Patens. They are supported on four S shaped bearers, and are roughly inscribed:—"ALL SÂNTES."

PATENS : diameter 9 inches ; have raised foliage an inch wide on the rim ; and no foot.

Marks : leopard's head crowned ; maker's mark W. C. in long square (as in Cripps in 1758) ; black letter capital F for 1761 ; lion passant.

FLAGON : ewer-shaped, and richly embossed with floral devices.

Height $11\frac{1}{4}$ inches. On the side is a cartouche, containing a lozenge of arms : argent, a fess embattled between three owls (Theobald) ; impaling, gules, on a chief argent, a lion passant, of the field (Brooks ?).

Marks : leopard's head crowned ; maker's mark T. W. in script letters in square ; black letter capital B in shield for 1757 ; lion passant.

Underneath is an inscription:—"The Gift of Mrs. Elizth Theobald to the Parish of All Saints, Sudbury, Suffolk, 1757."

SUDBURY. S. GREGORY.

The Plate here is a handsome modern set.

CUP : silver gilt ; height $7\frac{3}{4}$ inches ; diameter of bowl $4\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

The stem has a boss pierced with tracery, and lozenge facets. On the compartments of the sexfoiled base are the letters of the word + I . E . S . V . S .

Marks : leopard's head ; maker's mark T. P. ; black letter Roman capital Q in shield for 1891 ; lion passant.

Underneath is an inscription:—" + St. Gregory's Church, Sudbury, a Thank-offering from M. S. S. Whitsun Day. A.D. 1892." The donor was Mrs. Sykes.

PATENS : (1) silver gilt, without a foot. Diameter $6\frac{3}{4}$ inches. In the centre is the Agnus Dei in an octofoil within a circle.

On the rim is inscribed in Lombardic capitals:—" (+). Lamb . of . GOD . have . mercy . upon . us."

(2) is silver, not gilt. Diameter 5 inches. On the rim is a cross flory.

Marks : leopard's head ; maker's mark $\begin{smallmatrix} E & C \\ B \end{smallmatrix}$; small black letter S for 1973 ; lion passant ; head of Victoria.

FLAGON : is glass, silver mounted. Height $11\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

SPOON : for a strainer ; is $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches long, and has the same marks, except the letter t for 1874.

SUDBURY. S. PETER.

Here is a very fine service of modern plate, of the best design.

CUPS : a silver gilt pair, of medieval shape. Height 9 inches, diameter of bowls $4\frac{3}{4}$ inches. The stems have bosses with pierced tracery, and lozenge facets ; the bases are of sexfoil shape, with i h c in a compartment.

66 CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK. DEANERY OF SUDBURY.

Marks : leopard's head ; maker's mark I. K. in square ; black letter small b in cornered shield for 1857 ; lion passant ; head of Victoria.
" Presented by Edmund Stedman, Bellevue, Sudbury."

PATENS : a pair, gilt, $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches in diameter, without feet. They are sunk with a sexfoil, containing i h c, and have the same marks as the Cups. On the rim of one in Lombardic capitals is "✠ Dñe Dñus noster quam admirabile est Nomen Tuum in universa terra." On the other, "✠ Sit Nomen Ejus benedictum in secula ante solem permanet Nomen Ejus."

(3) not gilt. Diameter 7 inches, and has a plain circular depression. The marks are the same.

ALMS DISH : an extremely fine piece of work, silver gilt. Diameter 13 inches. It is deeply sunk with a ribbed depression ; the lowest part has a band across it, with ornamental work above and below, and on the band is inscribed in lombardic capitals "SVS PETRVS AP," over all are large cross keys in saltire, with foliated wards and handles. Round the rim is inscribed in lombardic capitals, "✠ Introitū in Domum Tuam in holocaustis, reddam Tibi vota mea." The marks are the same as before.

Underneath is an inscription in black letter :—" + This Offertory Basin, together with other altar plate, and the stained glass of the principal East window, was given to the Church of St Peter, Sudbury, by E. and E. G. Stedman of Bellevue, A.D. 1857."

FLAGON : fine silver gilt, ewer-shaped, of the same set, 14 inches high, ornamented with engraved foliage and corded mouldings.

SPOON : is a strainer, 6 inches long, with corded stem and twisted handle.

The older silver CUP and PATEN of this church was exchanged in 1862 for a set of similar design to the above, but smaller : to be used for private celebrations.

CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK.

DEANERY OF THEDWASTRE.

The Church Plate in this Deanery is of similar character to that in the adjoining Deaneries of Thingoe and Horningsheath, and exhibits generally an Elizabethan Cup with arabesque band (sometimes degenerating into a series of parallel "hyphens") and Paten of corresponding date, which at Badwell Ash, Drinkstone, Hesselst, Hunston, Norton, Rougham, and Woolpit serves as cover to the Cup. The Flagon, if any, is of later date. The chief exceptions to this general character are, in the first place, at Elmswell and Gedding, where the ancient vessels have disappeared, and more fashionable ones have been substituted, and, in the second place, at Rougham, where there is a stately set of Cup and Cover, two tankard-shaped Flagons, and Alms Dish, made in London in 1683, and presented the same year by Sir Robert Davers, Bart. In several Churches there are additional pieces. At Beyton, for instance, there is a modern Cup given by the late Rev. F. H. Turnor Barnwell, under the circumstances detailed in the following note, which accompanied it, and which is preserved in the plate chest.

Mr. Barnwell, a clergyman of antiquarian tastes, resided in Bury S. Edmund's, and his services were frequently requisitioned by the clergy of the neighbourhood in cases of illness, or absence, sometimes involving journeys of considerable distance, as in this case, Icklingham being eight, and Beyton five and a half miles from Bury.

BURY, MARCH 21ST, 1840.

Mr. Turnor Barnwell, who has always visited Beyton with great pleasure, felt very much hurt when, on returning from Icklingham to that parish on Sunday afternoon January 12th, he was much too late for the Church Service. This was owing to the change of horse at Bury—having been furnished with an animal, unable to travel at a reasonable rate. In having neglected to foresee and provide against this delay—he, however, deems himself to have been not without blame. To those who well know his punctual habits, the chagrin and vexation thus occasioned to his mind must be apparent. To make a mere verbal apology on the occasion savours strongly of the indifference of what is called “the New School”—the disciples of which he heartily despises, and thinks proper to make a second apology by presenting the accompanying Cup with very respectful remembrance to the Rector and Parishioners.

To the Rev^d Mr. Clarkson, Beyton.

Requested to be communicated to the Parishioners.

He was related to the John Turnor, who gave the Langham Flagon, and whose arms, as there represented, differ from those of Turnour, Lord Winterton, in the fers-de-moline being azure, instead of sable, but this may be an engraver's error. In the cases of this Flagon, and of the goblet shaped Cup at Woolpit there are discrepancies between the date letter, and the engraved date. Plate marked with the fleur-de-lis, and that only, is to be found at Badwell Ash, Beyton, Hessett, Hunston, and Rattlesden.

CHARLES WILLIAM JONES, M.A.

Pakenham Vicarage.

ALMS DISH: metal. Diameter 9 inches.

BEYTON. ALL SAINTS.

CUPS: (1) Elizabethan, bell shaped, has a band of intermittent lines round the bowl, with upright vertical line molding above and below on the stem, is twice marked with a fleur-de-lis.

Height $4\frac{3}{4}$ inches; diameter 3 inches; depth $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches.

(2) plain, bell shape. Is thus engraved:—Ecclesie de Beyton in agro Suffolciensi hocce pocillum, Domini cœnæ in usum, dedit Fredericus Henricus Turnor Barnwell Clericus. 1840.

A note from Mr. Barnwell dated Bury, March 21st, 1840, and addressed to Mr. Clarkson the then Rector, accompanies the above, stating that he presents it by way of apology for having been too late for service on the 12th of January, owing to an inefficient horse.

Height $6\frac{3}{8}$ inches; diameter $4\frac{3}{8}$ inches; depth $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

Marks: leopard's head; maker's mark (?); old English capital D for 1839; lion passant; head of Victoria.

REMARKS ON THE HISTORY OF EDUCATION IN EAST ANGLIA.

BY REV. JOHN JAMES RAVEN, D.D., F.B.A.,

and Honorary Canon of Norwich Cathedral.

The very name of education is terrible to many people. Some associate it with divers pains and penalties of a corporal description, from which, as will be seen, it was no more free in earlier days than at present. With others it seems to be connected with aching heads and sorrow-stricken faces, the fruitless calling on a defective memory to supply something to satisfy the stern presence of inspector or examiner, or to manufacture matter for an untouched sheet of paper on which the candidate's eye vaguely rests. Much of this, however, is mere bogey-talk, and those who see educational machinery at work know that neither class-room nor examination-hall have exerted much noxious effect in damping the natural spirits of young people.

A few remarks on the progress of education in East Anglia from the formation of the See of Dunwich to the Reformation, may, perhaps, find a fitting place in the Journal of our Society.

In all great towns of the Roman Empire schools arose, teaching geometry and arithmetic, grammar and metre, rhetoric and logic, according to the wants, or the tastes of the inhabitants.

France, so much nearer to the great Imperial centre, was better illuminated and warmed by the rays which emanated from it, than could have been the case with our island, cut off from the whole globe; and perhaps no town in France, in spite of its casualties, exhibited the elastic power of education so fully as that now obscure place, Autun. The half-rebel Tetricus burnt the place down in 270, but Constantine rebuilt it, and restored its studies. In 406 the Vandals burnt the new city, and only eight years afterwards it suffered another conflagration at the hands of the Burgundians. Here they established their first kingdom, which underwent a rude shock and another combustion from the Huns in 451, but recovered itself, and apparently flourished in the arts of peace till 539, when the Franks once more reduced the city to ashes. The first Burgundian kingdom then perished, to revive in a new form after the lapse of three centuries, but the Burgundian name survived; and to us of East Anglia the survival of the name has a peculiar interest, for in 630, in the interval between the two Burgundian kingdoms, came the Burgundian Felix to Dunwich, first Bishop of the East Angles, and a zealous promotor of all sound learning as well as religious education.

The troubles which had disturbed East Anglia, about the time of the assassination of King Erpenwald, had driven his half-brother Sigebert out of the country. He had sojourned in Burgundy. Here he had been baptized, and on his return to East Anglia, in imitation of the Schools of Burgundy, he established a School for youth to be instructed in letters. In this he was helped by Felix, sent into East Anglia, to work amongst his people, by Archbishop Honorius. Amongst the labours of Felix was the organization of this school, which he furnished with masters and teachers after the manner of Kent, whence he had lately come.*

It was well that the torch of learning should have been lighted over Western Europe, for while this School, probably at Dunwich, was struggling into existence, the flames of the Alexandrian Library proclaimed that terrible destruction of the records of the past, from which the literary world can never recover.

* Bede. Eccl. Hist. III. 18.

At that ancient and venerable church called the "Old Minster," close to Southelmham Hall, connected by tradition with the name of the Burgundian Apostle, may be seen the wall which stretches nearly across the building and forms the narthex at the western end, where the audientes were allowed to stand and listen, but not to join in the prayers, or receive the benediction.

The names of the successors of Bishop Felix are to us names and little more ; nor is it till we come to the earlier Benedictine Houses and Colleges of Priests that any glimpse of the advance of education is discernible, and thus it is merely local. Such houses there were at Hadleigh, Hoxne, and Stoke-by-Nayland ; and such a College there was at Bury S. Edmund's, before the body of the Martyr-King was entrusted to Benedictine hands.

Afterwards, when houses of various orders were founded all over the district, each house would have its School, and thus no neighbourhood was destitute of teaching. Promising boys were eagerly picked up, often with the intent of attaching them to the order to which the house belonged, and when trained as far as local effort could carry them were passed on to the Universities.

Thus Robert Grosseteste, born at Stradbroke in 1175, must surely have come under the notice of John of Oxford, Bishop of Norwich, then living at Hoxne, only three miles off ; and probably the choice of Grosseteste's University was owing to the Bishop's grateful memory of the place of his own education. It appears that he owed nothing to the patronage of nobles, for we have on record a remarkable answer of his to Henry III., who asked where it was that he, a man of humble birth, had acquired that nature which enabled him to train young nobles. "In the house" replied he, "of Kings greater than the King of England, because I learned the manner of life in the house of King David, King Solomon, and others, by understanding the Scriptures."*

The well-known Chronicle of Jocelin of Brakelond, a monk of Bury S. Edmund's in the time of Richard I. and John, gives no hint of any instruction except to the novices, though the period of his Chronicle runs beyond 1198, the foundation of the New School at Bury; and the earliest detail with which I am furnished is that from the College of Priests at Mettingham. Here fourteen boys were "boarded, clothed, booked, washed, &c.," to quote from Squeers's prospectus. Their work would begin at 5 a.m., so that without much fear of going wrong the imagination may picture them with noses blue with cold and pinched fingers, all but the newest tiros with their heads shaven in the first tonsure, learning to read, write and cast accompt, to copy and illuminate manuscript, and to master prick-song on the ancient tonic sol-fa system of the four-line staff and the moveable ut. We can think how they had to run the gauntlet from the unlettered churls of their own villages, who, like another critic of the period, would say :

"For methinks it serveth to no thing,
All such pevish prykeryd song."

Those who will be at the pains of reading through such lists of medieval incumbents as may be found in Suckling, will be struck at the number of local names, and may reflect how many of these men probably received their education under the secular priests of these Colleges. Yet there was a fitfulness and uncertainty about the work. Secular Priests were bound by no vow of poverty, and could retain their private property. Should it happen that no member of the College cared to be troubled with the management of boys, the work could be done by deputy. This brings us to the grammaticus or graduate in Grammar. When John Wilby became master of Nettingham College, in 1403, xvjd. was paid to the Schoolmaster of Beccles for the schooling of two clerks.

* "Sanctæ memoriæ Robertum Cognominatum Grodsted dudum Lincolniensem Episcopum, Regi Henrico quasi admirando cum interrogavit, ubi Noraturam didicit, quâ Filios Nobilium Procerum Regni, quos secum habuit Domisellos, instruxerat, cum non de nobili promapia, sed de simplicibus traxisset Originem, fertur intrepide respondiisse, In Domo seu Hospitio Majorum Regum quam sit Rex Angliæ; Quia Regum, David, Salomonis, and aliorum, vivendi morem didicerat ex Intelligentia scripturarum."

The grammaticus had to be qualified for his work, to graduate at his University, and to be licensed by the Bishop of the Diocese in which he was to serve. Among other subjects in which the Schoolmaster had to approve himself was Corporal punishment, on which light is thrown by the Bedell's book of the University of Cambridge:—"Then shall the Bedell purvey for every master in gramer a shrewde Boy, whom the master in gramer shall bete openlye in the Scolys, and the master in gramer shall give the Boye a grote for hys labour, and another grote to hym that provydeh the Rode and the Palmer* etc." It was not, we fear, without reason that Erasmus in his Praise of Folly calls the grammarians of his day the most miserable of all men, growing old as they labour surrounded by herds of noisy boys, and poisoned by the closeness of the atmosphere, whose only solace seems to have been in the tortures and terrors at their command. If the pain of a service is an estimate of its value, these men doubtless rendered great service to the state. The raw material was of the most raw. We have a picture of the typical Suffolk school boy in Lydgate's account of himself. He was born in that village about 1370, and from his after-connection with Bury S. Edmund's, it may be that he was educated at the School attached to the Abbey, but from his mentioning his frequent lateness and his lies to excuse himself, it may be surmised that he was under some village grammaticus. He stole apples, spared neither hedge nor wall to get at grapes, made mouths at people "lyk a wantoun Ape," gambled at cherry stones, was late to rise, dirty at meals, chief shammer of illness, with other unfavourable points. If this be the future poet, what is to be said of the general crew?

*The "Pancake" as boys used to call it, was a small disc of polished wood, three or four inches across. In the middle, flush with the wood, a small piece of steel was let in, which had a square hole in its centre. To this disc was attached a handle some ten inches long. When it was slapped down on the outstretched palm the square hole in the steel raised a blister.

At Cambridge, indeed, these grammarians were held in little esteem. Their one subject extended over three years, and could not vie with the wider Arts work, which occupied seven years. Thus we find that the University authorities were expected to attend the funerals of Arts masters or scholars, but not those of grammarians. No grammar degree has been granted in Cambridge since 1542.*

Yet an instance remains of a higher value set upon their labours. It is in the episcopate of the Northumbrian, William Alnwick. He had been serving this large diocese seven years, and after three more years' service he was translated to Lincoln, then far the most laborious See in the realm. There is an entry in the Norwich Institution Book, No. 9, to the following effect:—that on the 10th of October, 1433, the Bishop conferred the government of the Grammar scholars in Harleston on William Kyng, priest; and the remission of fees recorded in the margin implies that the post was not a very lucrative one.†

There is no mention of any building or endowment. Harleston boasted of no religious house, and the Cluniacs at Mendham were not the people to trouble themselves about this work or any other, seeing that two petitions were lodged against them at Rome about this time for neglect to serve two of their dependent chapelries. Probably William King and his predecessor before him kept school where they could, and earned a scanty living from their pupils' fees.

These two or three instances, Beccles, Lydgate's School, Harleston, may be regarded as typical. Further investigation would probably show but few of the towns of the diocese without a grammar master in the fifteenth century. The number of eminent lawyers as well as churchmen, successful merchants, and even Lord Mayors from the Eastern Counties are a testimony to the success of local rudimentary training. Shakespeare's Sir Hugh Evans in the 'Merry Wives of Windsor,' and Town Clerk of Chatham in Henry VI., may be mentioned as grand sketches of the schoolmaster of the period, a little transferred from Elizabeth's days to an earlier time, after the manner of the great Dramatist.

Books existed, sparsely of course; but Lydgate's account of himself as "straunge to spelle or reade," proves the assertion. The horn-book, containing the alphabet prefixed by the cross, and thus called the Criss-cross Row, or in some instances with the letters arranged in the form of a cross, the consonants in the vertical part, and the vowels in the horizontal part, must have been extensively used. Spurdens, who wrote in 1840, says that his Horn-book, of the latter description, would be a thing for a museum. The middle of this educational implement was made of wood, covered on one side with the alphabet on paper, and on the other side with the crucifix, both sides being protected with a sheet of horn, and fixed in a wooden frame with a handle. It is feared that there is no instance earlier than the days of Queen Elizabeth to be found.

Some of our older bells have alphabets on them, and it may be that these were used educationally. They are found more in other counties, the only instance in Suffolk being a fragmentary K L N O M at Barsham.

Certainly the art of letter-writing was widely diffused in the fifteenth century. The Paston letters give us not only the epistolary correspondence of that gentle family, but also communications from seamen,* bailiffs, and other dependents. They are generally expressed with clearness and vigour, and deserve the epithet of business-like.

Simple money calculations are properly carried out.

In the Boke of Brome, which the lamented Lady Caroline Kerrison printed for private circulation, we have the accounts of Robert Melton, who seems to have been a steward of the Cornwallis family at Sturston, carefully kept, and, if we may judge from the use of the first personal and possessive pronouns, written in his own hand. This, however, is not universal. In the Cratfield Parish Papers, which were transcribed by the late Reverend William Holland of Huntingfield, we find at times the cost of keeping the account, a function performed by some local priest, and this is a common occurrence elsewhere.

Thus far concerning the three R's. The religious instruction of the Middle Ages, as traceable in East Anglia, is too important and extensive a subject to be entered upon at present.

LONG MELFORD HALL.

KENTWELL HALL, LONG MELFORD

ANNUAL EXCURSION.

GREAT WALDINGFIELD, LITTLE WALDINGFIELD, LONG MELFORD.

The Annual Excursion this year was one of the most enjoyable events of the kind in the long history of the Institute. It is true that some old ground was gone over, but such a country as that around Sudbury, so rich in features of antiquarian and ecclesiastical interest, seems always to have something about it ever new and fresh. The Waldingfields this year constituted the comparatively new districts to be explored, and it was at the lesser Waldingfield that the Excursionists dined, and the beautiful Kentwell Hall, the magnificent Church at Long Melford, and that noble building which is the pride of the county, Melford Hall, were left as a choice dessert and most thoroughly was it enjoyed. The weather was glorious, and a party of ladies and gentlemen having a love of the beautiful in nature, and art, and in Antiquarian objects, linking the present with the long past, could not fail to enjoy themselves in such pleasant circumstances as those in which they found themselves surrounded.

The day, which by the way was the 20th of June, 1895, was as happy as it was long. Sudbury was the rendezvous, at which place trains from Ipswich and Bury were timed to arrive at about twelve o'clock. Vehicles were in readiness at the railway station, and the party soon found themselves en route for Great Waldingfield. It was a delightful drive through a charming country. The air was fresh, the birds full of song, and the landscape had assumed all the glory of flowery June.

On reaching Great Waldingfield, the Rev. C. A. Stokes, M.A., the Rector, gave the visitors a cordial welcome, and conducted them to the fine old parish church, of Decorated and Perpendicular character. The reverend gentleman gave a most interesting and valuable address explanatory of the chief features of the church.

The address seemed to awaken deeper interest in the fine old church, the rector having called attention to various points which might otherwise have escaped notice.

After a short stay at Great Waldingfield, the breaks and wagonettes were again speedily filled, and the several pairs of horses were soon off in the direction of Little Waldingfield, where the church, like the one in the parish just visited, is dedicated to S. Lawrence, to whom more churches are dedicated in this part of England than any other. The details of this church, which is also in the Perpendicular style, were described by the Honorary Secretary.

There was only time for a hasty visit to the Priory, now the Vicarage, but the excursionists could not, of course, do otherwise than avail themselves of the kindness of the Vicar, the Rev. A. N. Wilson, in having signified his willingness to allow of an inspection of the stone vaulted crypt, and its specially well-preserved roof.

By this time all the ladies and gentlemen were ready for dinner. Mr. Mark Rampling, of the Swan Hotel, had provided a very substantial luncheon in a handsome marquee, and the choice viands served were partaken of with hearty appetite. After luncheon Mr. Freeman Wright said he was sure they would not wish to separate without thanking the Honorary Secretary for the time and attention he had devoted to the details of that day's excursion; and also Mr. Thos. Harrison who had rendered such valuable assistance in connection with the day's proceedings. The toast was received with the utmost heartiness, and the Rev. Francis Haslewood, in rising to make acknowledgment, was most cordially greeted. In a few brief remarks, the Honorary Secretary expressed the great pleasure he experienced in doing what he could to enhance the interest and usefulness of the Institute.

As already intimated the second half included the more recherché items of the day's programme. The first drive was to where there is so much to feast and satisfy the eye of the most ardent antiquary. The first halt was at Kentwell Hall, a moated dwelling, and in some respects one of the most interesting to be found in East Anglia. It is at the present time occupied by Mr. H. Turton Norton, who very kindly threw open the principal rooms of the whole mansion quite unreservedly to the thorough inspection of the visitors, who as they went through the principal apartments could not fail to be impressed by the greatness in wealth and position of the gentlemen, who centuries back, when Long Melford was the chief centre of one of the most important industries of the country, occupied the grand old Suffolk home. The beauty of the Hall has been preserved through the centuries unto the present time. Much has been written about Kentwell Hall at different times as one of the most remarkable buildings in this favoured corner of Suffolk. Dr. J. E. Taylor, one of the most valuable members of the Institute, came forward at the call of the Honorary Secretary, and delivered one of his entertaining impromptu addresses. Alas! this is a service he will never render again, having since been called to his long home. He was for many years the bright and shining star at the annual assemblies of this time-honoured antiquarian organization. He always imparted to the proceedings a life, and a vivacity most refreshing. He was in his element in searching out and explaining the beauties of the fine old ecclesiastical buildings of the county, and the moated homes of old England. It is hard to realise that his familiar form and his cheery presence will never again be conspicuous amongst those, who in future years, go on like enjoyable excursions to different parts of East Anglia. At this time when he came forward in obedience to the request of the Honorary Secretary, he did so with tottering steps, for his bodily strength was evidently failing him. His mind, however, was as clear and sparkling as ever. He reminded the ladies and gentlemen who gathered around him, as eager listeners have done on many previous occasions, that they had that morning travelled through one of the most interesting parts of old England, a district where 300 or 400 years ago the woollen industry was in as great practice as that of cotton now is in Lancashire and Yorkshire. At that time a great number of wool producers came over from Flanders,—men who were skilled in the art of shearing, fleecing, and preparing the wool,—to the towns and villages, and he noticed many old Flemish names over the small shops in that parish. So in this angle of the Isle we had a great deal of current history which could be marked out in many ways so as to be both entertaining and instructive. Even the trees along the avenue had a history connected with the greatness of the people who resided there in early times. They were limes or linden trees which were introduced by the gentry who lived in that and similar places in the neighbourhood, the groves and avenues of which were common in that locality. In the shape of a building like that in which they were assembled there was current history, the very shape of an Elizabethan or Jacobean House and the ground plan suggesting something. If the house were taken down, and nothing but the foundation left, it would be seen that it was in the form of the letter "E". That was the character of all later Elizabethan houses. The Jacobean house was a modification of that, and Pigeon-houses of eight gables were common in some of these old halls. The people who came over here were addicted to pigeon keeping, and dove keeping, in which the gentler sex indulged. The mansion in which they were standing was a magnificent specimen of an old English Hall. There was something about a place like that which made you feel almost as if you were standing on holy ground. It had a roof under which had dwelt many a distinguished man who had left an honoured name in English history; and one could pause for a few moments in a building like that and feel that it was a privilege, as well as a pleasure, to be enabled on that glorious summer afternoon to assemble there, and be allowed to look over the principal apartments.

The visitors then proceeded to inspect the fine old portraits, the beautiful paintings, and the other numerous objects of deep antiquarian and historical interest with which the walls and elegant apartments are enriched, and Mr. H. H. Almack added greatly to the pleasure of the guests, as well as to their stores of information, by an entertaining and conversational description of the family portraits and other features of the mansion, which had attracted the special notice of some of the more enthusiastic members of the Society.

More treats were in store for the party, who had so much before them that every moment in one place seemed precious. The grand old Kentwell Hall was left with reluctance, but it was well-known that to afford strangers amongst the party any idea at all of the magnificence of the renowned Long Melford Church, and those who had been on the hallowed spot before to revive the sensations which they experienced when they first saw the building, some time would have to be spent in going the round, internal and external, of the sacred edifice. The rector, the Rev. G. St. John Topham, M.A., was equal to the occasion. His plan for making the most of the occasion was both acceptable and profitable. He did not prepare an elaborate paper—who would care to undertake such a colossal task, when to do anything like justice to the subject volumes would have to be written! He went from point to point round the exterior bee-like and sucked honey out of the sweet architectural and historical flowers which abound. He was surrounded at each point by eager listeners, and when he had done as much in the way of perambulation as time would permit, he invited his followers to the interior of the church, and mounting the pulpit pointed to the chief features of the splendid building in the pleasant chatty style indicative of close study of the history of the church. He next conducted the party round the church and ever and anon stopped to explain objects as to which information was specially solicited. One of the many matters he brought under special notice was the great care that had been taken with the fragments of ancient coloured glass which had been replaced in the East window with striking artistic effect.*

Advantage was taken of the opportunity to pay a short visit to the Hospital founded by Sir William Cordell in the year 1573.

The last item in the programme, but by no means the least in importance, was a visit to Melford Hall, the Suffolk seat of Rev. Sir W. Hyde Parker, Bart., who had most kindly given his consent to allow members to inspect this, one of the finest moated mansions in the kingdom. The Honorary Secretary read a carefully prepared paper by the owner.

At the request of the Honorary Secretary, Dr. J. E. Taylor once more came forward, and he said he felt it a privilege to say a few words in another grand old English home in a district famous for its buildings of great beauty and historical interest. He had travelled in many parts of the world, particularly in the wilds of Australia, and seen the shanties of the squatters in the other sides of the world and heard the expressions of affectionate regard with which they spoke of the old home, and since he had returned he never came to a place like Melford Hall without feeling that our English homes were indeed sanctified spots, and as English people they could but be proud of such places as these. Men who built and lived in those houses bore names which were historical; they were grand men, distinguished for their philanthropy, piety, and virtue.

The visitors lingered about here to the last moment, Sir W. Hyde Parker and Lady Parker personally conducting the party round the elegant apartments, and in other ways doing their utmost to make the visit enjoyable. Tea was partaken of in the beautifully panelled hall, and before leaving the Honorary Secretary moved a very cordial vote of thanks to Sir William and Lady Parker for their great kindness in receiving the members of the Institute that afternoon. The proposition was received with the utmost cordiality.

Once more the excursionists mounted the wagonettes and were driven to Melford station, in time to catch the 7.18 p.m. train for Ipswich via Bury.

A large number of ladies joined the party, and evidently enjoyed the long drive through the country rich in scenery. Amongst them were:—Mrs. Haslewood, Miss Grimsey, Mrs. Wm. Biddell, Miss Mason, Mrs. F. J. Fish, Mrs. Henry Miller, Mrs. H. J. Wright, Miss Nunns, Miss E. P. Youell, Miss Gurteen, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Hopper, and others. The gentlemen included:—Rev. E. GREAT WALDINGFIELD CHURCH.

BY REV. CHARLES ALBERT STOKES, M.A.

This Church, in the Archdeaconry of Sudbury, and Diocese of Ely, is dedicated to S. Lawrence. The Tower, Nave, and Aisles were probably rebuilt by John Appleton at the end of the 14th century. Of John Appleton there are further memorials existing in the adjacent parish of Little Waldingfield. When the above-named portions of the Church were rebuilt, the old chancel was left standing; but the chancel was rebuilt, as will be described further on, by the Rev. W. P. Baily, Rector, and his family, in the years 1865 to 1869.

By the beginning of the present century the Church had fallen into considerable disrepair; it was partially repaired at a cost of £500 raised by rate in the years 1827–29. Rev. Francis Cresswell, Rector.

The north Chapel was re-seated, re-floored, and re-roofed in 1875, by John Braithwaite, Esq., of Nottingham, at a cost of £200.

In the years 1876–7 the Church was thoroughly repaired under the direction of the Rev. Francis J. Braithwaite, rector, and a committee, at a cost of £1663, raised by subscriptions. Mr. Hakewill, of London, was the Architect. The works done consisted of the following:—The Roofs of the Nave, Aisles, and Tower were taken off, and after being made thoroughly sound, were re-placed and re-covered with lead. The roofs are of English oak. The nave Aisles and Tower were re-floored and re-seated. The walls and floors of Tower were made sound. West arch was re-opened, clerestory windows re-glazed, bells re-hung, and one re-cast. These works were executed before the re-opening of the church A.D. 1876. In 1877 the tracery of the aisle windows was made good and windows glazed. The south and west doors were repaired, and a new north door, an exact copy of the old one, was hung. South porch was re-roofed, paved, and glazed, and stone work repaired. These details of the restoration of the church will serve to show that the original character of the parts dealt with was preserved.

GREAT WALDINGFIELD CHURCH.

Nothing has been said so far as to the details of the re-building of the chancel in 1866 and following years. The architect was Mr. Butterfield: the cost including the stained glass in the windows was about £1000, undertaken by the rector, the Rev. W. P. Baily, and his family. The walls were new faced inside and out; new east and south window frames, new tiles to floor and oak sittings; new roof.

There were traces left of an Early-English east end in a broken "roll" under the window. The present east window is of dimensions of another old window found bricked up in the wall. There was a "priest's door" on the south side of the chancel, and a screen went across the arch north of the chancel. The priest's door was removed to the school, but the screen is not in existence now, though it appears to have been used as a vestry screen after the re-building of the chancel. The old oak string A.D. 1100 was replaced in the chancel. The south window before the re-building was a narrow square-headed window made up of odds and ends from the old church.

The reredos was given to the church by Misses Emily and Louisa Baily: the marbles, of which it is formed, having been collected by them from the ruins of temples in Rome and elsewhere. They were made into mosaics in Rome by Saleri, and placed in their present position under the direction of Mr. Butterfield. The oriental alabaster forming the cross in the reredos came from a small red granite temple near the Sphinx; the granite in the slabs over the credence, from mount Sinai; the syenite from a fragment of the statue of Rameses II., Thebes. Over the credence there is the text—

“The Lord alone shall be exalted in that day and the idols He shall utterly abolish.”

The rails in the chancel sittings and under the chancel arch were from the chancel of S. Michael's Church, Cornhill, London ; a church of Sir Christopher Wren : they are supposed to have been by Grinling Gibbons. Sir G. Scott ordered them to be removed, as out of character with his improvements at S. Michael's, and they were bought by the Rector. The old altar rails, which used to form three sides, are now in the rectory.

The pulpit was placed in the church at the time of the chancel restoration. It is of oak and walnut. There was a corresponding lectern, but that is now in Little Waldingfield Church.

The Font is old (with the exception of the cover), but there is no record of its history. The ends of the nave benches are also old, and are worth attention, as also the string-course in the clerestory with its ornaments.

The vestry was rebuilt in 1887, at the cost of Rev. F. J. Braithwaite ; Mr. Fawcett, architect. Cost £340. There was a sacristy, but this was pulled down many years ago.

On the south wall (exterior), over the clerestory, there is an inscription in black-letter ; over the west door (exterior) there were carvings relative to the martyrdom of S. Lawrence ; conspicuous among them is said to have been “the gridiron” ; but about sixty years ago the workmen, when their master was absent, chipped the carvings away, and their place is now filled with plaster. There appear to be no emblems of the martyr within or without the church.

The brass lectern was given by Mrs. Braithwaite, in memory of her husband (Rev. F. J. Braithwaite, rector). It is an exact copy of one placed in Little Gidding Church, by Nicholas Ferrar. There is an original lectern, very similar, in Southwell Minster.

Other rectors commemorated in the church are Thomas Boyce, Francis Cresswell, these by tablets. The west window preserves the memory of William Percival Baily, rector. There are also monuments to members of families once resident in the parish.

The painted windows may need a short description.

The organ is the gift of Mrs. Braithwaite.

The five bells as existing previous to 1800, were in that year recast into six and rehung: in 1876 one was recast again. The peal now consists of six bells. Weight of tenor 13 cwt.

The clock was made A.D. 1786.

It may be interesting to note that during the present century a sum of at least £4,500 has been spent in repairing and furnishing the church; or a sum of £1,000 since 1865.

The Registers of the church date from A.D. 1539 and are continued to the present day, with occasional gaps of not more than three or four years.

The advowson belongs to the Master and Fellows of Clare College, and came into their hands in 1727. The patron before this date was the above-named William Powle. Mr. John Powle was patron in 1657, and was the son of Mr. Paul Powle, and baptized 1608, in this church.

The manor of Waldingfield Hall was granted to Geoffrey Carbonel in the 13th century. Sir Robert Crane was lord of the manor in 1639.

RECTORS OF GREAT WALDINGFIELD.

BY REV. FRANCIS HASLEWOOD, F.S.A.

1293—1305 WALTER DE DITTON is the first rector whose name is on record.

Davy, Add. ms. 19,078, thus refers to him 22 E. 1. (Pr. III., 595), 34 E. 1. (Fin. Norf., 89), "Walter de Ditton, parson of the Church of Gt. Waldingfield."

1313 WILLIAM AYLMER, instituted 6 Id. June 1313, ad præs. Eliz. relict Dni. Thæ Carbonell. (Reg. I., 52.)

1460 RALPH BARTON, ad præs. ejusd, 5 Mar. (Reg. XI., 25.)

1474 JOHN PAULE (p. mut cum Marteley Wig), ad præs. Thomæ Barton sen de Webley Heref. 2 Ap. (Reg. XII., 106.)

1481 DAVID CLER, ad præs. ejusd. 7 Feb. (Reg. XII., 124; XIV., 93.)

- 1508 RICHARD EDEN is the first name mentioned in the oldest parish register, upon the fly-leaf of which is entered a list of Rectors. It is headed thus:—Rectores ecclesiæ de Waldingfield magna in com. Suffolk: and divided into columns:—Tempus quo inceperunt: per quot años continuauerunt: quo anno mortui aut cessarunt. Richardus Eden fuit rector tempore valuationis Beneficiorū viz xxvi^o Hen. octavi. Anno Dñi 1535. He was instituted 24 Feb., 1508, upon the presentation of Robert Apulton, Esq. (Reg. xv., 125.)

He is mentioned in Valor Ecclesiasticus, Hen VIII. (Vol. III., 451, ed. 1817.)

This Richard Eden appears to be the LL.B. who had the rectory of Gestingthorpe, Essex, 7 Ap., 1514, resigning same 1516; was also warden of the college of S. Gregory, Sudbury, and surrendered that college to the crown 9 Dec., 1544. He died before 9 Ap., 1551. (Athenæ Cant., i., 104; Le Neve Fasti, II., 330; Newcourt Rep., i., 81; II., 280.)

- 1545 ROBERT POLEY, the next upon the list, fuit Rector An^o Dom. 1545, anno xxxvii Henrici Octavi. This name is omitted by Davy.

- 1551 EDMUND LYSTER was instituted July 1, 1551, upon the presentation of the assigns of John Spring, Esq. (Reg. xviii., 17.) There is no note respecting this rector, beyond the name in the parish register.

- 1561 JOHN CHETHAM, upon the presentation of John Spring, Esq., was instituted August 12, 1561. (Reg. xix., 55.) This name is omitted on the fly-leaf of old parish register.

JOHN HOPKINS was buried here October, 23, 1570. (Wood's Ath., i., 63.)

1571—1584 THOMAS CROOKE, alias CROKE, was instituted April 3, 1571, being presented by Edward Colman, B.D. (Reg. XIX., 168.) According to the parish register he held the rectory eleven years. (vndecem annos.)

1581 THOMAS LOVELL, upon the presentation of the same patron was instituted February 15, 1581. (Reg. xx., 74.)

The list before alluded to states that he entered upon the benefice 1582, and held it viginti et octo annos (28 years) till June 10, 1610, that being the day of his burial.

1610 SAMUEL HYNDE was instituted June 21, 1610, upon the presentation of John Hynde. The parish register states he was rector for ten years and upwards (decem annos et amplius), holding it till May 18, 1621. (Reg. xxii., 26.)

1621 WILLIAM CLEMSON was collated June 8, 1621, being presented by Paul Powle de ffelsham.

(Liber Institutionum com. Suff. at the Record Office, Ser. A, Vol. III., f. 73.)

The list at Great Waldingfield gives particulars thus :—Wyllyam Climson An^o Dñi 1621, held it octo annos, ceased to be rector October 29, 1629.

1629 NICHOLAS BLOXHAM, was instituted August 7, 1629, upon the presentation of the king. The character of this rector has been viewed very differently ; being thus named in the “First century of Scandalous Priests,” 1643 :—The Benefice of Nicholas Bloxam, Parson of the Parish of the church of Great Waldingfield, co. Suffolk, is sequestered, for that he is a common drunkard and inticer of others to that beastly vice, a common swearer by great and bloody oaths, and hath bin very carelesse and negligent of his Cure, seldome preaching above once a month,” &c., &c. (John White, p. 23.)

He appears to have been sequestered as “vicious.”

John Walker, however (II., 208), in his Sufferings of the Clergy, takes another view of him, saying :—" he is another of those singled out by White for his century as a common swearer, &c., suspected of incontinency, and, which was, no doubt the greatest of all his crimes, a contemner of the Parliament Fasts."

The name of this rector is not found in the parish register, possibly due to the fact that several lines have been erased, apparently on purpose.

Georgius Bradshaw, M.A. curat, juxta Nicholas Bloxha, Rectoria 1661.

1632 ANDREW SANDELANDES is described on the fly-leaf of the parish register, beginning 1539, as " the proud audacious Parson of great Waldingfilde 1632."

He was instituted June 8, 1632, the benefice being in the gift of the crown through simony, " ad præ. dni Rg. rañe Symoni. His signature occurs in 1638.

" Andreas Sandilands, A.M., habet literas Patentes de presentatione ad Rectoriam ecclesie parochialis de Waldingfeild magna, &c., vacantem Simonie spectantem, 4 Jan., 1630. (Rymer Foedera, by Robert Sanderson, ed. 1732, Vol. XIX., p. 257.)

GEORGE PEPPEN, M.A., inductus in Rectoriam at Waldingfield mag. No year given.

1657 SAMUEL NEWSON, upon the presentation of Sarah Powle, was instituted in 1657.

The parish Register states :—" Samuel Newson Rector dy'd in March 1694 who had been a very Careless Incumbent about 35 years." He was buried here March 2.

1667 SIMON HOW was presented by the king by reason of Simony, and instituted March 12, 1667. (Reg. Reynolds.) (Lib. Inst., B. II., 226.)

1695 WILLIAM POWLE, M.A., (Pem. A. B., 1676 : A. M., 1680,) was instituted May 27, 1695. (Lib. Inst., Ser. B., Vol. v., 292.) Also held Little Waldingfield, and zealously discharged his sacred functions for thirty three years, until his death September 14, 1727, aged 72. H

This note is found "Gulielmus Powle A.M. anno 1695 hujus Ecclesiæ solus suæ Gentis & Rector & Patronus obiit 14th die Sept^{bris} 1727 æta: 72, per 33 annos Rector vigilantissimus."

Rectory bought by Clare for £1000, A.D. 1729.

"Rev. W^m Powle Rector buried Sep. 18, 1727," at Great Waldingfield.

William Powle, of Kent, admitted of Pembroke Hall, Camb., 1673; A.B. 1676; chosen Fellow 5 Mar. 1678; curate of Framlingham several years for Dr. Coga. Resigned his Fellowship 26 May, 1688. (Cole's MS. L 221. Loder's Framlingham, p. 278.)

1727 RICHARD PEPPEN, M.A., inductus in Rectoriam at Waldingfield Mag., upon the presentation of John Powle, gent. was collated January 31, 1727. (Lib. Inst. Ser. c. i., 306.)

"Rev. Mr Richard Peppen, buried Oct. 22, 1742." (Burial Register.)

1742 RICHARD JACKSON, M.A., was collated January 10, 1742, in the patronage of Clare Hall, Cambridge. (Lib. Inst., Ser. c, i., 270.)

In the parish register, "Rich^d Jackson A.M. Rector induct 1742 ob. Oct. 1759."

He was buried here as appears by the following:—"Rev. M^r Richard Jackson bu. Oct. 27, 1759."

His eldest daughter, Jane, married at Weston, Rev. D. S. Wayland, vicar of Kersey, Lincolnshire. (Ips. Jour., May 3, 1817.)

1760 THOMAS NEALE, was instituted January 2, 1760, in the same patronage. (Lib. Inst., c., i., 270.) Was buried at Great Waldingfield, Feb. 10, 1772.

1772 BENJAMIN WRIGHT, M.A., was instituted Mar. 7, 1772, to this parish, which he held ten years. He was buried here January 31, 1782.

The monument in the church says that he died January 24, and was aged 56. (Lib. Inst., c., i., 308.)

- 1782 THOMAS BOYCE, M.A., Clare Coll., Camb., B.A. (7th sen. opt.), 1769; M.A. 1772; Fellow. Was instituted May 31, 1782, and remained rector twenty-four years, holding it with Acton. (Lib. Inst. c., i., 309.)

The list of rectors thus mentions him :—"Thomas Boyce, A.M., Rector, inducted 1782, obiit Oct., 1806, having been 24 years rector of this parish, and vicar of Acton." There is a tablet to him in the church. In the Burial Register, it is stated he died Oct. 31, was buried November 8, 1806, aged 59. (Gent. Mag. LXXVI., 1083.)

Hisdau. Sophyd. at Finchly. Englishman, Feb. 22, 1824.

- 1807 FRANCIS CRESWELL, S.T.B., Clare Coll., Camb.; B.A. (4th wrangler) 1785; M.A. 1788; B.D. 1796; Fellow and Tutor; was instituted March 24, 1807, enjoying the benefice thirty-five years. (Gent. Mag., LXXVII., 662; Lib. Inst., c., i., 271.) He died Nov. 17, and was buried here November 24, 1841, aged 78 years. There is a tablet in the church.

In the churchyard, West of the church, is a stone with the initials—F. C. 1841, J. C. 1870.

The parish register gives Francis Creswell, bur. 24 Nov., 1841, aged 78. Jane Creswell, of Melford, late of Great Waldingfield, bu. Feb. 5, 1870, aged 91.

- 1842 HENRY KIRBY, M.A., Clare Coll., Camb.; B.A. (4th sen. opt.) 1817; M.A. 1820; Fellow; held the rectory seventeen years. He was born December 8, 1794; inducted 7 May, 1842; died January 29, and was buried here Feb. 5, 1858, aged 64.

There is a monument in the churchyard to his memory.

- 1858 WILLIAM PERCIVAL BAILY, B.D., Clare Coll., Camb., B.A. 1830, M.A. 1833, B.D. 1854; Deac. 1832, Pr. 1833; formerly Fell. of Clare 1830–49; Chap. to H.M., Hampton Court Palace 1849–58; appointed rector 1858, being inducted May 9; died 3rd, and was buried here August 10, 1871, aged 64. There is a monument in the churchyard to his memory, as well as the West window.

During his rectoriate the chancel was restored and beautified.

- 1871 FRANCIS JOSEPH BRAITHWAITE, M.A., Clare Coll., Camb. ; B.A. (21st wrang.) 1860, M.A. 1863 ; Fell. of Clare Coll. 1861-72 ; Deac. 1861, Pr. 1862 ; Curate of S. Peter's, Wisbeach, 1861-65 ; Dean and Prælector of Clare, 1865-72 ; Proc. 1871--72 ; was inducted Dec. 4, 1871. He was Rural Dean, and held the rectory seventeen years. During this period the roof of the church was restored and new seating introduced. This was in 1873, the rest of the building being put into excellent repair in 1877. His last work was the erection of a new vestry in 1888, and gift of the organ.

The Rev. F. J. Braithwaite was born 5 Oct., 1837, and married Mary Hopkinson, daughter of the late Rev. John Hopkinson, Rector of Alwalton, Hunts., and domestic chaplain to Earl Fitzwilliam. He left five sons and two daughters :—

Francis Joseph Braithwaite, born 5 Dec., 1872, now first Lieut. 47th Regt.

Mary Elizabeth Braithwaite, born 23 Ap., 1874.

William John Braithwaite, born 1 June, 1875, Scholar of Winchester, and of New College, Oxford.

Margaret Dorothea Braithwaite, born 8 Ap., 1878.

Thomas Mills Braithwaite, born 8 Sept., 1880.

Richard Edmund Braithwaite, born 2 July, 1883.

Humphry Layland Braithwaite, born 25 June, 1885.

The Rev. F. J. Braithwaite died 28 May, 1889, and was buried June 1, at Great Waldingfield, aged 52 years.

The handsome brass eagle in the church is to his memory, also a granite cross at the North-East corner of the churchyard.

- 1889 CHARLES ALBERT STOKES, M.A., Clare Coll., Cam.,
B.A. (11th wrangler) 1872; M.A. 1875; Deac.
1876; Pr. 1877; Fell. of Clare Coll. 1872-89;
C. of Tisbury, Wilts., 1876-78; Upper Tooting,
1879-82; V. of Warmfield, Yorks., 1882-89.

Mr. Stokes was born August 25, 1849, and married Fanny Ridley Ellington. They have two daughters:—

Frances Mary Stokes, born August 28, 1880: and Leonora Lucy Stokes, born January 21, 1883.

The Rev. C. A. Stokes was instituted and inducted into the Rectory of Great Waldingfield, October 23, 1889.

LITTLE WALDINGFIELD CHURCH.

BY REV. FRANCIS HASLEWOOD, F.S.A.

This Parish, which appears to be mentioned in Domesday, is situate in the Hundred of Babergh, and Archdeaconry and Deanery of Sudbury.

The Church, dedicated to S. Lawrence, presents an imposing appearance as entered by the West door beneath the Tower. It is of the Perpendicular order, and consists of Chancel, Nave with clerestory, two aisles and porches. Though now in good condition the fabric bears traces of the hand of the spoiler, this is specially the case over the arches of the Nave, the stone bosses, probably at some time representing angels, having been roughly hewn flush with the walls. The arcades of the Nave, five in number, are plain pointed, supported by clustered pillars, there being five clerestory windows on each side, one over each arch. The Nave roof is of good construction. It will be noticed that the West window is not in the centre of the arch. This is by no means unusual in ancient churches : many archæologists being of opinion that this was due to the orientation, marking the period of the year when the building was erected ; others suppose that it may possibly have a symbolic reference to the reclining head of the dying Redeemer. We might fix the date of the Church at the latter part of the fourteenth, or the beginning of the fifteenth century. The porch on the north side is of brick, and of course much later in date, but nevertheless good of the kind. The doorway is now built up. A star may be observed over door. The same may be seen at Lavenham and All Saints, Sudbury, showing some connection with the De Veres, Earls of Oxford.

The Tower is the principal feature of the building, it is square and embattled, having pinnacles at the four angles representing priests in their vestments, but their heads are gone.

The East window is large but modern. In the South West corner of the Chancel is an oblique opening into the South Aisle, now closed, however. There are other remains of pre-Reformation times as the piscina in the chancel, and a second in the North aisle; the entrance and also steps to the Roodloft are worthy of notice.

The ancient furniture and fittings of the church are well deserving of attention; the Font is octagon, but unhappily sadly mutilated by ruthless hands, probably during the Cromwellian period.

One bench with poppy headed ends has survived several centuries. There are also two ancient chests, one elaborately carved is at present in the North porch, now used as a vestry; and the other stands at the West end of the South aisle. The general appearance of the latter indicates great antiquity, the lid is circular, and this, as well as the chest itself, is banded together with iron-work.

Traces of an ancient chapel, or vestry, are clearly discernible on the North side of the chancel. A few fragments of ancient painted glass remain in the East window of the North aisle. The Jacobean pulpit merits attention.

There are some brasses remaining: the most ancient dating back as far as 1506, to John Colman, with Katharine his wife, with six sons and seven daughters. The inscription and evangelistic symbols are loose.

Orate pro animabus Johis Colman et Katheryne uxor ejus qui quidem Johis obiit vicesimo septimo die mensis January Anno Domini millimo quingentesimo sexto quorum animabus propicietur deus Amen.

This is reckoned a good example of a Civilian of the period, the tunic or gown reaches to the ancles, and opens in front: the lining is of fur, the sleeves are loose, with large cuffs beneath.

This Brass shows the gypcière or pouch which was attached to the girdle. Another example of this may be seen on the brass of Thomas Baldry, merchant, in S. Mary Tower Church, Ipswich.

A second brass is to the memory of Robert Appleton, 1526, with his wife, Mary, second daughter and co-heiress of Thomas Mountney, gent., partly covered. It is somewhat peculiar, and is also engraved in the book already quoted (ccxliii).

These Appletons were the ancestors of a family which has risen to eminence in America.*

There is also a small brass to a lady, with the arms of Brewse on a shield, the inscription is lost, but the date is about 1530.

Yet a fourth brass remains.

The inscription is :—“ Hic jacet Johanes Wyncoll Clothier qui obiit xij die Augusti, Anno dni M^lio cccccxliiij Cujus anime propicietur deus Amen.”

Among the worthies who have sprung from this village was Arthur Jackson, an eminent Nonconformist divine. According to Dr. Calamy he was a man of prodigious application, he studied 14 or 16 hours a day, at the University; and constantly rose at three or four of the clock in the morning, summer and winter, to redeem his time, and held it to the age of 73. He was minister of S. Michael, Wood Street. At the Restoration he waited at the head of the clergy to present a Bible to Charles II., when he made his triumphant procession through London. He suffered for conscience sake, being ejected from the living of S. Faith's, London, in 1662, and fined £500 and imprisoned for refusing to give evidence against Christopher Love, a divine of great note, minister of S. Anne, Aldersgate, and afterwards of S. Laurence, Jewry, who was beheaded on account of his allegiance to the king. Jackson said, "I fear I should have a hell in my conscience to my dying day, if I should speak anything circumstantially prejudicial to his life." Arthur Jackson died August 5, 1666.

* For Pedigrees of Appletons see “Memorial of Samuel Appleton,” of Ipswich, Massachusetts, compiled by Isaac Appleton Jewett, 1850. The volume, consisting of 184 pages, contains engravings of both Great and Little Waldingfield churches, also a shield of the arms of Appleton. The view of Great Waldingfield church shows its condition before the erection of the new chancel.

LITTLE WALDINGFIELD CHURCH.

CHURCH NOTES BY DAVY, September 10, 1827. (Add. ms. 19,078.)

The Church consists of a Nave, Chancel, and two Aisles.

The CHANCEL is 27 ft. 10 in. long, and 16 ft. 11 in. wide, covered with tiles and ceiled.

The Communion Table is raised one step, and railed off. The E. window is large, but modern. In the S. wall at the E. end is a Piscina.

In the N. window are some fragments of painted glass, among which are 2 circles, which may have contained arms. Against the N. wall, is fixed a funeral Helmet: the Crest, Appleton; out of a ducal coronet, sa. 3 pine apples, arg.

Texts of Scripture on the walls. In the S.W. corner, is an oblique opening, communicating with the S. aisle.

The NAVE is 57 ft. 5 in. long and 16 ft. 9 in. wide, covered with lead. The Pulpit stands against the 2nd pillar from the E. on the N. side, octagon, of carved oak, painted to resemble mahogany. The Font (now at West end) stands against the last pillar Westward, on the same side, of stone, octagon, the faces having figures sitting, and the emblems of the apostles. At the W. end is a small gallery (not now remaining), on the foot of which is, A.D. 1819; over it on the W. wall, the arms of Geo. I. with the date 1716. Texts of scripture are painted on the walls. Against the E. end, on the S. side, is a Hatchment of, Hanmer: Arg. 2 lions passant gardant, az. impaling Syer:—Gu. a fesse engrailed between 3 sea mews, arg. Crest. on a chapeau, gu. turned up erm. a lion sejant gardant, arg. The whole sa.

The Nave is separated from the aisles, by 5 plain pointed arches, on each side, supported by clustered pillars; and is lighted by 5 clerestory windows on each side, one over each arch.

The S. aisle is 52 ft. 5 in. long & 13 feet wide, covered with lead. The walls with texts of scripture. At the E. end, & on the S. wall, hangs a Hatchment of Hanmer as above, with the Arms of Ulster impaling Graham, or. on a chief, sa. 3 escallopa, arg. Dexter side sa.

The N. aisle is 52 feet 3 in. long & 13 feet wide, covered with lead. In the S.E. corner is the door leading up a turret placed there, for reaching the roof, and probably formerly for communicating with the rood loft. On the N. side of this doorway is a small niche.

Texts of Scripture on the walls.

The Steeple is placed at the W. end of the Nave; a large square embattled Tower of flints, with buttresses, & contains 5 bells, which are thus inscribed :—

- 1 Miles Graye made me 1617
- 2 T. Osborne fecit 1785
- 3 Jeames Edbvrn 1612
- 4 Jeames Edbere 1612
- 5 as 2.

There are 36 steps up to the Bells; dimensions of the steeple within side are 11 ft. 7 in. from N. to S.; & 12 ft. 7 in. from E. to W.

The doors of the aisles, have on the outside crockets, and finials, and the arches within.

In the N. wall of the Chancel, on the outside, E. of the door, which is now stopped, was probably a Vestry, or Chapel.

- 1893 ALEXANDER NEWTON WILSON, fifth son of the late James Wilson, Esq., of Inverness, N.B., born at Inverness, June 21, 1840. Marischal College. Aber. 1855; Deac. 1864; Pr. 1865; formerly Chaplain Lahore 1867-68; Nowshera, 1867-68; Ferozepore, 1868-76; Cashmere 1876 and 1883; The Gullies 1878; Ferozepore 1878-79; Jullundur 1879-80; Abbotabad 1880-82; Sealkote 1882-84; Mooltan 1884-85; Furl 1885-87; Vicar of Roade, Northants, 1887-91. Mr. Wilson married at Burton-on-Trent, Feb. 9, 1893, Alice, fifth daughter of the late Rev. T. C. B. Cornwell, M.A. (Wrang.) Em. Coll. Cam., Vicar of Geddington, Northants, and afterwards Rector of Scaldwell, Northants. They have one child, Alice Christina Katherine Wilson, born January 7, 1894.

It would appear that the Vicars in former times were not resident from lack of a suitable Parsonage House. This want, however, has been supplied by Miss Hanmer. The Vicarage, known as the Priory, is an ancient building with a stone vaulted crypt, and good timber roof. It may formerly have been a Clergy House of some sort or other, for there was an "Ambry" in the refectory before the restoration. It has been suggested that by its extreme simplicity it belonged to "Dominicans."

The Curates who served Little Waldingfield were as follows, their signatures appearing in the Parish Registers:—

1761	John Hyde
1763	Thomas Straker
1764	John Caldow
1766-70	Thomas Heckford
1771—1773	N. Smalley
1774	J. Carlisle
1787—1815	W. Blowers

The non-residence of the minister is spoken of in severe terms in Davy's ms. collections, where affairs are represented as being in a very deplorable condition in 1820. (Add. ms. 19,078.)

BRETtenham AND THE WENYEEVE FAMILY.

BY REV. CHARLES JEPSON BETHAM, M.A., R.D.,

Rector of Brettenham, and Honorary Canon of Ely.

In some notes on Brettenham read before the Society on occasion of its excursion meeting 1889, and subsequently printed in Vol. VII. of its "Proceedings" (II. p. xxviii), mention is made of two shields remaining on the piscina, and two externally on the east wall of the church: one of each, a chevron simply, representing the Earl of Stafford, who became Duke of Buckingham, and was Patron of the living; the other two, "one simply a bend, the other a cross with billets on it, which the writer has been unable to identify, even with the aid of that learned antiquary the late Mr. Almack, F.S.A., of Long Melford."

It seemed to the writer of great importance to identify these shields, if possible, as likely very materially to assist in settling who was the chief Landowner and Lord of Brettenham, of whom no local tradition or record remains, prior to the Wenyeves, or Weniffes, or Winnieffs, in the 16th century. Such Landowner would probably be, with the Patron, the builder of the chancel early in the 15th century.

The shield with the simple bend, and no colours, remains unknown so far; but the very valuable and interesting reprint by Mr. Haslewood (in our Vol. VIII., Part 2. pp. 121, et seq.) of Sir Richd. Gipps' 'Antiquitates Suffolciences,' has enabled me to recover some account of an ancient Family in Brettenham, and of our Church, by means of the other hitherto unrecognized shield, the plain cross billeted. It seems important also, beyond the individual case, to put this before the readers of our "Proceedings," as a moderate study of the reprint above may enable other enquirers about old buildings to discover the remote families of renown, whose Churches and Halls we inherit, whose 'bones are dust, whose swords are rust,' but whose lordly or knightly Arms are with us after many centuries, whether in stone or glass, in wood or brass. If any such enquirer, by study of Haslewood on Gipps, or otherwise, can furnish information as to whom our shield with a simple bend pertained, we shall be grateful. Meantime to revert to what is laid bare; viz: the owner of the Arms 'a plain Cross billeted.' Sir Richard Gipps under "Fellbridge," has "a 3rd Brother came into Suffolk, purchased Playford in Carlford Hundred, built the Church.* . . . His Issue Sir John F. left Margery his sole Daughter and Heir marry'd to Tho. Sampson, Esq., of Brettenham, about 8 Hen: v. (1421), and dy'd 2 Hen: vi., 1423." Eagerly we leap forward twenty-five pages to "Sampson," and read "This family was very ancient, of Knts Degree, and seated first at Brettenham in Cosford Hundred, and afterwards at Playford, by marriage with Fellbridge: where, after 3 Descents, Sr Tho: Sampson left Margery his sole Daughter and Heir marry'd to Robert Felton of Shottely about 15 Hen: 7 (1500)."

"They (Sampson) bare g. a plain Cross arg. billeted sab." This is the very shield on E. end of Brettenham Church, whose owner we hunted for, and the discovery seems to fix the date of our Chancel. In the 'Notes' referred to the writer ventured to date it between 1400 and 1432, and perhaps it may now be put 1421—1423, when Sampson married the daughter of Fellbridge, the Church

* Sir Geo. Fellbrigg ob. 1400, has a mont. in Playford Church, in full armour.

Builder of Playford, on whose death he left Brettenham for his Wife's home.

So far it has not appeared when the ancient Sampsons first held Brettenham, nor when they ceased to hold it; nor is there any blending of the Fellbridge Arms (given in Gipps) here, though there may be at Playford. It may be noted that Gipps says the Sampsons were "very ancient, seated first at Brettenham"; yet in a local paper (East Anglian Daily Times, January 1st, 1895), there is mention of "The Peasants' Revolt of 1381," "There were Sampsons in the Samford Hundred in those days, and one of them Thomas Sampson, of Harkstead—it would seem a man of good social position—was the chief leader in this part of the county. On June 15th, Thomas put forth a manifesto to the people of Ipswich and the adjoining hundreds commanding them on pain of death to join his band on the following Sunday morning. His appeal seems to have been responded to with alacrity retribution came swiftly Sampson managed for a time to elude the grasp of the law at length he was captured condemned to death, but was pardoned finally by the king, and his goods, which had been forfeited, were restored to him." The name "Sampson" is still occasionally met with, but not apparently in these neighbourhoods. They were followed in all probability by the family Sir R. Gipps describes as Winnieff, which is to this day the local pronunciation of the name, in two syllables as if no e was in it, though it is spelt Wenyeve from 1650, and Weniffe in 1611—who probably acquired it by purchase, as the first on record is only styled "Gent," though a MS. given to the author by an Ipswich antiquary,* names Thomas Wyneffe or Wenyefe† as living at Brettenham 31 Hen. vi. (1452-53) and 4 and 13 Edw. iv. (1464 and 73), and his son Thomas ob. 18 Edw. iv. (1478-79) devised lands in Brettenham called King's Croft, a name not now known here; his son Edmundus Weneive affords no date, but he left three sons, all living 13 Hen. VIII. (1521-22), the eldest, John W., at Brettenham; Robert, of Aldham; Richard, of Elmsett; John W.'s son and h. was Thomas W. of Brettenham, Gent., who married Mary, daughter of Edward Grimston of Rishangles, Esq., and by her left George W., the first to appear in our Register, in 1588, 30 Eliz:—thus “M^r George Wenif & Mary Barker were married y^e tenth of June;” she was sister of Robt. Barker, of Parham, Suffolk, Sergeant-at-Law, and a 2nd wife; the first wife Elizth. Bolton having left an only d. Elizth, who married Dr. Joseph Hall, Rector of Hawstead, and subsequently the famous Bishop of Exeter, and of Norwich. All this time the Wenyeves remain “Generosi;” but having obtained the Hall and Manor, in the 16th century probably, they made higher alliances, until they become “Armigeri.” George Wenif, and Martin Briggess, the Rector, at the end of that century about equally supply new names to the Register, until on the 12 Calends of June (1597) the “pastor fidelissimus migravit ad coelos,” and “M^r George Weniffe gen: was buried 20 Nov. 1619, his wife M^{rs} Mary W. 23 March, 1620,” and was succeeded by his son Edward Weniffes, M.P. during part of the great Rebellion; he died in 1658, and on his mural tablet (B) we first find their coat of arms, showing that they had passed from Generosi to Armigeri, for they have no arms attributed to them in Gipps: they bear ‘Argent, between a chevron, vert, engrailed sable, three escallop shells sable, or possibly proper, for the colour is a little uncertain. Ed. W. was succeeded by his son (afterwards) Sir George Wenyeve, M.P. for Sudbury, whose first wife deceased about six months after her father-in-law, as is recorded on slab (C).

* Mr. W. P. Barker.

†For Pedigree of Wyneve, of Brettenham, traced to 4 Edw. iv., see Harl. Vis. of Suffolk.

No slab or tablet remains in memory of Geo. Weniffe but in Register as above, their first monument being a small brass, mounted in a red marble slab, 4 ft. 2 in. × 3 ft. 8 in., flat against the South wall of the Chancel, its edge resting on the floor; the inscription and the encasing stone, seem to indicate that the brass was originally affixed to a plainer stone covering the grave;

it is now placed horizontally again, close to the East end of the Chancel, at Brettenham, and reads—

He was twenty-one years old by the Register; and his death made Edward Weniffe his brother, the subject of next tablet, to be the heir. The inscription was probably written by (Bishop) Hall the husband of his elder half-sister.

The next mural Tablet, surmounted by the coat of Arms above described, is that of Edward Wenyeve (now the eldest) son of Mr. Geo. Weniffe, whose character is thus glowingly set forth.

The Register gives the sequel of this long inscription :
 ' Elizabeth, the widow of John Wenyeve, Esq^r, was buried
 April 29th, 1751, Affid^t received ' (of burial in Woollen).

* N.B. called Dudley, Lord North, on tablet (D), which agrees with the Peerage.

This daughter of Christopher Musgrave, Bart., being 80 years old, had probably survived all her 9 children except Christian, the wife of the Rev^d Edward Wenyeve, for Henrietta died April 24th, 1748, at 31 years; Ann is not recorded.

We must return from this long memorial to other members of the family of Sir Geo. Wenyeve, in whom the Estate vested ultimately, though it is not clear who succeeded after Sir George's death in 1706; for though John (E) is called second son, he was only the second son of the second wife, and there was a son George (and a daughter) by the first wife Frances Dudley, of whom it was with difficulty any trace could be found, and this George was all important being the Father of Rev^d Edward W. (1698-1754), who was the Father of John W. (1736-1801), commonly called "the old Squire," a generation ago, to whom the Estate reverted in 1775, on this event chronicled in the "Bury Post" of that time:

"1775, Saturday, May 6th."—"A few days since died Edward Wenyeve, Esq., of Brettenham Hall, aged 91 years, by whose death a very considerable estate devolves to John Wenyeve, Esq., of Bury."

Kirby, in 1764, says of it, "which is now vested in Edw^d W., Esq., son of Sir George W., by Christian, daughter of Sir Dudley (afterwards Lord) North. Temp. Car: II." This Edward is described as "youngest son," on his gravestone; by his side lies "North Wenyeve, Esq^r one of the sons &c.," died January 17⁴⁷/₄₈, aged 70; there were (of this second marriage of Sir George) an earlier Edward,-Dudley,-John (E.),-North,-Edward (nat. 1684 ob. 1775), and Charles died young; and 9 daughters, one of whom is Frances, implying that the Frances of the first wife was dead; fifteen in all, many of whom died in infancy. What had become of the real eldest son George, the son of Frances, whom we could not discover at all for some time, though the following inscription will show his importance, was he at Bury, where his grandson John was in 1775?

On a large blue slab, West of the Altar.

Here lieth the body of Edward Wenyeve, Clerk, only son of George Wenyeve, Esquire who died July the 24th 1754

Aged 56 years.

Also of Christian his wife
Daugh^r of J^{no} Wenyeve Esq
Died March 27 . 1783
Aged 83.

After much search an entry was discovered of the baptism of this George, the heir male, and also of his sister Frances, the two children of Sir George Wenyeve, and of his first wife, Frances Dudley. They are written in a very small hand of the period on the margin of the parchment, which has subsequently been bound, so that they are almost concealed in the middle of the book ("Geo. bap^d March 3, 1567, & Frances, 23rd March, 1658, when the mother died the same day,") as if they had been privately baptized by some *Royalist Priest, and could not be entered till the Restoration, when entries of following years had left no proper space for them; it is evident of course that Frances must have been baptized almost "in lecto."

The Rev. Edward W., only son of this George, graduated in 1720, at S. John's College, Cambridge, of which he was a Fellow, and when he married his cousin Christian, d. of John W. (E), Feb. 17, 17⁸¹/₃₂ he is described as Vicar of Stetchworth in Cambridgeshire; he was Rector of Brettenham, 1733-39, in the latter year moving to the Rectory of Chelsworth. It appears unlikely that he held the estate though he was the Head of the Family, or, at his death in 1754, it would surely have passed to his son John, who was kept out of it till 1775, when Edward, the youngest son of Sir George W., died, having outlived

* In the Register of the bordering parish of Kettlebaston, 1644 and following, occurs this entry, "During these 5 years the times were very troublesome, & there was no settled minister, so this book was not regarded."

his nephew the Rev. Edward, who was 14 years his junior, by 21 years. As Rector, Squire or not, there are signs that the Rev. Edward had a sense of his duties and responsibilities, and he probably revived decency and order after the havoc or indifference of the usurpation, and the Orange succession.

His son's gravestone bears this inscription.

Also of

George Wenyeve Esq^r

who died Oct^r 7th 1814

Aged 30 years.

Almighty God grant him a Crown of Everlasting Life, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

This distinct Prayer for the departed is notable, and, with the whole Inscription, probably emanated from the Rev. S. Cole, Rector 1798-1858, a warm friend of the Wenyeves in the years when the shadows were lengthening, for John and George were the very last male representatives of the once numerous and important family.

John Wenyeve Esq., was High Sheriff of Suffolk in 1784; he died suddenly at a meeting of the Book Club, or Gentleman's Society, at Bildeston, and was brought home a corpse in his carriage. His only son George never married, and was last seen in public, an invalid at 30, at the great rejoicings kept in Brettenham Park (as universally) for the Peace in the summer of 1814, which within twelve months was followed by Waterloo.

In the S. aisle of S. James's, Bury S. Edmunds, this memorial remains—

(H)

The Wenyeve arms on a lozenge.

In Memory of Mary Wenyeve who departed this life, Jan. 25th
1757

In y 23rd Year of her Age.

This was the daughter of Rev. Edward W. and sister therefore of the last John; when Edward died in 1754, probably his widow (died 1783) with her children retired to Bury until John came into the estate by the death of his great-uncle Edward in 1775.

The last record of them is on a marble tablet on the Chancel wall, Brettenham, where also were formerly three canvas hatchments with their escutcheon, and is as follows—

(J)

Sacred

to the Memory of Henrietta

The Beloved Wife of Lt-Colonel John Camac of the 1st Regiment of Life Guards who was the daug^r. of John Wenyeve Esq, & Mary his wife and sole heiress of her brother

George Wenyeve Esq^r. of Brettenham Park

she was born the 1st of Dec. 1786 and departed this life 2nd Sep^r. 1831 leaving two children

and John George Wenyeve Camac and her afflicted & grateful husband to deplore the loss of a most amiable and affectionate Wife and Mother.

Her son died in boyhood; her daughter married Edward Fenton, Esq., and has a son John Edward, baptized at Brettenham, August 3, 1849.

Though Mrs. Camac is described as sole heiress of her brother they had at least another sister, for this entry is in the Register, "James Marrie of the Parish of Chatham in the County of Kent, Bachelor, and Frances Wenyeve of this parish, spinster, were married in this church by licence 29th June, 1802, etc.," and it is witnessed by her mother “Mary Wenyeve,” who died 19th July following. Then the old family estate rapidly declined (though it continued in hand for half a century more) for the heir was only 17, his sister (Camac, later) but 15, and the Marries were in possession, having charges on it, which with antecedent burdens swallowed it up; family litigation followed, and the estate was finally sold by order of the Court of Chancery about 1853, and the twelve generations of Wenyeves who had lived at Brettenham, seven of them as lords, came to an end. Sic transit.

Yet there is one member of the family who ought to be recorded, though his exact place in it is not known. Browne Willis Esquire (in 1729) in his “Survey of the Cathedrals of Lincoln, Ely, Oxford, and Peterborough,” in his list of the Bishops of Lincoln, after Archbishop Williams, says his successor was—

“Thomas Winniffe, S.T.P. born at Sherborne, Dorset, Rector of Lamborne & Willingale Doe Co. of Essex, Dean of Gloucester & London, consecrated Feb. 6. anno 1641; though he had little enjoyment of his honour, living to see his Episcopal Palace at Lincoln demolished, & his other at Buckden, with all the Revenues of his See taken from Him & the Temporalties sequestered, plundered, & sold away by the prevailing Powers: after which retiring to Lamborne, where he had bought an Estate & the Advowson of that Rectory, he died, & was buried there with this long Inscription on his Monument of Black Marble, adorned with flat Columns, on which are his Arms impaling those of his See, being, A Chevron between three Escallops, with a Crescent for difference affixed to the N. wall of the Chancel which may serve for a Character of this excellent Prelate”*

On a Grave-stone is this, “Here lyeth the Body of John Wynniffe, of Sherborne, in the County Dorset,† Gentleman, Father of Thomas Wynniffe, Dean of St Paul’s in London, and Rector of this Church, He dyed the 27th of September A.D. 1630. Ætatis suæ ;

Continet hic Tumulus Patrem Natumque ; Parentis Ossibus abscondit Filius Ossa suis.
Buccina cum Sonitum dederit Suprema, Parenti
Carne revestitum reddet utrumque Deo.”

* The Inscription is in Latin, 21 lines of a quarto page, and gives a glowing picture—Cælebs Hunc in tantâ penuriâ lugeo † Yet the arms and the return to Essex seem to show they belonged to East Anglia.

In the parish Register which begins Anno 1582, is this entry : Mr. Thomas Wynniffe, Dean of S. Paul's, and Parson of this parish of Lamborn, buried September 26th, 1654. His office of Bishop entirely ignored. His successor at Lincoln after six years had passed, was the eminent Dr. Sanderson, eminent not only as a Divine, but as it is fitting to mention in this Journal, "he was greatly skilled in Antiquities and Heraldry:" he left a most valuable ms. record of the state of Lincoln Minster, its Monuments, etc., etc. (as did Dugdale) about 1641, before the 'Cromwelli flagitiosus grex' made havoc and 'brake down the carved work with axes and hammers.' In that sad time Bishop Wynniffe went to his Rest in meekness and poverty, of whom it may be said as of his kinsman Edward W. (tablet E.) who died four years after him 'In quo morum gravitas et vitæ probitas conspiraverunt feliciter, etiamnum felicius, nisi fata conspiraverant.' There seems to be an appointed time for Families as for individuals—when that time is past their successors can at least say 'Mercy and Peace be theirs.'

RULES OF THE

Suffolk Institute of Archaeology and Natural History.

1. The Society shall be called the "Suffolk Institute of Archæology and Natural History."

2. The object of the Institute shall be—

1. To collect and publish information on the Archæology and Natural History of the District.

2. To oppose and prevent, as far as may be practicable, any injuries with which ancient monuments of every description, within the district, may from time to time be threatened, and to collect accurate drawings, plans, and descriptions thereof.

3. The Institute shall consist of Ordinary and Honorary Members.

4. Each Ordinary Member shall pay an Annual Subscription of 10s., to be due in advance on the 1st of January, and shall be considered to belong to the Institute until he withdraws from it by a notice in writing to the Secretary. A donor of £5 shall be a Life Member.

5. The Officers of the Institute shall be a President, Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer, and Honorary Secretary, all of whom shall be elected for the year at the Annual Meeting.

6. The general management of the affairs and property of the Institute shall be vested in the Council, consisting of the officers, and of twelve members elected from the general body of the Subscribers, to retire annually, but eligible for re-election.

7. The Council shall meet to transact the ordinary business of the Institute, not less than three times a year. They shall have power to make Bye-Laws, appoint Committees and Local Secretaries, recommend Honorary Members for election by the Annual Meeting, supply vacancies that may occur during the year in their own body or among the officers, and to make arrangements for Excursions and other meetings. They shall also annually frame a Report and prepare the Accounts for submission to the Annual Meeting. At the Meetings of the Council, three to be a quorum, and the Chairman to have a casting vote.

8. The ordinary place of meeting shall be Bury S. Edmund's, but it shall be in the discretion of the Council to hold meetings at other places, if and when they shall think it advisable.

9. Each Member shall be entitled to free admission to the General Meetings of the Institute; and he shall also be entitled to the use of the Library, and to a copy of each publication of the Institute; but no copy of any such publication shall be delivered to any member whose subscription is more than twelve months in arrear.

10. The Annual Meeting shall be held in the month of April or May in each year, or at such other time as shall be fixed upon by the Council.

11. All papers presented to the Institute shall thereby be considered its property, and the Council may publish the same in any way, and at any time, that they may think proper.

REPORT, 1895—1896.

The Council have confidence and satisfaction in presenting their Annual Report—confidence in the earnest belief that experience in the past will stand the "Suffolk Institute of Archæology and Natural History" in good stead for the future, in carrying on of a work which is admittedly far-reaching in its beneficial results, and with satisfaction, because of the continued interest manifest in subjects antiquarian, archæological and historical. The year just closed will stand out somewhat conspicuously in the history of the Institute for one or two special reasons. The visit of the British Association to Ipswich, for instance, was an event in anticipation of which specific arrangements had to be made. It may perhaps be claimed on behalf of the Institute that the sequel to the efforts made justified the existence of such an influential local organization. It will not probably be deemed necessary that particulars should be given as to the steps taken to celebrate the advent of the British Association into East Anglia. It is sufficient to know that the gentlemen who allowed themselves to be appointed on the Committee, and the different Sub-Committees, entered into the preliminary and subsequent preparations with enthusiasm, and an evident determination to signalise the visit in a manner worthy an Institution having objects in view so much in common with those of the great Association itself. The number, extent, and value of the exhibits which filled the large apartment at the Ipswich Museum set apart for the occasion, and the abundant evidence of the desire to do the matter of hospitality to the best advantage, are true to their trust, and thanks are due to the donors and friends this part of the work is without respect wanting. Altogether the year has been such that the "Suffolk Institute of Archæology," etc., took its part in the acknowledgments of the honour conferred upon the district by the visit of the British Association.

Then another event tending to signalise the year's proceedings was the holding of the great Congress at Norwich. The requests made for the aid of the Institute in connection with exhibits of antiquarian interest was as far as possible cordially responded to with the view of enhancing the value and interest of the contributions sent on that occasion from various parts of the county, and displayed with so much artistic taste and effect.

The pleasant recollections of a long and enjoyable June day on the occasion of the Annual Excursion will doubtless be present to the minds of all who were enabled to join the happy party. Though some of the ground previously covered had to be re-traversed yet the neighbourhood of Sudbury was found to be full of archaic buildings, many of which had remained unexplored. To the various friends who read papers, and dispensed hospitalities, the thanks of the Institute are specially due.

The Council have endeavoured to arrange the present Volume in a way best calculated to promote the great object which the "Institute" has in view of promoting a veneration for all that is old and beautiful in architecture. The "Church Plate in Suffolk" is a very valuable addition to the printed matter.

It may be mentioned that out of the twenty-seven Deaneries, fifteen are already completed, leaving only twelve more to be dealt with. The "Index of Archæological Papers," published in 1894, will be found exceedingly handy for reference, the usefulness becoming more apparent as time goes on, and the collection is accordingly amplified.

CREETING S. MARY.

CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK.

DEANERY OF BOSMERE.

THERE are twenty-six distinct Parishes in this extensive Rural Deanery. The total number of the very diverse and varied articles included in its Church Plate Inventory amounts to 118. Our Returns enumerate in detail 34 Cups, 34 Patens, 22 Flagons, 27 Alms Dishes, 1 Apostles' Spoon, as belonging to the twenty-six Churches.

Bosmere Deanery has a few examples of the very best Church Plate. These are full of interest for fineness of execution, for intrinsic beauty and value, and for historic and local association. At present, it still offers to view some Plate also of very much humbler pretention, of inferior style and worth.

Genealogists, and those interested in Heraldry, will find a few good specimens of Heraldic devices, on plate, at Barking, at Bramford, and at Creeting S. Mary, but only dating from the first half of the last century.

One of the most distinguished and attractive pieces of Plate, in the County or Diocese, is the noble Cup of Creeting S. Mary. But a few of similar design and rare workmanship are known elsewhere, and those few and far between, dating from about 1590 to 1630. Mr. Cripps (Old English Plate, p. 302) tells us: "Magnificent Cups of this fashion and period are in use as Chalices at Odcombe, in Somersetshire, at Bodmin in Cornwall, and several other places." Mr. Cripps gives an illustration (No. 81) of a Cup, one of four such Cups, in London, in the possession of the Carpenters' Company, given by one of their Wardens in 1613.

Next meriting special note, come the fine Church Plate of Barking, and of Coddendam, the gift of former wealthy landed proprietors.

There are in all apparently about fourteen of the original "Elizabethan" Cups remaining, some with the original paten-cover, several stamped with the still enigmatic "G," one bearing date "1599" at Mickfield.

On the whole, the Deanery is not remarkable for fine or conspicuous plate, though as above described there are important and elaborate exceptions. No Pre-Reformation plate is found. After the Elizabethan period, only a few pieces were added during the sixteenth century. The last or seventeenth century is amply illustrated by 6 Cups, 18 Patens, 10 Flagons, 18 Alms Dishes.

In some parishes, their collections of Church Plate are curiously numerous and varied, as at Blakenham Magna, and at Stonham Parva, with its pewter "Puritan" flagon.

It would be valuable to know all cases where earlier plate has been "stolen, lost, broken, or exchanged," but the record of most of these transactions has been written in sand, and washed away by the tide of following years.

It is the sincere hope and trust of the compilers of this Inventory, that it will lead in this Bosmere Deanery, and in all others, to at least a threefold good result,—in an increased interest and care for the due preservation of such church treasures,—in the prevention of the illegal disposal of existing plate without proper sanction and authority,—and in the addition of new plate, in our day as of old, by will and bequest, or by pious gift of living Donor, to be in each Parish and its sanctuary a "Κτήμα 'ες αἰῶν" for succeeding generations of clergy and lay-people.

Ashbocking Vicarage. MAURICE BYLES COWELL, M.A.

ASH BOCKING. ALL SAINTS.

CUP: silver, Elizabethan, fitting into Flagon. Only one mark, capital G under the margin of the lip, probably maker's mark. Diameter 10 inches ; height $1\frac{1}{2}$ inch ; breadth of rim 2 inches.

The Rev. Baltazar Gardemau, whose name occurs as above in the old Parish Books of Ashbocking in the records relative to the purchase of church plate in 1705—7, was Vicar of Ashbocking for forty-seven years, from 1692 to 1739. He belonged to an old Huguenot French family, and was a native of Poitiers, where he was born in 1655. After a good and pious education and nurture, during middle life he is said to have removed to Lyons, and to have been a successful silk merchant of that city. In the days of the 'Dragonnades,' amidst legal disabilities, proscriptions, and massacres, France was no longer safe for a zealous Huguenot. On the revocation of the Edict of Nantes by Louis XIV. in 1685, Baltazar was one of the forty thousand emigrés, who fled from intolerant France and found a refuge in this country. The story has been well told by Smiles and others, how those Huguenot refugees, notwithstanding the vigilance of the French government, brought with them the money they had been able to save from the spoiler, and, what was still more valuable to their adopted countrymen, their skill in manufactures, a high standard of religion and morals, and precious habits of intelligent industry. Baltazar Gardemau had no degree from the English Universities. He is said to have been introduced to the Archbishop of Canterbury of the day, where the little French church still gathers for worship in the Cathedral crypt of that city. Through the Archbishop's influence, he was led to ordination in the English church, and in due course became Vicar of Coddendam in 1689. His monument in Coddendam church tells us, how there "he married the Lady Catherine Bacon, relict of Nicholas Bacon of Shrubland Hall, Esq., and daughter of the first Earl of Sandwich." A few years back, in a secret repository behind the Bookcases of his library, were discovered about 300 of his sermons, singularly well written, in good English, full of scripture quotations, giving evidence of no mean acquirements and capabilities as an English preacher and Calvinistic divine. According to the directions of his Will, his portrait to this day hangs on the walls of Coddendam Vicarage, in oval gilded frame, where one still feels the attraction of his noble presence, French animation, and genial courtesy, shining down from the canvas. Baltazar is represented in flowing wig, with his preaching robe and bands, and open Bible in his right hand, as if he were still in Coddendam or Ashbocking pulpit, with that brave impressive countenance, full of Christian inspiration and zeal. He ministered with success for nearly fifty years in his two rural benefices, Coddendam (1689—1739) and Ashbocking (1692—1739), as the mural monument says: "learned, pious, and charitable, dear to the Clergy, to the Poor, and to his Friends." In his old age, the impropriation of the church of Coddendam was purchased by him, and vested by his direction in Trustees in perpetuum for the Vicar for the time being, by deed bearing date May 5, 1736, while Ashbocking and various neighbouring parishes received substantial benefit from his ample resources. His death took place at Coddendam Vicarage, in his 84th year, on December 19, 1739. Lady Catherine survived him till January 17, 1757, and died aged 95 years and 4 months. She was the foundress of the Village Endowed School of Coddendam. Both of these good people, of now nearly two hundred years ago, rest together under Coddendam chancel, where their memorial is one of the most interesting of monumental inscriptions in our County:—"Cubile Baltazaris Gardemau, ab ipso, vivente et valente sed mortem intuente, comparatum." "Domina Catherina, juxta Jacentis in Theca lapidea, Baltazaris amantissima Conjux."

BADLEY. S. MARY.

CUP: with cover, silver. Inscription round lip:—"Ex Dono Edmundi Polei de Badley Armigeri, An. Dom̃i. 1630." Marks: leopard's head crowned; T, maker; date mark uncertain; lion passant.

Cover of Cup, now used for collecting offertory, has round cap, at top edge: "Ex dono Edmūdi Poley de Badley Armigeri"; no date.

Height $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches; diameter at top $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches; diameter at base $3\frac{1}{8}$ inches.

Badley for two or three centuries was seat of the family of Poley, who held the lordship, from about the year 1460, by marriage with the heiress of Edward Alcocke of Badley Esqr. Edmund Poley, Esqr., the donor of the church plate, died in 1640, aged 48. He was twice married; first to Dorothy, daughter of Anthony Warner of Stradbroke, who died in 1625 ; and second, to Francis Crompton, widow, daughter of Sir John Crofts of Saxham, Knt., she died in 1661, aged 72. He was father of Sir Edmund Poley of Badley, who is said to have been the last knight made by King Charles I. The name of Sir Edmund Poley also appears amongst the 17 Suffolk knights of the new order of Knighthood of the Royal Oak instituted by Charles II. at the Restoration. (Raven's History of Suffolk, p. 222.) Badley Church is rich in memorials of this ancient, long resident, and still well represented Suffolk family.

The Rev. Nicholas Bacon, M.A., donor of part of the church plate of Coddendam, was youngest son of Nicholas Bacon of Shrubland Hall, Esqr., and Dorothy Temple, grand-daughter of Sir William Temple, the distinguished Minister of State to Charles II., well-known to us by the life and writings of Swift, and the Essays of Lord Macaulay. Nicholas Bacon was born at Shrubland, June 10, 1732, educated at Emmanuel College, Cambridge, where he graduated A.B. 1754, M.A. 1762. He became rector of Barham in 1759, and was Vicar of Coddendam 1768—1796. In 1780 he married Anna Maria Browne, daughter of John Brown of Ipswich, Esq., and died without children August 26, 1796, aged 65. He was buried at Coddendam, September 2, and devised his property in Coddendam to Mr. Longe, his curate, brother-in-law, and successor in the benefice. The Bacons were descendants of Edward Bacon, third son of the Lord Keeper Bacon. He became seated at Shrubland by marriage with the heiress of Little, and died at Shrubland in 1618.

The Rev. John Longe, M.A. also in part donor of the Church plate, was eldest son of Rev. John Longe, rector of Spixworth, Norfolk, and Dorothy, second daughter of Peter Elwin of Booton, Norfolk, Esq. He was born at Spixworth, April 14, 1765, educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he graduated A.B. 1787, M.A. 1790. He was Vicar of Henley 1793—1798, and Vicar of Coddendam 1796—1834. In 1790 he married Charlotte, daughter of John Brown of Ipswich, Esqr., sister of the wife of the Rev. Nicholas Bacon, his predecessor in the benefice of Coddendam. He died there March 3, 1834, aged 69 years, and was succeeded as Vicar by his son, the Rev. Robert Longe, recently deceased.

The history of some of the Creting Church Plate has been thus traced by the Rev. W. C. Pearson, Vicar of Henley:—

"A slab in the Church seems to explain the origin of this plate. It is to the memory of "Grace Rous eldest daughter of Edmund Tyrrell Esq^r of Gipping. She had two husbands, Jacob Garrard Esq^r of Dodds, and Laurence Rous Esq^r of Baddingham." The silver gilt cup marked J G was probably the private drinking cup of "Jacob Garrard," and was presented to Creting Church by his widow after her remarriage, together with a new Paten bearing her second husband's and her own Arms, impaled."

The memorial slab referred to by Mr. Pearson is found in the Church of Creting S. Mary on floor by South Door and Porch, bearing following inscription:—

"Here lieth the Body of Grace Rous Eldest Daughter of Edmund Tyrrell Esq^r of Gipping in this County. She had two husbands, Jacob Garrard Esq^r of Dodds & Laurence Rous Esq^r of Baddingham.

In Memory of his Dear Aunt, Thomas Bokenham Tyrrell Esq^r laid this stone. She dyed the 13th Aug. 1728. Aged 79 years."

PLAYFORD.

CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK.

DEANERY OF CARLFORD.

In this Deanery the Plate is for the most part similar to that found in the neighbouring Deaneries. There are three Cups marked only with a G, probably an Ipswich maker's initial; and a curiously shaped Cup at Grundisburgh. The Playford Cup and Cover are the finest examples in the Deanery. It is a good specimen of an English "Standing Cup," possibly given later as a Chalice.

EDMUND C. HOPPER.

BEALINGS, GREAT. S. MARY.

CUP: of very beautiful Elizabethan work, with floral band. The chasing on the band is nowhere the same. The bowl is not a perfect circle. Height 6 inches; diameter $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

Cover with ornamental knob, is marked with G only.

PATENS: two, both inscribed:—

*"Bealings Magna. Gift of the Rector,

CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK.

DEANERY OF CLAYDON.

The most interesting plate in this Deanery is that at Henley. Upon the Cup is engraved the Crucifixion; on the Paten the Lord's Supper; and on the Flagon the Scourging of our Lord; all being finely executed.

The Elizabethan Cups are for the most part marked only with the letter G. Plate so marked is so common near Ipswich, that it must be provisionally attributed to an Ipswich man, the first letter of this silversmith's name.

There is at present no evidence of an assay office at Ipswich, but much pre-Reformation plate may well have been rehammered into the Elizabethan shape by a local man without the assay stamp.

The maker "G" has a curious way of dividing words, —thus H. G. is engraved on the Cup to denote Helmin Gham; in the same way the Framsdén Cup has F. D.; and the Pettaugh Cup P. T. Similarly the very beautiful Cup at Nacton, in the Colneys Deanery, bears the initials, N. T.

The Returns for this Deanery are almost entirely by Rev. W. C. Pearson, Vicar of Henley, and the Rectors of the Parishes.

EDMUND C. HOPPER.

AKENHAM. S. MARY.

CUP : height 6 inches ; diameter 3 inches.

Marks : leopard's head crowned ; maker J B ; small Roman q for 1751 ; lion passant.

PATEN : is $5\frac{1}{8}$ inches square, corners scalloped, with slightly raised edge, weighs 7 oz. 16 dwt. Has an engraving upon it of the "Last Supper."

FLAGON : ewer shaped, with handle, lid and thumb piece. It has upon it an engraving of the "scourging of Christ."

Height $7\frac{1}{8}$ inches ; weighs 31 oz. 15 dwt.

Marks on each of these three pieces are :—leopard's head crowned ; maker's mark, a lion rampant over two initials, E & P (?) ; Roman capital N for 1728 ; lion passant.

The Donor of this Plate was Thomas Vere, Esq. (afterwards Sir Thomas Vere, Knt.,) of Norwich. He was a descendant of William Vere of Henley, who died in 1570 ; he was born in Henley, and was baptised there February 14, 1681, and died, probably at Norwich, in 1766.

In a Terrier dated June 11, 1735, the Church Plate is thus described : "Item one silver Flagon, one silver Chalice, one silver Paten, all neatly engraved, with a case to put them in ; which set of Plate was given to this Parish by Thomas Vere, Esq., of the city of Norwich. Item one pewter Flagon, and pewter Bason for the offerings, also an old silver Chalice with a cover."

The "pewter Flagon," "pewter Bason," and the "old silver Chalice" have long since disappeared ; there is no mention of the latter as far back as the Terrier of 1801. The "Cover," apparently Elizabethan, is still in existence, it is plain, with raised edge and flat top, $1\frac{1}{2}$ inch high, and weighs 3 oz. It has neither mark nor inscription.

ALMS DISH: of pewter. "John Kent W. P." Diameter $9\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK.

DEANERY OF IPSWICH.

The new Churches of Ipswich have, for the most part, good modern plate; at the older Churches there is some local interest in the names of the donors, whose Arms are found on the sacred vessels in the churches of S. Clement, S. Lawrence, S. Mary le Tower, S. Peter, and S. Stephen. Three Cups:—those at S. Clement's, S. Margaret's, and S. Mary at Quay, have G only; it is probably the initial of a local workman, employed to alter the earlier "Chalices" into Reformation "Cups."

From John Wodderspoon's "Memorials of Ipswich," there is abundant evidence that prior to the Reformation the sacred vessels in use in the various Churches of Ipswich were abundant, and of considerable value.

In this Deanery the Hall marks were undertaken by Rev. E. C. Hopper, the general description and other matter by the Rev. F. Haslewood.

IPSWICH. S. CLEMENT.

CUPS: (1) straight sides, with hexagonal foot. Thus inscribed:—The Gift of Mrs Elizabeth Robinson to the parish of St Clements in Ipswich. Engraved on a lozenge:—on a chevron between three stags trippant, as many trefoils slipped.

CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK.

DEANERY OF LOES.

The Deanery of Loes contains eleven Elizabethan Cups, varying very little in size, and following somewhat the Norwich pattern. The best antique Cups are found at Monewden (a fine Norwich pattern, with cover); Letheringham; and a pretty little beaker at Hoo.

The Deanery has enjoyed the advantage of the residence of such families as the Rendleshams, Uffords, Blennerhassetts, Revetts, and Wingfields. The most beautiful pieces are those which bear the arms of Lady Maria Rendlesham at Rendlesham, Edward Blennerhassett at Campsea Ash, and John Revett, Esq., at Brandeston.

The marks found on the oldest vessels are few and indistinct. Rough graven crosses without shield, and the capital letter G without shield on the Chalice lip are distinguishable, but other marks of small floral designs are indistinct.

Pewters of some interest, as regards the marks, are to be found at Kettleburgh and at Letheringham; but are lacking in all other points.

The following extract from Green's "History of Framlingham" may be useful in tracing the history of Church Plate which has been lost.

Extract from Churchwarden's Account 1557 :—

"Fyrst mony recaved by Francis Pulham and Thomas Shymminge for Plate by John Irelande and Robert Bulleyne Churchwardens sold and confessed £60. 0s. 0d."

Apparently sold for Church reparation.

The following coincidence may also be noteworthy :—
The handsome Flagon and Paten were presented to Campsea Ash Church by Edward Blennerhassett, Esq.,

CHARSFIELD.

in 1641, and in the Nave of the same Church is a grave-stone to the memory of the same Edward Blennerhassett who was slain at the battle of Edgehill 1642.

The writer of this paper records his thanks to the several incumbents of the Deanery for their courtesy in giving him access to the interesting plate committed to their trust.

CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK.

DEANERY OF HADLEIGH.

Deanery embraces eighteen parishes. With the of the Whatfield paten there is nothing of any rest. There are, however, no fewer than ten an cups, including an unusually fine one at Elmsett.
if them have richly-ornamented knobs raised on the centre of the cover. Heraldry and memorial ons are fairly well represented. At Groton are the Waring; at Hadleigh those of Trumbull impaling p, and Leake (?); at Kersey is the crest of Thorow- and at Whatfield is a very fine coat of arms, Martin g Gedding (?). Nearly every parish has one or ewter plates; there are, also, five pewter flagons, ree "decent basons" of pewter. The marks on these articles have been as clearly described as possible.
ewter flagon and alms-bason at Wiston have been sly engraved by a local hand. The service of plate adleigh is very handsome. The modern medieval cup oke by Nayland is a good specimen of recent work.
most handsome and interesting piece in the whole ery is the paten at Whatfield, of which Canon Manning Biss has kindly contributed a full description. He has afforded valuable help in many ways.

* John Brownrigg Leake of Hadleigh was the only son of the Rev. John Brownrigg Leake of Hadleigh, rector of Naughton and of Nettlestead, by Bridget his wife, third dau. of John Stubbin of Raydon, formerly of Layham, by Elizabeth his wife, only daughter and heiress of Richard Partridge of Holton S. Mary, fifth son of Robert Partridge of Holton Hall. The Rev. J. B. Leake was eldest son of the Rev. Luke Leake, rector of Nettlestead, vicar of Offton, and perpetual curate of Willisham, by Elizabeth his wife, youngest dau. and co-heiress of John Brownrigg of Willisham Hall, where that family had been seated since the reign of James I. Dr. Ralph Brownrigg, Bishop of Exeter, the loyal and gallant Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge University during the Usurpation, was of this family. In the seventeenth century the Stubbins were patrons of Naughton rectory, in the chancel of which church there are slabs to their memory ; and in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries they were incumbents of Somersham, Offton, and Higham, and intermarried with Brand of Raydon, Newman of Kersey Priory, Sparrow of Gosfield, etc. J. B. Leake of Hadleigh died 4 Oct., 1825, aged 70, and was buried at Willisham ; some of his letters are penes me. Before the recent "restoration" of Willisham Church, it contained many monuments to the Brownriggs and Leakes, now represented by a few mutilated slabs in the churchyard just below the east window of the chancel. The inscriptions are recorded in the Fitch Manuscripts in Ipswich Museum Library.

† See foot note to the second paten.

Marks: leopard's head crowned; maker's W S with mullet below (Cripps, 1640); date letter illegible; lion passant in shield (used 1598—1617).

The plate is thus described in the Guide to Hadleigh (p. 42):—

“The present Communion Plate is very handsome, and consists of two large flagons, two chalices, two alms dishes, and two patens, all of silver, gilt. With the exception of the alms dish, given by Dr. Trumbull in 1686, and the small chalice and paten, which appear to be more modern, the whole is of the last century. In 1721 Dr. Wilkins gave the larger paten, which cost him twelve guineas. In 1745 his widow gave one of the flagons, and the ladies of Hadleigh the other. In 1746 Dr. Tanner, the then rector, gave a chalice to match the flagons; and in 1793 J. B. Leake, Esq., gave another alms dish to correspond with the gift of Dr. Trumbull.”

KERSEY. S. MARY.

A description of every article of plate here has been written, and sketches showing marks made, in one of the register books by Col. F. Le Grice, R.A., brother in law to the vicar, Rev. W. R. Gray. This description is dated 9 Aug., 1890. The Vicar pointed out entries in a Terrier, &c., relating to the church plate, and permitted extracts to be made.

Terrier, dated 24 May 1784.

“Two Pewted Flagons and one Plate of D^o [the last word is struck out] one Silver Flaggon.

“One Silver Cup & two [the last word is written above the line, ‘one D^o’ being struck out] Plates [the last letter has been added], weighing about 13 Oz.”

Churchwardens' Accounts.

“1796 Oct. 10 Rec^d of M^r Corbet for 1 Silver Cup 1 10 6.”

The present service of plate consists of the following articles:—

CUP: on its side is a crest (with wreath), a wolf's head couped [arg.] charged on the neck with a buckle its tongue fesswise [az.], for Thorowgood * of Hertfordshire.

Height 7½ inches; diameter at top 3½ inches.

Marks: leopard's head crowned; makers' P B | A B (for Peter and Ann Bateman); small Roman q for 1791; lion passant; head of George III.

* In the eighteenth century Sampson's Hall in Kersey was the property and seat of Sir Thomas Thorowgood, Knt., sometime High Sheriff of the county. He died in 1724, and his monument is in Kersey church. He was grandson of Sir John Thorowgood, who married Bridget, the last of the Sampsons of Sampson's Hall.

Miss Partridge of Church House, Hadleigh, has in her possession an old silver spoon, displaying marks of the year 1753, and a crest exactly like that on the Kersey plate, except that the wolf's head is erased instead of couped.

WHATFIELD. S. MARGARET.

CUP: Elizabethan, has band of foliage round bowl and foot.
Height $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches; diameter at top $3\frac{1}{4}$ inches. No marks.

The following description of the Paten is kindly contributed by Rev. Canon Manning:—

PATEN (See Illustration): A very fine octagon dish, with concave sides, diameter $12\frac{1}{4}$ inches from point to point, with a wide margin, and slightly depressed centre. The margin is embossed with four large and four smaller subjects, in graceful cartouches, containing figures and accessories in relief, all relating to bread and wine, and to food and drink generally. The workmanship is Dutch, the hall mark being that of Amsterdam. The first larger subject on the top is inscribed below, "Johanues 2 cap.," and represents the miracle at the marriage in Cana of Galilee. The ruler of the feast is seated at the head of the table, in a building with round-headed windows, with tapestry suspended behind him. On his left are St. John and the Virgin Mary, and in front of the table our Lord sits with hand extended towards the six waterpots. Six other guests are at the table, and to one of them a servant, bearing a flagon, hands a tall cup of water made wine. The second larger subject, on the right, is inscribed "Genesis 19 cap.," and represents the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah in the distance; Abraham standing in front and looking on, under a tree, before an altar, on which are a flagon and food, perhaps with reference to Genesis xviii. 8: Lot's wife in the distance; and Lot and his daughter seated in a cave at the side, with a flagon beside him. The third is inscribed "Matheus. 20 cā.," and represents the parable of the Labourers in the vineyard. In a building, lighted by two windows, two figures are seated at a table, paying money: four persons are coming in on the left to receive payment, and four others going out on the right towards a vineyard in the distance. The remaining larger subject is inscribed "Numeri, 13, cā.," and represents the spies returning from Eschcol, bearing a large bunch of grapes on a pole between them: the tents of Israel and armed men in the distance. Of the four smaller subjects the first to the right is that of a man standing, in a loose dress, and broad-brimmed hat, holding a sheaf in one hand, and a sickle in the other. In the distance are corn fields and a reaper. The next is a fisherman in a close vest and round cap, holding a landing-net by the pole, the sea and ships behind him. The third has a bare-headed figure lifting up with one hand a double dish, with apparently a cooked bird on it, and holding suspended from the other what looks like a flat dish with a cooked rabbit upon it. Beside him is a pot hanging from a trivet over a fire; and behind him the gateway of a large house, and another figure. The last is a falconer in rich clothing, ostrich feathers in his hat, and large boots, holding a falcon on his wrist. In the distance are men hawking, and dogs. In the centre of the Paten is a large coat of arms and crest, with a knight's helmet, and elaborate mantling: viz., Gules, two bars Argent. Martin:—impaling, Gules, a chevron Argent between three griffin's heads erased, Or. Gedding. Crest: an étoile pierced, of six points, Or. A family of Martin held the manor of Barrard's, in this parish, and lived at Barrard's Hall. Dr. Howard has printed extracts of the name from the Whatfield Registers, in his account of the Martins of Long Melford,* but there seems no connection between the two families, and the arms of Martin of Long Melford are quite different from those on the Paten. The Martins of Whatfield came from the neighbouring parish of Hadleigh, and entries there are also printed.† Belteshazzar Martin, of Hadleigh, probably purchased the manor of Barrard's in Whatfield. He held his first court April 17, 1700,‡ and died 30 July, 1724, and was buried at Whatfield, with a black marble tablet on the chancel wall. His son Thomas, born 27 Feb., 1683, married Mary, only daughter of William Aldriche, of Stowmarket, and died 9 June, 1731. His widow had the manor until 1744, when it appears to have been sold to Henry Kedington, Esq. She was buried there 14 Nov. 1745. There is no trace of a knight in the family, to account for the helmet, open in front. Burke's Armory gives the same arms and crest to a family of Martin. No record can be found of any marriage with a Gedding. There was a much earlier family of Geddyng, seated at Lackford, whose arms are the same, and are quartered by Wodehouse of Kimberley, and by Shelton. No other name is given to this coat, with the same tinctures, in Papworth's Ordinary.§ The name of the wife of Belteshazzar Martin, mother of Thomas Martin, may have been Gedding, and the date of the Paten would not be unsuitable. The Marks are (1) a narrow shield, charged with three saltires in pale, the whole surmounted by an arched crown, for Amsterdam: (2) uncertain; perhaps a lamb standing: (3) a capital Roman E, which, Mr. Cripps informs me, may stand for 1691 or 1715.|| The weight is 15 oz. 18 dwts. Troy. Although the plate itself is Dutch, the arms and mantling engraved on it are probably English work. The mantling especially is like that found on bookplates of about 1725.

The material being thin, the engraver of the coat of arms has cut through in one place. On the back is a deep score, where the silver was tested.

ALMS DISHES: (1) pewter. Diameter, 9 $\frac{7}{8}$ inches.

Marks: N T E; X; others indistinct.

(2) Pewter, same size. Inscribed:—Whatfield.

Marks: X X, both crowned, with lettering beneath; and "LONDON."

* Hervey's Visitation of Suffolk, i. 224.

† Ibid. i. p. 222.

‡ Information from Rev. R. A. Rackham, Rector.

§ With other tinctures, Cordell of Long Melford: Tilney, and Aldred.

|| The parish Terrier of 1747 is the first that mentions a silver plate: but its weight was "about nine ounces."

WISTON. S. MARY.

Inscribed :—Engraved by G. Stephen Wiston 1887. He was servant to a former rector, the Rev. C. E. Birch, M.A., and afterwards enlisted in a Scotch regiment. Height inside $8\frac{1}{4}$ inches ; diameter 4 inches.

ALMS BASON : pewter ; round the bowl is an indented pattern enriched with crosses paté. Diameter 13 inches ; height $5\frac{3}{4}$ inches.

"W" scratched on bottom.

CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK.

DEANERY OF STOW.

While there are fewer pieces of Church Plate in this Deanery, than in many others, of as old a date as the time of Elizabeth, there is, on the other hand, a rather larger amount of fine sets of more recent periods. The one circumstance may account for the other; since the liberal resident families who made donations of plate, caused at the same time the loss of the earlier sets. There are only two Elizabethan Cups; the pretty armorial one at Creeting S. Peter, and probably the older cup at Stowmarket. The only pieces with Norwich marks are the late Patens at Buxhall and Great Finborough. There are handsome armorial sets, all given by the Ray family, at Haughley, Shelland, and Wetherden; and by one of the Tyrells, at Gipping. Other donors are named at Stowmarket. But by far the most curious and important pieces are the Flagons at Combs, beautifully engraved with Scriptural and rustic subjects, believed to have been the gift of Orlando Bridgman, M.P. of Combs Hall, about 1720.

Diss Rectory, Norfolk.

C. R. MANNING, F.S.A.

Marks: leopard's head crowned; maker's mark F C in shape; black letter capital K for 1765; lion passant.

COMBS.

GLENN & ALGER D:00.

COMBS. S. MARY.

CUP : lipped bowl on thin stem.

Height 7 inches ; diameter of bowl $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches. No marks.

PATEN : deeply depressed. Diameter 7 inches.

Mark : a crown, small w below.

FLAGONS : a very fine pair, tankard shaped, engraved with scenes, figures, animals, foliage, and fruit, in a high class of art.

Height $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

These remarkable pieces are of Dantzic manufacture, of the early part of the eighteenth century. They are similar in shape and style, but the subjects engraved upon them are different. Upon each of them the higher part of the body of the Flagon is delicately engraved with three ovals in cartouches of foliage, and the lower part has two large standing figures, unenclosed. The subjects are as follows :—

No. 1. Upper part. On the left, a naked kneeling figure, a stag beside him ; the sun shining, The Creation of Adam. On the right, The Creation of Eve : between these, The Temptation of Adam and Eve. On the lower part, a man in armour, with spear and shield : tents beside him. David ? Opposite him, an apparently royal personage. Saul ? On the top of the lid, two rustic figures under a tree : on the thumb-piece, on one side a rabbit, seated at an anvil, with a mallet : on the other, a bird facing left, one leg uplifted.

No. 2. Upper part. On the left, The Expulsion of Adam and Eve : on the right, Cain driven out : between these, Cain slaying Abel. Lower part : David, with a harp, and Saul. Tents beside them. On the lid, two rustic figures, one with a spade, the other with his back turned : houses in the distance. On the thumb-piece, on one side, a rabbit hammering on an anvil : on the other, a bird, facing right, one leg uplifted. The lids and bases are richly moulded. The handles are terminated with dogs leaping forward.

There are two marks, viz. : in an oval, two crosses, one above the other, surmounted by a crown. Town of Dantzic : and, in an oval, H above G, in Roman capitals. The Flagons are recorded in the parish to have been given by Orlando Bridgman, Esq., M P. for Ipswich, of Combs Hall ; who died 24 April, 1731, and was buried in Combs church. (A pedigree of Bridgman is given in Burke's Peerage, under Bradford, Earl.) These pieces are first mentioned in the Terrier of 1723, as :—“ Two silver Flaggons, curiously engraved, weighing 74 oz. 4 dr. 13 dwts.” with “ Two old Pewter flaggons.” The previous Terrier of 1716 has only “ two large Pewter flaggons.” The Terrier of 1723 is signed by Henry Darby, Rector : Robert Pryor, Simon Parker, Churchwardens. These beautiful specimens were exhibited at the Ecclesiastical Art Exhibition during the Church Congress at Norwich in 1895.

ALMS DISH : I H S in rays in centre. Inscribed on the back :—Combs. Diameter 9 inches.

Marks : A. N. linked letters, in shape ; (Anthony Nelme c. 1700), the rest defaced.

CREETING, WEST. S. PETER.

CUP : a very good small Elizabethan piece, probably of Norwich make. Bell shaped bowl, with circular band. The foot has also a band of foliage. Height 6 inches ; diameter of bowl $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches. No marks.

On the bowl is engraved, above the band, a small coat of arms, with helmet and mantling, viz. : (or), on a bend (vert), three bucks' heads cabossed (argent), attired (of the field). Crest : a talbot, passant (argent) through fern (vert), collared and lined (or) Ferneley. William Ferneley, a mercer of London, purchased an estate of the Wingfield family here, in the early part of Elizabeth's reign, and his descendants continued many years.

The Cup has a PATEN Cover, with a circular band on it ; with no foot, but with a button engraved with a rose. Diameter 4 inches.

PATEN : on a foot, with gadrooned edge. Diameter $7\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

Inscribed on the foot :—The Gift of John Freeman, Clerk, A.M. Rector of West Creeting. 1779."

Marks : leopard's head crowned ; maker's mark I. K for John King (as in Cripps under 1792) ; small Roman c for 1779 ; lion passant.

FINBOROUGH, GREAT. S. ANDREW.

CUP : on a thin stem with no boss.

Height $5\frac{1}{2}$ inches ; diameter of bowl 3 inches.

CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK.

DEANERY OF MILDENHALL.

The Church Plate of this Deanery does not call for any special comment. There are seven Cups of the usual Elizabethan character, but none of them are important. Four of them have a single mark, the fleur de lis; the the rest are unmarked. There is no piece with Norwich marks in the Deanery. The Mildenhall set is the best, and the silver Flagon there, and the pewter Dishes with bosses enamelled with the Royal Arms, are the only armorial pieces. The names of donors are few. An accurate and full Return of the Plate of this Deanery, with drawings and rubbings made by the Rev. F. R. Hawkes Mason in 1893, has been made use of.

Diss Rectory, Norfolk.

C. R. MANNING, F.S.A.

ANNUAL EXCURSION.

HALESWORTH, WISSETT, RUMBURGH,
SOUTH ELMHAM.

The Annual Excursion took place on the 25th June, 1896. The country selected, Halesworth and its neighbourhood, proved rich in objects of Antiquarian and historical interest, and the proceedings were so mapped out that the interest of the visitors was sustained from the commencement to the end of a long day. The visitors from Bury S. Edmund's and West Suffolk were met at Ipswich by members resident on the Eastern side of the County, and shortly after ten o'clock the train left the Ipswich platform with a party of ladies and gentlemen about equal in number to previous years. The members increased en route, while residents in the respective localities visited drove to the various meeting places.

The members present included :—Rev. Canon Raven, D.D., F.S.A., Rev. Canon Manning, F.S.A., Mr. Felix T. Cobbold, Mr. R. M. Miller, Mr. Henry and Mrs. Miller, Major Meller, Rev. M. B. Cowell, J. Arnott, Esq., Rev. E. Hickling, Mr. and Miss Key, Mr. Geo. Abbott, Mr. H. W. Trigg, Mr. W. Sancroft Randall, Miss Coates, Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Haslewood, Mr. Wm. Vick, Mr. F. and Mrs. Pawsey, Rev. E. C. and Mrs. Hopper, Rev. A. J. C. Connell, Mr. P. and Mrs. Wainwright, Mr. Thos. Harrison, Rev. W. E. Layton, Rev. Francis Haslewood, Honorary Secretary, and Mrs. Haslewood, and many others, including a large number of ladies.

The party reached Halesworth shortly before twelve o'clock. The Rev. A. R. Upcher, the rector, was at the station to meet the visitors, who had not got many yards before their attention was drawn to matters of special interest, and it was pretty evident that a good day was in store for the party—at any rate it began most auspiciously. The church of S. Mary, at Halesworth, was the first church on the programme, but the Rev. A. R. Upcher, who led the way, swerved a little to the right, and the excursionists found themselves in the pretty rectory grounds. The rector caught the ear of listeners, and imparted a halo of interest in the spot sacred with the memories of Archbishop Whately and other notables, who had at various times occupied the rectory. Pointing to the charming lake at the edge of the lawn in front of the house, the Rev. A. R. Upcher remarked that Rev. John Keble spent a great deal of his time upon that lake, being very intimate with Archbishop Whately, who was Rector from 1822 to 1831. On one occasion Keble modestly produced some verses which he had written, and he asked the then Mr., afterwards Archbishop of Dublin, if he should publish them; "certainly," replied the rector, after he had carefully perused them. The Rev. A. R. Upcher mentioned other facts connected with the locus in quo, stating, amongst other things, that Keble was believed to have written much of his "Christian Year" at Halesworth.* The rector also pointed to a flourishing elm tree of considerable girth at the entrance to the rectory grounds, and told how that it was reported of Whately that he used to mount this tree with his surplice on in order to frighten the boys who used to steal the fruit from the orchard, which then existed on land now divided from the grounds by a high brick wall.

After crossing the bridge over the river Blythe, the notice of the visitors was called to the curiously carved Brestsummer of a small shop. A little higher up the road, the Rector drew attention to the Old Chantry House, which, he said, originally belonged to the Bedingfield family. He explained that the carving was in pine, which was supposed to have been rarer in those days than oak. A halt was made in the Market-place close by, and once again the Rector, finding himself in the centre of an attentive group, had to offer some particulars about what was evidently a very interesting spot. This he did, mentioning that the Lord of the Manor had a special charter from Henry VIII. to hold a market there. The rev. gentleman invited the visitors to inspect the timbered and panelled sides of some of the principal apartments of the "Three Tuns" Inn, facing the Market-place, as demonstrating that this was in centuries gone by a very important centre.

The Rev. A. R. Upcher gave an entertaining description of the Church, which consists of chancel, nave, and double aisles on both North and South sides, with West Tower. The party proceeded round the Church and the various features of special interest were pointed out by the rector. The Font is Perpendicular, an octagon, with emblems of Evangelists, its date being about A.D. 1500. There are in the edifice several singular brasses. The visitors spent much time in the vestry looking over the almost unique collection of ancient MSS., some of which were placed within covers. One was a list of Communicants, and dated 1587, and the amount of wine they were accustomed to consume appeared very remarkable. A nice copy of Erasmus was pointed out amongst the collection. The entries in the parish registers were scanned by some, one having reference to the appointment of the parish school-master—"John Evans has been chosen by the inhabitants thereof; was sworn before me May 24th 1553 and was approved of by Mr. Samuel Hawker." A remarkable feature about the book is the beautiful caligraphy. In the Vestry was also exhibited the church plate, and it was observed that the oldest piece was not silver. This was an enigma he could not quite solve, but it certainly appeared the oldest; the gold had worn off. Amongst other points of interest which came under notice during the stay in the Church was:—the crest of the Bedingfield family, a very handsome two-light window with elaborate tracery, and the credence table discovered during alterations to the fabric.

* Life of Archbp. Whately, by E. Jane Whately, Vol. i., p. 51, pub. 1866.

The exterior of the Church also came in for critical examination, and there were many noticeable features pointed out.

At one o'clock lunch was served at the "Swan Hotel." The Rev. A. R. Upcher occupied the Chair. After luncheon the Rev. F. Haslewood, the Honorary Secretary, proposed a vote of thanks to the rector, not only for his kindness in presiding on that occasion, but for his efforts to enhance the pleasure of the visit by explaining the various objects of interest in his church.

The excursionists then took seats in vehicles which were in readiness, and were soon on their way to Wissett. They halted at the church of S. Andrew in that parish, an ancient building with round tower. The Vicar pointed out some of the chief features of the structure. Having made a critical examination of the interior of the church, the Vicar conducted the party round the exterior, drawing special attention to a perfect specimen of a Norman doorway on the north side. There is another on the south side, but not in quite such good condition.

After a short drive Rumburgh Church was reached, and the travellers were received by the vicar, the Rev. W. L. Wilson, who showed them round the building and the Priory. The Rev. Canon Raven, D.D., F.S.A., read from the pulpit a valuable paper.

"The Old Minster" at South Elmham, which was reached about four o'clock. This was par excellence, from an antiquarian point of view, the most hallowed spot visited during the live-long day. The whole locality is rich in features of antiquarian research. South Elmham Hall itself was the ancient palace of the Bishops of Norwich, and as for "the Old Minster," it was traditionally the church built by S. Felix, the Burgundian, first Bishop of the East Angles, and Sir Hugh E. Adair very kindly granted admission to these places.

The Rev. Canon Raven, D.D., in one of his carefully prepared papers, brought the "Old Minster" back to the mind's eye. The reading of the paper led to further information being sought upon various portions of the old ruins, and the learned Doctor courteously replied to various questions.

The Rev. G. F. and Mrs. Smith Rewse very kindly entertained the members to afternoon tea at the rectory; and then a brief visit was paid to S. Margaret's Church, South Elmham, and the rector, Rev. G. F. Smith-Rewse, described the building, which consists of nave, south porch, and west tower. The church was built about the time of King John. The south doorway is Norman, with shafts in the jambs. The chancel and porch are Perpendicular, the tower being a good specimen of the period. The stand for an hour glass remains in situ. There remains some medieval painting on panels, formerly part of the rood screen.

The excursionists left South Elmham a six o'clock, and were driven to Halesworth, where they caught the 7.21 train for Ipswich and other towns, the day having proved very enjoyable.

RUMBURGH.

BY REV. JOHN JAMES RAVEN, D.D., F.S.A.,

Vicar of Fressingfield with Withersdale,
and Honorary Canon of Norwich Cathedral.

Several periods in our national history are prominently brought before us in this spot—the Roman occupation, the Norman Conquest, the Early English epoch in architecture, the anti-Italian movement in the fourteenth century, and the days of Cardinal Wolsey.

Two or three miles east of us lies the route No. ix. in Antonine's Itinerary, running from Norwich to London, by Dunwich. A British track, curling as usual along the higher ground so as to avoid water-crossings, ran from the east end of Lake Lothing into this district, terminating in the small earth-work here, from which the village takes its name.

Such inclosures served many purposes. Hither cattle might be driven, and here a small company might be placed to overawe local marauders when some baggage train was passing between Venta Icenorum and Sitomagus. Other instances are not wanting, as at Mells.

The Monastery was founded between 1064 and 1070 by Brother Blakere, and other brethren from S. Benet-at-Hulme, and given as a Cell to the Abbey of S. Mary at York by Alan le Noir, Earl of Richmond and Bretagne.

The possessions of this powerful nobleman in East Suffolk were not extensive, but in Domesday Book occurs the following :—"Terre Comit̃is Alani. In Almaham xl acræ, et pertinent ad ecclesiam de Romburc." It looks as though the scribe were asserting right against possession; and the transfer of this infant cell from its mother in East Norfolk to a step-mother in York seems another instance of Norman high-handedness, for S. Mary's at York was the foundation of Earl Alan the Red, father of this Alan the Black. Materials are not now at hand to add anything to the mediæval history of the Cell, which must have been left to autonomy in a great measure, through the distance of its new quasi-parent. Something, however, of influence from north of the Humber may be recognised in the tower of the church.

In this mere block we have the lower portion of what would have been a grand Early English tower, a style now comparatively rare in Suffolk. No doubt the builders of the Perpendicular period, who were as ruthless as Georgian churchwardens, destroyed much noble work of their predecessors' predecessors, but making all allowances, the preponderance of the early English style in the north is observable. In some recent digging a stone was discovered, bearing part of an inscription to the memory of Prior William Waltham, without date.

Passing to a very different scene, and one which apparently has little to do with Rumburgh: it is 1351, and the nation is just recovering from the awful scourge of the Black Death. Complaints against Italian influence in the disposition of patronage have come to a head, and stern repression is the order of the day. The well-known Statute of Provisors is passed, if not the first, perhaps the most notable "refrenation" (to adopt a Johnsonian word) of power issuing from that peninsula. It is presumed that no record exists of those who were present in Parliament, but looking to the constitution of the Episcopal bench in that year we find that a third part of the Bishops at one time or another held the office of Lord Treasurer, Lord Chancellor, or Secretary of State, while among the others occur the names of those well-known in the history of their Dioceses and elsewhere, Archbishop Islip of Canterbury, Bishop Grandison of Exeter, Bishop Trillek of Hereford, and (last, not least) our own William Bateman, a name especially honoured by members of his foundation, Trinity Hall, Cambridge.

We are not justified in assuming that there was no opposition to the Act of Provisors. It is true that the "Mother of Parliaments" was then young, and had not acquired the art of suffocating her infant offspring by means of hundredweights of amendments in Committee, a wonderful method which has marked her maturity. But though little remains of the debates of those days, debates there were undoubtedly. It can be said, however, with little chance of contradiction, that had the Lords Spiritual, consisting of the bishops and mitred abbots, shown anything like resistance, or even refrained from support, the Bill would never have become an Act. Like many other Acts, it was not an unqualified success. The English lay-patrons were worse than the Italian wire-pullers. The Universities found their graduates passed over. In 1411 a parish close by, Metfield, went straight to Pope John xxiii. with a petition against the Prior and Convent of the Cluniacs at Mendham, alleging that although the Prior took their tithe he would not cause their chapel to be served. In 1416 the Commons approached Henry v. with a petition against the statute, anticipating the extinction of the Christian Faith, "si hasty remedie ne soit fait en ceste matere si bosoinable." No remedy, hasty or deliberate, was found in legislation. The statute remained in the letter, but it was becoming to all appearances a dead letter, till Wolsey's violation of it showed that a terrible power remained in those old sentences, as witnessed by the fall of the man who procured the Bull for the suppression of Rumburgh and other small houses. The Bull is printed in the Transactions of our Institute (see paper on Blythburgh), from Rymer's Fœdera.* It expressly relies on the assent of Henry viii., and transfers all the property of these houses, real and personal, to the projected Ipswich College.

As we learn from the complaint of Abbot Whalley, of S. Mary's, York, quoted hereafter, Rumburgh must have witnessed a strange sight shortly before its spoliation.

* Vol. iv., 238.

There is an uneasy feeling in the cloisters of the north. In the early part of the sixteenth century an Abbot of S. Mary's, William Sevier, had become Bishop of Durham and Chancellor of the University of Oxford, but he died in 1507, and the bond which held the Universities and the Monasteries together was sensibly growing weaker. The previous year had seen Desiderius Erasmus in England for the second time,* encouraged by Archbishop Warham and Sir Thomas More. In 1509 he was again in England. He went to Cambridge, and became in 1516 Lady Margaret's Reader in Divinity, and about the same time Professor of the much-suspected Greek tongue. The cry is all for Colleges. Abbeys with their cells, it is surmised, will have to be destroyed that they may flourish. And who is more to be dreaded than this Suffolk man, potent at Court as well as at Rome? This Thomas Wolsey becomes Archbishop of York in 1515, and Bishop of Durham in 1523. The north is in his hands. There is talk of some great collegiate foundation. Abbeys and priories not alien may share the fate of their alien sisters under the statute of Leicester in 1414. And thus, as it seems, Abbot Whalley and his convent come to the determination of sending off sundry of their muniments and other valuables, and of a surety they could have hardly pitched upon a more secluded place than their cell at Rumburgh. The chests were probably transmitted by water direct from the water-gate at S. Mary's to Dunwich. Here was a Benedictine Cell subordinate to Eye, and hence there was short and easy land carriage to Rumburgh. Thus between 1523 and 1526 probably came the treasures of York to Rumburgh.

Wolsey, with all his faults, was faithful to learning and to the Papacy. He saw clearly that the ignorance and self-indulgence prevalent among the secular clergy, and in the smaller priories would, unchecked, bring about a general upset, coupled, perhaps, with a victory for the Lutheran heresy. Colleges of priests had proved themselves at Oxford and Cambridge the great lights of England, while even those in the country had shown their power to educate the mind and train the craftsman. What he planned was little beyond the scope of the Statute of Leicester in 1414, affecting the alien priories, while much more restricted in area. The difference lay in the machinery used, and it was for him a fatal difference, a Papal Bull instead of an Act of Parliament. Had there been no divorce suit pending, the procuring of the Bull of May 14th, 1528, from Pope Clement VII. for the suppression of "Romboro, Felixtow alias Fylstou, Bromehil, prope Brandenfery, Bliborow et Mountjoy," would have effectually brought him under the Statute of Premunire. The houses to be suppressed were of the Benedictine rule, save Bromehil, Blythburgh, and Mountjoy in Ipswich, of which the inmates were Austin Canons. All this while the great divorce business was trembling in the scales, and the French, acting in Henry's interest, were over-running Italy. When Campeggio started for England, probably carrying this Bull with him, they were dangerously near Rome. The deadly Italian summer brought about a change. On August 21st, De Lautrec, the French commander, died in the midst of his fever-stricken troops. Campeggio, who in compliance with his instructions had been dawdling about on his journey, passed through Paris a few days afterwards, and reached England, to find it in the utmost turmoil, and Wolsey broken in spirit. It was clearly no time to be carrying out the Ipswich College project. Yet it was not abandoned. It was part of his scheme for the reform of the manners and customs of England, and the day before Lautrec's death he had expressed to the Bishop of Bayonne his desire to do something for this object and for the settlement of the succession, before leaving a world of which he was growing weary. Within three weeks of Campeggio's arrival we find the Cardinal's officers at Rumburgh. The cry of the plundered cell goes up to the mother house at York. The Abbot of York complained that on the 11th September, 1528, certain officers of the Cardinal came to the priory, read the authority of the pope and king, "entered into the same priory and that done took away as well the goods moveable of the said priory . . . and also certain muniment evidences and specialities touching and appertaining unto our monastery which we had lately sent unto our said prior and brethren there." The cell he says had been given to them by Alan Niger, Earl of Richmond, 400 years before, and the abbey was burdened by reason of the gift, with masses, suffrages, and alms. Further as the revenues of the priory do not amount to more than £30 the abbot offers "towards your special, honourable and laudable purpose, concerning the erection and foundation of the said college and school 300 marks sterling which shall be delivered" at once if the cardinal will spare the monastery. The representation was of no avail, and Rumburgh was annexed to the Ipswich college.*

* His first visit was about 1498.

The bona of the houses had somewhat varied destinies. At Rumburgh they pass into the hands of Wolsey's myrmidons, but at Blythburgh, Ryton the prior remained on to the bitter end, and his inventory delivered to the 1536 Commissioners for the Augmentation Office remains in the Record Office.

It certainly looks as though there had been a traitor in the camp at York. Else, why this promptitude at Rumburgh as compared with slackness elsewhere?

It remains to be noted that in the cases of Banham and Wilby in Norfolk, the advocatio seems to have been exercised by the Mother Abbey and not by the Cell.

In the Diocesan Registry we find that the Wills of John Abbott and Thomas Spatchett of this parish were proved between 1444 and 1455, and those of John Aldrich and John flanner between 1458 and 1477.

A SEPULCHRAL MONUMENT

AT

BY REV. C. R. MANNING, M.A., F.S.A.,

Rector of Diss: and Hon. Canon of Norwich Cathedral.

The beautiful monument, of which an illustration is here given, remains in good preservation, on the north side of the chancel, at Newton-by-Sudbury. Attention was called to it by the Rev. Edmund Farrer, F.S.A., when he visited the church for his Suffolk Heraldic collections. It has hitherto received but very scant notice in any publication, although it is certainly one of the best specimens of monumental art in the county. It is not mentioned by Weever, or Gough, or any of the older topographers, or in Page's History of Suffolk. It is briefly noticed in Parker's Architectural Topography, and has a few erroneous lines in the more recent directories. In MS. sources there is more to be found; although, as far as the writer is aware, no definite conclusion is anywhere stated as to the lady commemorated. Davy's MSS.* in the British Museum supply a lengthy account of the church and parish, and take note of the monument and its heraldry; and from the account there given of the descent of the manors, it is possible to suggest a satisfactory identification for the effigy, and one that is fully supported by the costume and architectural details.

The monument consists of an altar tomb, on which the lady's stone effigy rests, placed under a rich canopy having a four-centred arch, doubly foliated and crocketed, with an ogee arch surmounting it; in the spandrels is a series of panels with cinque-foiled heads, containing shields of arms, and finished above with a cornice of so-called "Tudor flower" cresting. The small triangle formed by the ogee arch is empty, and may have contained some sacred figure or emblem. On the wall above the lady's effigy is sculptured an angel bearing an impaled shield. On the tomb below the effigy is another series of five double-quatrefoiled panels, with shields. This fine display of heraldry, indicating many well-known Suffolk families, might be expected to have settled long ago any question of the lady's identity, but the various pedigrees have not been sufficiently worked out. The older Suffolk manorial families need fuller investigation from MS. sources. The costume of the lady corresponds precisely with the fashion prevalent in the reign of Henry IV., as seen in very many other figures in brass and stone. She wears a plain robe, reaching to the feet in folds, among which is a small dog. Her dress is closely fitted to the neck, with the collar turned back, and small pateræ, or square-leaved flowers, at the joining. Over her shoulders is a mantle descending to the feet, and fastened across the breast by a cord with tassels, stretched from a rose on each shoulder. Her head rests on two tasselled cushions, and is covered with a veil, leaving the forehead open, and showing a circlet of similar pateræ over the brow, forming the edge of a caul or net for the hair. Round the waist is a belt of larger pateræ. Her hands are clasped in prayer, with sleeves turned back at the wrist; and she wears mittens with similar edging ornament. The date of this costume may be placed without hesitation as about 1410. The following examples from brasses in Boutell's Series may be compared in evidence:—Tilbrook, c. 1400; Chipping Campden, 1401; Dyrham, 1401; Sawtry, 1404; Gunby, c. 1405; Merevale Abbey, 1403 (c. 1410); Spilsby, 1410; Great Tew (two), 1410, showing the high collar; Broughton, 1414; Felbrigg, 1416; and group of children, Ashby Ledgers, 1416. These have slight variations in the head dress, and the arrangement of the hair, but are of the same character: while, as soon as the reign of Henry VI. began, the more extravagant heart-shaped and horned head-gear appears. The architectural details of the tomb and canopy correspond very well with the same date. The panels and shields, crockets and cornice, are not at all late in the Perpendicular style; and it is well known that the so-called "Tudor flower" was in use before the beginning of the fifteenth century, and appears on the canopy of the tomb of Edward III. (1377), in Westminster Abbey, and on that of Henry IV., in Canterbury Cathedral.

To come to the evidence of the heraldry supplied by the tomb and its canopy. There were two principal families in the fourteenth and previous centuries, who were Lords of the manor in the parish of Newton and the neighbouring villages, viz: Carbonell of Waldingfield and of Newton Hall manor, and Boteler of Boteler's manor. The manor house of the latter is the farm house now standing in the grounds immediately adjoining Newton churchyard, on the north. On the front of the altar tomb on which the lady's effigy rests, are four shields in panels. They are

1. Quarterly, first and fourth [argent] three covered cups in bend, between two cotises, [sable]: Boteler of Suffolk: second and third, [gules], a cross [argent], within a bordure engrailed [or]: Carbonell. These, probably, are the arms of the lady commemorated, showing that she was the daughter of a Boteler who married a Carbonell.

2. Ermine, a cross [sable]. Bois of Fersfield.

3. [Argent] six chess-rooks, three, two, and one [sable]. Rookwood.

4. The same, with an annulet for difference.

5. Plain.

The arms on the shield borne by the angel under the canopy are Boteler impaling Carbonell. The shields in the spandrels of the canopy above, bear the following arms :—

1. Carbonell as before.
2. Ermine, on a chief indented [sable], two lions rampant [or.] Bures of Acton.
Edmund Boteler, living 19 Edw. 1., married Alice, dau. of Robert de Bures (Norris mss.)
3. Three boars' heads coupé. Probably Suynford (argent, three boars' heads coupé, gules).
4. Per pale [argent and gules], Waldegrave.
5. [Sable], a cross engrailed [or.] a mullet in the first quarter. Peyton.
6. A fess between two chevrons. Several local families bore these charges, with differing tinctures, as Baynard, Cornard, Gerbridge, Peche, and Tendring. Probably this is Gerbridge.*
7. Two bars and a quarter. Perhaps Boys of Ingham; but given in the Davy mss. as Corbet [argent, two bars and a canton, gules.]
8. Boteler, as before.

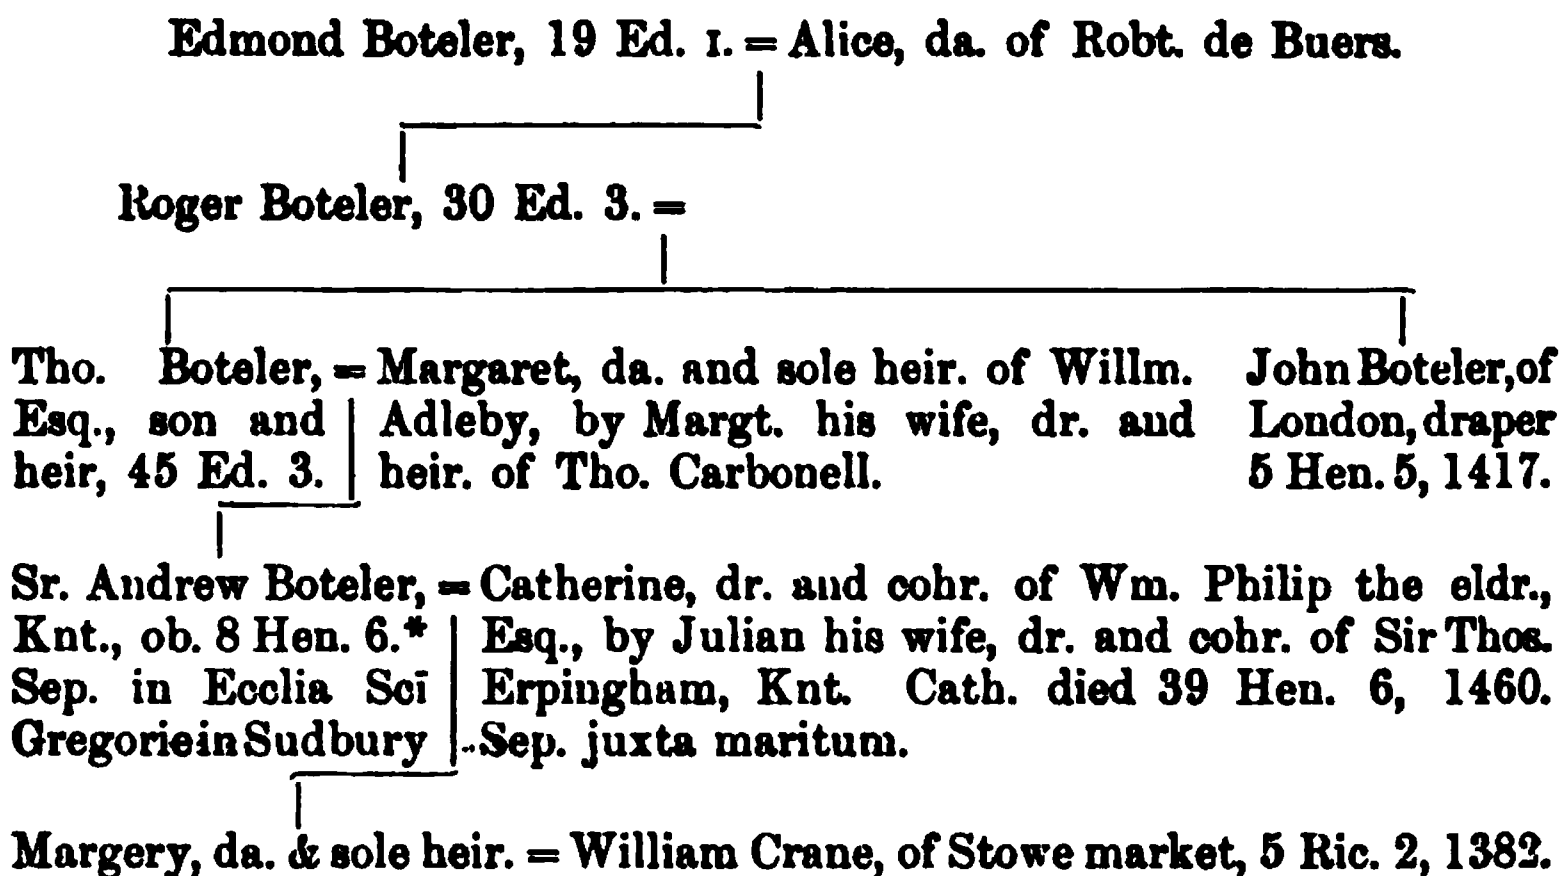

Between No. 4 and 5, two little corners, as of an imaginary shield behind the canopy, with indications of the Carbonell arms, may be seen.

These eight coats, or rather six of them, no doubt represent those of the families that Boteler and Carbonell were entitled to quarter. One shield to contain them all would have been too cumbrous, and their disposal in the spandrels is an instance of the happy way in which heraldry adapts itself to circumstances, and at the same time becomes highly ornamental.

The Suffolk family of BOTELER is a somewhat obscure one. The Arms having been three covered cups in bend, it is highly probably that it was a branch of the well known noble family of Butler. They held land and manors from early times in Waldingfield and Newton. Cox's Magna Britannia says, that James Butler, Earl of Ormonde and Wiltshire, possessed property here, and the Suffolk Post Office Directory has attributed this monument to a possible widow of his. Whether or not he had such possessions, the monument is fifty years older than the date of his execution and attainder, in 1461, and there is no trace upon it of his arms, or those of his connections. The following pedigree is transcribed into Davy's MSS. from Norris's Pedigrees, Vol. i., p. 169.

The tradition in the parish of Newton has always been that the monument is that of a Margaret Boteler; and Mr. Walter Rye, who now possesses the Norris MSS., and has kindly compared the pedigrees, thinks it possible that the above Margaret (Adleby), wife of Thomas Boteler, may be the person represented: and that in consequence of her father, William Adleby, or Aldeby, not having been an armiger, her husband, Thos. Boteler, impaled the arms of Carbonell, her mother's, with his own, and that she accordingly quartered the same. The probable dates might fairly agree with this; but for reasons now to be stated, another solution is preferable.

A sumptuous monument in a conspicuous position in the chancel, gives weight to the opinion that the person represented was Lady of the Manor; and the circumstance that there is no male effigy makes it likely, though of course not certain, that she was unmarried. The descent of the manor as given in Davy's MSS., fol. 165, is as follows :

* His will is given in Davy's MSS. (Newton, p. 25), but it supplies no further information.

“Newton. Manor of Butlers, or Botelera.

Thomas Carbonel, of Gt. Waldingfield.

20 Hen. 7, 1505, Robert Crane, Esq., son and hr., died 4 Ed. 6.

4 Ed. 6, 1550, Robert Crane, Esq., of Chilton, son and hr.”

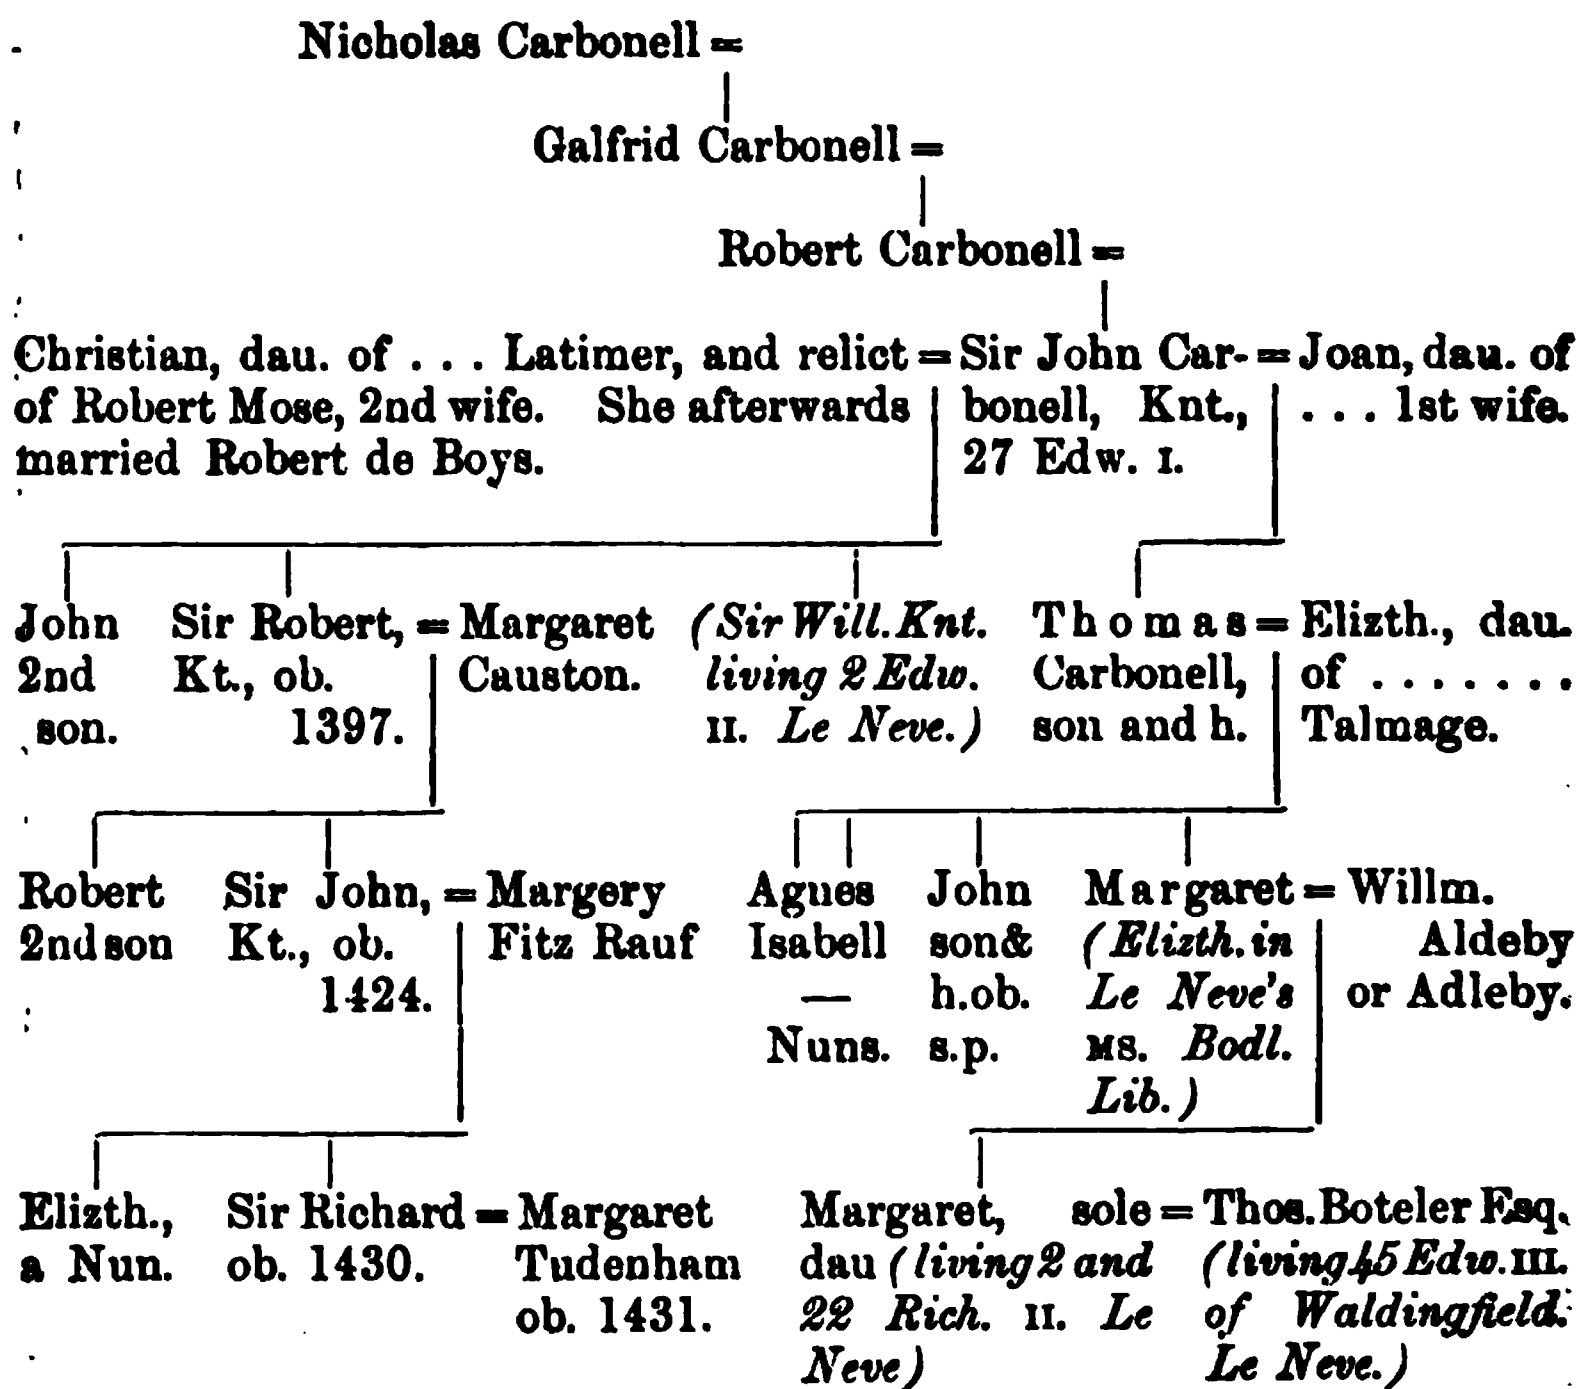

There is every reason, therefore, to ascribe this monument to the above-named MARGARET BOTELE, daughter, no doubt, of Ralph Boteler and Alice Carbonell, who appears to have held the manor from 1393 to 1410. The exact relationship of Ralph Boteler to the others of the family in the pedigree is not clear; but it is probable that Margaret inherited both Boteler and Carbonell property, and that the same came to her successor in the manor, Sir Andrew, who was also grandson of the first Margaret Carbonell. This agrees very well with the apparent date of the monument, 1410, from the costume and architectural treatment. The quartered coat on the tomb can hardly belong to anyone else, and the same arms impaled above are those of her father and mother. Considerable search has been made among the pedigrees of other families likely to be connected, without much result.† The Carbonells were of considerable importance in the county. They held manors in Great Waldingfield, Acton, Chilton, and Newton. The chief line removed in the 14th century from Waldingfield to Badingham, in Hoxne Hundred, in consequence of the marriage of Sir William Carbonell with Margery, daughter and heiress of William de Boville, of that place; and the name of his grandson, Sir John Carbonell, who died in 1425, is one that is frequently met with in Suffolk and Norfolk charters. Thanks are due to Mr. Fredk. Johnson, of Yarmouth, an experienced genealogist, for the following pedigrees, to be found also in Mr. Walter Rye's collection which he so generously opens to enquiry; and from Le Neve's notes at the Bodleian Library, Oxford.

From Norris's Collections, vol. i. p. 258.

There are probably several inaccuracies in the above pedigree. Another in the Norris Collection is somewhat different :—

It was hoped that the collections of the late Mr. Almack, of Long Melford, might have given further information, but his researches did not produce any particulars beyond those already stated. He communicated two letters on the monument, in 1828, to the Rev. J. Whitehurst, then Rector of Newton, correctly describing the heraldry, and mentioning that the quartered coat of Boteler and Carbonell occurs also on the Tower at Great Waldingfield. He fancifully suggested that the roses on mantle of the Newton effigy might bear reference to those of York and Lancaster, and thence to James Butler, Earl of Ormonde; but these are only part of the customary fashion of the period, and such an application is quite inadmissible. Copies of his letters have been kindly supplied to the writer by the present Rector, the Rev. A. T. Wren.

There is some beautiful heraldic glass remaining in the windows of this church. In a north window of the chancel, over the monument, and in the east window, are shields of Boteler impaling Carbonell. Others in the east window have been tampered with, but appear to be ermine, two chevrons, gules, a label of five points, azure; for Seymure of Suffolk: or, a bend gules between six martlets, sable: sable, a cross engrailed, or: gules, fretty or, impaling argent, fretty azure. Argent, fretty azure, replenished with fleurs de lis, or. In a south window of the nave, are argent, three crescents gules, Butvileyn, ancient lords of a manor here: and argent, a fess dancettée, gules; Deane?

The church is of considerable interest. The chancel has early Decorated windows, and sedilia and piscina of the same date. The nave is large, and has a beautiful Norman doorway on the north side, now made into a window. The tower at the west end is square, and early Perpendicular. In the south wall of the nave is a recessed arch with a fine effigy of a lady, c. 1320, wearing a wimple. This was found some years ago, underneath the floor of the church. The font is late Perpendicular and panelled: the bowl has a row of quatrefoils. A very fine wooden pulpit remains, of the fifteenth century, having panels of rich tracery and foliage. It appears to have been the gift of one Richard Moody and Letitia his wife, as a contemporary inscription is incised on the panels, the last words being now lost, but having been recorded:—

Orate p. aia. Richi Modi Et leticie [consortis sue]

There is also a curious lectern, of seventeenth century date, richly carved with spiral bands and foliage.

The writer hopes that some one, with better opportunities for research, may yet find evidence that will throw more light on the lady commemorated, and the families connected with her.

SIR ROBERT CURSON, OTHERWISE LORD CURSON.

BY JOHN GLYDE.

Among the residents of Ipswich, during the early part of the sixteenth Century, was a man who occupied a mansion larger, as it seems, than that of Sir Anthony Wingfield, or any other inhabitant of the Borough. On one occasion he entertained the proud, unattractive Katherine of Aragon, and her retinue, and a few years later had the pleasure of welcoming the accomplished Henry VIII., who stayed a night under his roof on the only occasion that he visited Ipswich. For treasonable conduct he was with five others proclaimed at S. Paul's Cross as a traitor to the King, but nevertheless was afterwards hand and glove with royalty, and became a recipient of royal bounty in the shape of an annual pension, whilst his companions were either publicly executed, or confined in prison for long periods. I allude to Sir Robert Curson, Knight, called Lord Curson.

We know something about his Ipswich residence, since Mr. B. P. Grimsey, in the 7th Vol. of the "Suffolk Archæological Proceedings," gave, with his usual painstaking accuracy, a full description of it drawn from documents in the British Museum. This published account is accompanied by a ground plan, which shows that the Mansion was of no mean pretensions, having many large and beautiful rooms, a porch under which a carriage could pass, and extensive stabling and coach houses. Moreover, in accordance with the custom of the age, there was within its grounds, a chapel which stood due east and west, with a devotional closet on the south side. Sir Robert's establishment included two chaplains. All this indicates the home of a gentleman of such large means, that to dispense hospitality even to Royalty, would make no serious inroad on his purse.

Who then was Sir Robert Curson? The size, if not the beauty, of the shell excited my curiosity to know something of the nature of its inhabitant. It seemed at first however that the curiosity was doomed to disappointment. It was tantalizing to find that of even the early life of this Suffolk chameleon of the Tudor age, so little could really be ascertained. One fact I soon learned, that I was not the only one who had been puzzled by disjointed accounts, for when I began to make enquiries of my friends, Dr. Jessopp wrote to me, "I wish I could tell you, or you could tell me, something definite about that old enemy of mine Sir Robert Curson, otherwise called Lord Curson." It was patent that he was not a sufficiently conspicuous figure to occupy much of the attention, or the pens of English Historians. His career forms, as it were, one of the bye-paths of history, which are attractive chiefly to students of the district in which the subject was born or resided. Knowing that a large number of the dusty documents at the Record Office had been arranged during the last few years, I conjectured that the "Calendars" would indicate where new materials could be found. These however indexed very little that answered my purpose, but the research revealed other documents in the Office of more value, for although they added nothing to the scanty details of Sir Robert Curson's early life, and failed to clear away the mist that envelopes a portion of it, they enlightened me as to the relation in which he stood to the occupants of the English throne.

The Curson family are recorded as having come out of Normandy with William the Conqueror, lands and possessions were granted to them for their valiant services. In the sixteenth century there were many branches of this family, but I have been unable to trace to which of these the subject of these remarks belonged. That he in some way or other was connected with Suffolk, I infer from his coming to Ipswich to reside when he retired from foreign service, and from the further fact, that in addition to the Mansion in Ipswich he had lands and tenements, freehold and copyhold, which he had purchased in the parishes of Blaxhall, Kelsale, and Tunstall, all of which were left to his wife Dame Margaret and her heirs. Blaxhall was particularly favoured, as by his Will dated October 31st, 1534, and proved at Hoxne, in the month of March following, Sir Robert bequeathed a Vestment and a silver Chalice to the church of that parish. The actual extent of his property is unknown, as in his Will his purchased property only is named. He had no family; and the plate, jewels, furniture, cattle and all moveables, with a few exceptions, were bequeathed to his wife, with power to give or to sell.

Henry VIII. was quite conscious that his legitimate claims to the throne of England were far from strong. The direct male line of the House of Lancaster died with Henry VI., and the first Tudor King had to base his right to the throne on a parliamentary title,* which was by no means satisfactory to the old fighting Barons. Moreover, great nobles and wealthy squires had been stripped of their estates to the King's profit, by attainder and confiscation, and this created a host of enemies. Under such circumstances it was unfortunate for him that the adherents of the House of York were still numerically strong, and their movements gave the King great uneasiness. Among these the de la Poles were shrewdly suspected of promoting or fostering disloyalty. Edmund de la Pole, Earl of Suffolk, was by the disaffected Yorkists recognized as the coming man, and he was ready to become their champion if opportunity offered. Various matters had stimulated latent discontent. When he should have succeeded to a Dukedom, he found the estate so reduced by confiscation that he was ready to make a compromise with the King, and accepted the title of Earl instead of Duke, on the understanding that some of the forfeited lands would be restored to him.

* Green's "Short History of the English People."

He fretted greatly over this loss of rank, but he nursed his discontent in secret.

Suffolk was a man of violent temper. In 1498 in a fit of passion he killed a peasant. Being indicted for the homicide, he reluctantly applied to Henry VIII. for pardon. The King granted his request, but being no ways disposed to exhibit more indulgence than was politic to any member of the de la Pole family, he commanded him to appear openly in court to plead for his pardon. The haughty Peer felt that to plead for forgiveness in open court was an indignity he could not brook, and resenting the command as an affront he fled to Flanders, taking refuge with his aunt Margaret Duchess of Burgundy. This lady, being the sister of Edward IV., was bent upon the restoration of the House of York, and did everything in her power to encourage intrigue against Henry. But Suffolk's exile was not prolonged. Through some unknown source, a promise of forgiveness from the King was conveyed to him, and returning to England he obtained pardon.

It was not long, however, before his ambitions and his uneasy temper entangled him in traitorous schemes. Once again he felt it necessary to flee from England. By order of the King, the coasts were well watched to prevent escapes, but Suffolk succeeded in eluding official vigilance and crossed the channel to Calais, or rather to Guienne, where one of his friends, Sir James Tirrell, was then Captain. He soon after found his way to the Emperor Maximilian. Henry knew that the elements of a White Rose agitation had been secretly fermenting among some of his Barons and their adherents, and this second flight of the Earl of Suffolk gave him an opportunity which he was not slow to embrace. The Wars of the Roses were succeeded by an elaborate system of espionage, and learning through its operation that many of his nobles were ready to join the Earl in revolting against his rule, he determined to bring Suffolk and his friends within the meshes of his spies, and thus circumvent their machinations.

At the time of the Earl's first flight from England in 1499 Sir Robert Curson was Captain of Hammes Castle, a place near Calais, and of such importance to the English King that Curson had not only to give security himself to the amount of 800 marks, but to obtain Matthew Brown and others as sureties for his good behaviour in that office. The King, however, knew his man, and seems to have induced Sir Robert to ingratiate himself into the good graces of the Earl, and thus obtain his confidence as a prelude to betraying his secrets. To enable him still further to carry out his nefarious schemes, the King granted him a Licence to resign his charge, in order that under pretence of going to fight the infidels, he might offer his services to Maximilian I., whose territories were harassed by the Turks. So highly were his services esteemed by the Emperor that the latter created him a Baron of the Exchequer. In the early part of 1501 Curson is said * to have made known to Maximilian, that Edmond de la Pole, Earl of Suffolk, meant to try and recover what he called his rights to the Crown of England, and Maximilian, according to the Chronicler, at once declared, that if Suffolk would come to him he would assist him in obtaining the object of his ambition. This news was in some way conveyed to the Earl, and propably was the cause of his second flight.† Mr. Gairdner (perhaps the best authority we have for this period of English History) informs me that a very trustworthy MS. states that Suffolk left England secretly in August, 1501, and joined Curson on the Continent, and it was in November, 1501, only three months after, that Suffolk and five others were publicly proclaimed at Paul's Cross‡ as conspirators in treason and traitors to the King. Sir Robert Curson was one of the five, but the inclusion of his name in the

* Gairdner's Henry VII., English Statesmen Series.

† Mr. Moberly, in his Early Tudors, says that after the second flight of the Earl of Suffolk, Sir Robert Curson was instructed to go over to Flanders, pretend to join Suffolk, and gain information as to his confederates at home. This must be an error, as Curson was in Flanders long before August, 1501.

‡ St. Paul's Cross was a small open-air Pulpit, at the Cheapside end of St. Paul's Churchyard, and was considered the most public place in London.

proclamation was a strategical trick, designed to divert from him the suspicion of having betrayed his confederates.

As may be anticipated Curson's labours as a spy did not end simply by his companions in treason being proclaimed traitors. From information which was secretly conveyed to the King, William Courtney, eldest son of the Earl of Devonshire; William de la Pole, brother of the Earl of Suffolk; Sir James Tirrell, Sir James Windham, and others, were arrested and cast into prison. Windham and Tirrell were hurried to the block, Courtney and William de la Pole were thrown into the Tower, and endured for several years the horrors of prison life, under the merciless rule of Henry VII.

As far as local history is concerned, the earliest date of Sir Robert Curson's connection with Ipswich is given in Wodderspoon's Memorials, where it is stated that Katherine of Arragon came to Ipswich in 1517 on a visit to Sir Robert Curson. He also mentions that Henry VIII. came here and stayed a night with Sir Robert in 1522, and adds that the Corporate Body, according to custom, presented a purse of money to Katherine and also to Henry on the occasion of their visits, but Bacon's Annals contains no entry referring either to the presents, or to the visits of the King and Queen at the specified dates. Nevertheless the statements as to these visits is correct. They were made in 1517 and 1522. In April, 1521, a Commission was appointed by the King to enquire into a disputed boundary in the Borough, and Sir Robert Curson was named as one of the Commissioners, his associates being the Abbot of Bury St. Edmund's, Sir Robert Drury, Sir Richard Wentworth, Sir Philip Tylney, Lionel Talmash, Esq., and John Sulyard, Esq.

I will now glance at the reward Sir Robert received for his services. I cannot discover at what date he returned to England. Neither can any entry of payment to him be found in the Patent Rolls during the Reign of Henry VII., where such payments are entered, or in Auditor's letters of Great Seal, for Writ for Grant. The Orders to the Exchequer for issue of payments and the Teller's Roll of Exchequer were searched with no better success. When the reign of Henry VIII. was reached, the searcher was rewarded for his pains. In the first year of this Monarch's reign, there is in the "King's Book of Payments," under date 3rd June, 1509, an entry as follows:—"Sir Robert Curson, half year's fee £200." Henry VII. died April 22nd, 1509, and just six weeks after his death, a half-year's fee is paid to Sir Robert Curson. What does this mean? Was it left in arrear during the late King's illness? Similar entries for quarterly or half-yearly payments follow until 1520, when at page 408, "Royal Houshold Expenses," there is "Quarters Wages, Lord Cursons fee, £100." This is the last entry of annual payments that could be found. That the King, however, remained on the best of terms with Sir Robert is evident not only from his nominating him on the Royal Commission in 1521, and from the visit which he paid to him in Ipswich in 1522, but also from an entry at a later date as follows:—Royal Household, "The Kings New Years Gifts, Account of Plate received of the following Goldsmiths and given away in New Years Gifts—Of John Freeman, in Gilt Cups &c to . . . Lord Curson."

Sufficient evidence I think, has now been offered to enable us to sum up. It has been shown that in 1501, the Earl of Suffolk and five others were publically proclaimed in London as traitors to the King. Two of them, Sir James Tirrell and Sir James Windham, were speedily executed. William Courtenay was cast into prison and not released whilst Henry VII. lived, and William de la Pole, had to endure for many years all the misery which invariably accompanied imprisonment for treason in the Tudor age. Two more of the proclaimed traitors have to be accounted for, one, Edmund de la Pole, ventured some time after the death of Henry VII. to return to England, having been in exile ten or eleven years, but only to meet the same fate as Sir James Tirrell and Sir James Windham, being marched to the scaffold in 1513.

The remaining conspirator, if he can be so called, was Sir Robert Curson. At what date he returned to the British shores I have no evidence, but whenever it was, instead of losing his life, or enduring long imprisonment, he at once basked in the sunshine of Royal favour. The money lost by the forfeiture of his recognizances was restored to him. He was placed on the Royal list for a pension of £400 a year. When it was possible to confer any distinction upon the man, distinction was conferred. In the Royal commission of 1521, appointed to consider the boundaries of the Borough of Ipswich, upon which Commission were various county magnates. The name of Sir Robert Curson is second on the list, being next to the Abbot of Bury St. Edmund's. When costly new year's gifts were distributed by the King, Sir Robert Curson was one of the recipients; and, lastly, both Henry VIII. and his queen, Katherine of Arragon, bestowed upon him the highest favor in their power by honoring him with personal visits at his Ipswich home.

Is more evidence needed to show the treachery of Sir Robert Curson? Why should he alone of the six proclaimed traitors become an object of Royal favor, and be in the receipt of a handsome pension, whilst his five companions either suffered the horrors of a long imprisonment, or were speedily led to execution, unless the favors bestowed were to reward him for having played the part of a spy for Henry VII., and betrayed the secrets of his companions?

RULES OF THE

Suffolk Institute of Archæology and Natural History.

1. The Society shall be called the "Suffolk Institute of Archæology and Natural History."

2. The object of the Institute shall be—

1. To collect and publish information on the Archæology and Natural History of the District.

2. To oppose and prevent, as far as may be practicable, any injuries with which ancient monuments of every description, within the district, may be from time to time threatened, and to collect accurate drawings, plans, and descriptions thereof.

3. The Institute shall consist of Ordinary and Honorary Members.

4. Each Ordinary Member shall pay an Annual Subscription of 10s., to be due in advance on the 1st of January, and shall be considered to belong to the Institute until he withdraws from it by a notice in writing to the Secretary. A donor of £5 shall be a Life Member.

5. The Officers of the Institute shall be a President, Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer, and Honorary Secretary, all of whom shall be elected for the year at the Annual Meeting.

6. The general management of the affairs and property of the Institute shall be vested in the Council, consisting of the Officers, and of twelve members elected from the General body of the Subscribers, to retire annually, but eligible for re-election.

7. The Council shall meet to transact the ordinary business of the Institute, not less than three times a year. They shall have power to make Bye-laws, appoint Committees and Local Secretaries, recommend Honorary Members for election by the Annual Meeting, supply vacancies that may occur during the year in their own body or among the officers, and to make arrangements for Excursions and other meetings. They shall also annually frame a Report and prepare the Accounts for submission to the Annual Meeting. At the Meetings of the Council, three to be a quorum, and the Chairman to have a casting vote.

8. The ordinary place of meeting shall be Bury S. Edmund's, but it shall be in the discretion of the Council to hold meetings at other places, if and when they shall think it advisable.

9. Each Member shall be entitled to free admission to the General Meetings of the Institute; and he shall also be entitled to the use of the Library, and to a copy of each publication of the Institute; but no copy of any such publication shall be delivered to any member whose subscription is more than twelve months in arrear.

10. The Annual Meeting shall be held in the month of April or May in each year, or at such other time as shall be fixed upon by the Council.

11. All papers presented to the Institute shall thereby be considered its property, and the Council may publish the same in any way, and at any time, that they may think proper.

REPORT, 1896—1897.

At the close of another twelve months the Council entertain the confidence, to which they have so often had occasion to give expression, as to the growth in public favour and approval, of the "Suffolk Institute of Archæology and Natural History." As education spreads, and a deeper interest is accordingly excited in matters historical, so in proportion must the work of such an organization as this, be from year to year more keenly, as well as more widely, appreciated. It may be claimed on behalf of the Institute that its doings have more than a local importance and significance. There are kindred organizations in various other counties in England, and their collective doings published to the world in handy attractive volumes, cannot fail to be of the utmost value to future historians of the county.

The proceedings of last year assumed much the form of those which have proved so successful in the past. As time goes on the difficulty of opening up fresh country, within the sphere embraced by the operations of the Institute, becomes more apparent. There are, however, antiquarian treasures yet to be revealed, and if a district has to be traversed two or three times, the result is invariably the revelation of much that had previously escaped notice.

The Summer Excursion on the 25th of last June was through a district rich in features of interest, and the occasion may perhaps be regarded as one of the most successful in the long list of visits paid to various parts of East Anglia. The old town of Halesworth—the rendezvous of the visitors—possessed so many attractions that the Rev. A. R. Upcher, who gave all a hearty welcome, was able to "kick off" most successfully, and the ball, thus set pleasantly rolling, was kept on the swing the live-long day.

It is not necessary, however, to refer in detail to the items in a very attractive programme, suffice it to say that the Council desire to express their gratitude to the gentlemen who so readily came forward at the various halting places, and engaged the earnest attention of the Excursionists by a description of matters worthy of special attention of all interested in objects of antiquarian and architectural research.

Since the issue of our last Report, Part II. of Volume IX. has been issued to members, and has been highly commended by many esteemed friends.

The "Church Plate," which forms so valuable an addition to the annual volumes, has excited a great deal of interest, the illustrations being specially appreciated. This branch of the work is rapidly approaching completion, 24 out of the 27 Deaneries having been dealt with, and the three remaining ones will, it is hoped, be in readiness for the next Part, thus completing Volume IX.

While there is so much that is pleasant to record in respect to the past history of the Institute, and its future prospects, the Council have to express deep regret at the loss of old and active members, who, in their time, did much to enable the Institute to carry on the good work which it was formed so many years ago specially to promote. The name of the Rev. W. H. Sewell will be remembered in Antiquarian circles in East Anglia. His enthusiasm was unbounded on the occasion of every find, his acquaintance with matters strictly archæological was extensive, and he had a happy way of enlisting the interest of others in things which excited his own curiosity and pleasure. Of the Rev. James Beck much the same may be said. The apartments at the fine old Rectory at Bildeston were filled with treasures, with a description of which he was ever wont to entertain friends and visitors, and the Institute has lost a good friend and ardent supporter in the death of this gentleman. And then early in the year the announcement of the death of Mr. Thomas Stephens had to be received with mournful regret; he was for many years our Librarian, and for several years Collector. Altogether by death and resignation we have lost about eleven members, but the Council have satisfaction in recording that the vacancies thus caused have been filled up by the enrolment of new members.

PUBLICATIONS
OF THE Suffolk Institute of Archæology & Natural History.

For some years past the first four Parts of the Publications of the Institute (Pages 1—156) have been out of print, and members have had considerable difficulty in completing their Sets of Volumes. At the suggestion of several recent subscribers, the Council have republished the scarce parts. These reprints are an exact facsimile of the originals, the type and pagination agreeing in all respects, whilst the woodcuts and lithographs have been most carefully reproduced.

Back Numbers and Binding.

Members desiring to complete their Parts and Volumes, or would like to have their Volumes bound, with the Seal of the Institute stamped upon the cover, are requested to communicate with the Honorary Secretary.

The three Parts forming Volume IX., will upon receipt, be bound for 4s. 0d.

Other Volumes bound on the same terms.

CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK.

DEANERY OF BLACKBURNE.

THE Communion Plate of this Deanery includes a considerable number of pieces of some importance, from their connection with the owners of property in the district; but as regards form and ornament, there is nothing special to record, and the plate-marks are of no unusual variety. There are eleven Elizabethan Cups, and one paten. The Hopton Cup is a good specimen, and must have belonged, at one time, to Hardingham, in Norfolk. Five parishes have plate with armorial bearings, and four others have donors' names, without arms. There is one Norwich piece. The copper-gilt service at Euston is a fine show set, of some historical interest; and the silver at Bardwell, and Thorpe-by-Ixworth worthily represents the families of Read and Crofts.

Diss Rectory, Norfolk.

C. R. MANNING, F.S.A.

BARDWELL. SS. PETER AND PAUL.

CUPS: a pair, height 7 inches; diameter of bowl $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches; a circular boss in the stem. Inscription:—BARDWELL ★ IN SUFFOLKE ★
Marks: leopard's head crowned; maker's mark G.R., linked in shield; court hand N for 1650; lion passant.

PATENS: (1) BARDWELL on the rim.

Diameter $5\frac{1}{4}$ inches, with a foot. Marks same as on the Cups.

(2) inscribed BARDWELL on the foot.

Diameter $9\frac{1}{4}$ inches, with a foot. Mark one only, R N crowned.

FLAGONS: a pair tankard shaped, with lids and handles.

V

Height $9\frac{3}{4}$ inches. In front, a coat of arms in mantling, with helmet, [Gules] on a bend [Argent] three ducks, [Sable] beaked and legged [of the first].—A crescent for difference—Crest: a duck, sable. Read. Thomas Read, of Wrangle, co. Lincoln, married Nov. 22. 1642 Bridget, daughter and co-heiress of Sir Charles Crofts, K^{nt} of Bardwell. (See Thorpe-by-Ixworth.)

Marks: leopard's head crowned, black-letter small a in shield for 1678, maker's mark R N crowned, repeated on the handles; lion passant.

ALMS DISH: plated. Diameter 1 foot.

BARNHAM. S. GREGORY.

CUP: Elizabethan, a band of foliage on the bowl, no boss in the stem. One mark, a fleur de lis.

Height $6\frac{1}{8}$ inches; diameter of bowl $3\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

PATEN: inscription on the rim:—In honorem Dei Et in usum Ecclesiae de Barnham, D.D.D. Iacobus Devereux Hustler, S.T.B. Rector, 1832.

Rev. J. D. Hustler died Nov. 5. 1849, buried in Euston Churchyard, where there is M.I.

Diameter 9 inches, with a foot, I.H.S. in rays in the centre.

Marks: leopard's head not crowned; maker's mark R G under crown; lion passant; small Roman q for 1831; head of Victoria.

FLAGON: height 1 foot, I.H.S. in rays on front.

Marks: leopard's head crowned; small Roman u in shield, for 1755; makers' mark W S, W P (for William Shaw and William Priest, as in Cripps under 1759); lion passant. Inscription as on the Alms dish.

ALMS DISH: inscription:—Ecclesiae Sancti Gregory de Barnham, D.D.D. Ar. Kynnesman, Rect. A.D., 1756.

In the Chancel of this church is a lozenge-shaped slab to Rev. A. Kynnesman, Rector, who died 10th July, 1770, aged 88.

Diameter $10\frac{3}{8}$ inches. Marks: I. S. in circle, the others defaced.

BARNINGHAM. S. ANDREW.

CUP: Elizabethan, a circular band of strap foliage round the bowl. Height 6 inches; diameter of bowl $3\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

Marks: a fleur de lis, and a stamped letter B without shield.

PATEN: diameter $4\frac{1}{8}$ inches, no foot. Marks: as on the Cup. There is a circle in the centre, and the piece was probably re-made out of the old plate.

FLAGON: tankard shaped. Height 8 inches.

Marks: leopard's head crowned; maker's mark F. C. in square, for Francis Crump (as in Cripps under 1769), black letter capital G in shield for 1762; lion passant.

EUSTON. Original dedication, S. GENEVIEVE.

CUP: inscription underneath: Presented to Euston Church by George Henry, Duke of Grafton, 1833.

Height 8 inches; diameter of bowl $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches.

Marks: leopard's head not crowned; lion passant; I.H.S. in rays on the bowl; small Roman r in cornered shield for 1832; head of Victoria. Maker's mark R. H. in square.

PATEN: with a foot; I.H.S. in the centre. Diameter $5\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

Marks: the same, except that the date letter is u, for 1828. The same inscription underneath.

ALMS DISH: diameter $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches. I.H.S. in the centre.

Marks: the same except that the letter is e for 1820; and the maker's mark is R.S. in script hand, in square. The same inscription.

FLAGON: tankard shaped. Height $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches. I.H.S. on front.

Marks: as on the cup: the same inscription underneath.

The donor of this set was 4th Duke of Grafton, K.G., born 14 Jan. 1760; died 28 Sept. 1844.

There is also here a magnificent set of copper-gilt Communion Plate: viz.,—

A Pair of CUPS with COVERS: Height $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches; diameter of bowls $5\frac{1}{4}$ inches. The bowls are half-spheres, the stems have a straight boss, and the bases are hexagon in form, spreading to $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches in diameter. The covers are flat, with a knob of foliage. On the bowls, the covers, and the feet, is a plain shield, surrounded by the Garter of the Order, with its motto, and surmounted by an Earl's coronet, viz.:—Gules, a bezant between three demi lions rampant, coupé, Argent. Bennet: impaling, Quarterly, 1st & 4th. Or. a lion rampant, Gules, crowned Azure. Diets: 2nd & 3rd Azure, semée of billets, a lion rampant, Or. Nassau.

PATEN: with a foot. Diameter 1 foot 1 inch. Height 4 inches. The same arms in centre.

ALMS DISH: diameter 1 foot $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches. The same arms in centre.

FLAGONS: a pair tankard shaped. Height 10 inches. The same arms on the sides and on the lids.

There are no marks on any of these pieces, being copper. The armorial bearings on this fine set, which is better suited for ornament than use, are those of Sir Henry Bennet, second son of Sir John Bennet, K^{nt} of Dawley, co. Middlesex, by Dorothy, daughter of Sir John Crofts, K^{nt} of Saxham, co. Suffolk; and brother of the first Baron Ossulton. He was raised to the Peerage, and created Baron Arlington 14. March, 1664; and Viscount Thetford, and Earl Arlington, 22. April, 1672, having become Knight of the Garter, 15. June, 1672. He purchased the Euston estate from the family of Fielding. He married Isabella, daughter of Lewis de Nassau, Lord of Auverquerque, Holland, and Count of Nassau. He died s.p.m. 28 July, 1685, aged 67, and was buried at Euston.* Their only daughter and heiress Isabella married (at the age of 4 years) 1 August, 1672, Henry Fitzroy, illegitimate son of King Charles II., 1st Duke of Grafton (at the age of 9 years).† The Plate must therefore have been presented after 1672, and perhaps by

CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK.

DEANERY OF FORDHAM. (SUFFOLK PART.)

This corner of Suffolk, surrounded by Cambridgeshire, has only two old Parishes, but Exning is now divided into two, and has a Mission Church besides. There are no very important pieces of Communion Plate, but the beautiful modern examples which have been presented to Exning S. Agnes deserve special mention.

C. R. MANNING, F.S.A.

Diss Rectory, Norfolk.

EXNING. S. AGNES.

This is a modern parish, formed out of the old parish of Exning in 1887, and is a suburb of Newmarket. Here are two sets of very beautiful and elaborate plate.

CUP: of Norwegian work, silver, parcel gilt; of medieval shape, with a plain bowl, sexfoiled foot, and floriated knop in the stem. The bowl may be modern; the foot has the date 1707 upon it: the stem and knop may be ancient. On the six facets of the knop are letters.

Height $7\frac{3}{4}$ inches; diameter of bowl $4\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

PATENS: a pair, very thin, silver gilt. Diameter $5\frac{1}{4}$ inches. On the rim of each, a cross in a circle, not alike.

SECOND SET.

CUP: wholly gilt: a very beautiful piece, of medieval shape, richly chased and jewelled: a floriated knop in the stem, and a sexfoil foot, on which is a crucifix of silver, in high relief.

Height $8\frac{3}{4}$ inches; diameter of bowl $4\frac{3}{8}$ inches.

Marks: leopard's head uncrowned; maker's mark K R A L L; capital Roman K in shield, for 1885; lion passant; head of Victoria.

PATEN: silver gilt; quite plain, with one depression, a cross on the rim; and the same marks. Diameter $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

ALMS DISH: a flat silver bowl; diameter $5\frac{3}{4}$ inches; with two handles, 3 inches in length, each formed of a standing figure of a saint, on a pedestal, S. Martin and S. Stephen. Round the outer edge is inscribed, in black letters:—Pray for Martin Curry who gave this to GOD for St. Agnes Church, 1891.

Marks: leopard's head uncrowned; K R A L L; capital Roman P in shield, for 1890: C. K.; lion passant.

CRUETS: pair of glass, silver mounted.

FLOWER VASES: three silver; beaker-shaped Norwegian drinking cups. Height $5\frac{3}{4}$ inches. They stand on three small feet, and have engraved bands, from which rings and ornaments are suspended. Inscribed:—O. O. S. T. S. D. 1728. On another S. P. S. Φ.

CRUCIFIX: a very fine silver; height 2 feet; the cross is terminated by the evangelistic symbols, and is mounted on marble.

EXNING. S. MARTIN.

CUP: Elizabethan. On the bowl is the usual floral band. The only mark is a fleur de lis.

Height $6\frac{3}{4}$ inches; diameter of bowl $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches.

PATENS: (1) with a foot; diameter $5\frac{5}{8}$ inches.

Marks: leopard's head crowned; maker's mark R.S. in shaped shield, between two stars, as in Cripps under 1637; italic v in shield, for 1637-8; lion passant.

(2) on a foot, 2 inches high. Has I H S in rays in the centre; diameter 6 inches.

Marks: leopard's head uncrowned; maker's mark W. E. in long square; small Roman k for 1825; lion passant; head of George IV.

FLAGON: tankard shaped. I. H. S. in rays on front.

Height 10 inches.

Marks: leopard's head uncrowned; small Roman letter p for 1830; maker's mark C. F. in oblong; lion passant; sovereign's head.

EXNING. S. PHILIP'S MISSION CHURCH.

At this building, which is within the old parish of S. Martin, the communion plate used (by permission) belongs to the neighbouring church of LANDWADE S. NICHOLAS, in Cambridgeshire, an ancient seat of the Cotton family, the two parishes being under one Incumbent.

CUP: a very large silver, with a plain straight-sided bowl, and hollow stem.

Height $9\frac{1}{4}$ inches; diameter of bowl, $5\frac{1}{8}$ inches. Inscription near the rim of the bowl:—The Gift of the Ladie Ann Carelton (sic) to the Parish Church of Lanved (sic). Anno 1642.

Marks: leopard's head crowned; maker's mark H. B. conjoined in shaped shield; court hand E for 1642; lion passant.

PATEN: diameter $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches; on a foot $1\frac{1}{2}$ inch high. The same marks. Possibly the foot may be a later addition.

FLAGON : modern glass silver-mounted, with i h s upon it.

The lady above mentioned, as the donor of the plate to Landwade Church, was Anne, daughter of Sir Richard Houghton, Knt., of Houghton, co. Lancaster. Her first husband was Sir John Cotton, of Landwade; and in 1625 she married secondly Sir John Carleton, of Holcombe, co. Oxford, created a Baronet in 1627. She died 17 May, 1671, and was buried at Landwade.

NEWMARKET. S. MARY.

CUPS : (1) with tall stem and a knop in it ; diameter of bowl $3\frac{1}{4}$ inches. Height $7\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

Marks : leopard's head crowned ; maker's mark I. Y. in oblong, for James Young, as in Cripps under 1775 ; small Roman q for 1791 ; lion passant ; head of George III. This cup was a gift from Mrs. Neale.

(2) of medieval shape, with I H S in rays on the bowl, and a knop in the stem. A sexfoil foot, with a cross patté upon it. Height $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches ; diameter of bowl $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches.

Marks : leopard's head uncrowned ; maker's mark H. E. W. in a trefoil ; capital Roman R for 1892 ; lion passant.

PATEN : nearly flat ; diameter $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches. In the centre is the Agnus Dei in a quatrefoil : on the rim is a band, with the Evangelistic symbols. Inscription on the back :—+ Presented by Nellie Mary Bridge to S. Mary's Church, Newmarket, Feb. 18, 1887.

Marks : leopard's head uncrowned ; maker's mark T. P. in oblong ; also a sun and heart within a circle ; capital Roman L for 1886 ; lion passant ; head of Victoria.

ALMS DISH : with a foot. Diameter $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches ; height $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

Marks : leopard's head uncrowned ; maker's mark W. E. in oblong ; small Roman n for 1828 ; lion passant ; head of George IV. Under the foot are other marks, viz. :—maker's mark H. H. in cusped oval ; a small black-letter m in a circle, for 1867 ; and head of Victoria in a circle.

FLAGON : tankard shaped, with a cover on the lid, I. H. S. on the front. Height $9\frac{1}{4}$ inches. Marks : leopard's head uncrowned ; maker's mark H. H. as on the alms dish ; and small Roman q for 1871 ; lion passant ; head of Victoria.

Another Cup and Paten belonging to this parish, are now used at the Workhouse Chapel : viz. :—

CUP : deep bowl, with I. H. S. in rays upon it. Height 8 inches ; diameter $3\frac{1}{4}$ inches. Marks : leopard's head uncrowned ; maker's mark H. H. as before ; and small black letter r for 1872 ; lion passant ; head of Victoria.

PATEN : without a foot ; a cross on the rim ; the same marks, with a capital Roman U for 1895. Diameter $5\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

CRUETS : a pair.

ALMS DISH : brass.

CHURCH PLATE IN SUFFOLK.

DEANERY OF THURLOW.

This Deanery possesses several pieces of Communion Plate of an interesting character. The chalice in use at Higham Green is no doubt partly, if not entirely, of medieval date, although of foreign make. It is a simple and beautiful specimen. Another at Lydgate, probably German, is very good, but of later character. There are Elizabethan pieces, of the usual shape, at Cowlinge, Gazeley, and Great Thurlow. The Dalham plate is a fine and interesting set, with the cipher and mitre of the well known Bishop Simon Patrick. The only armorial plate is at Ousden, where are four handsome pieces with the arms of the Moseley family, of the early part of the eighteenth century, but slightly varying in date. The kind welcome and ready assistance given by the clergy in each parish is gratefully acknowledged.

C. R. MANNING, F.S.A.

Diss Rectory, Norfolk.

BRADLEY GREAT. S. MARY.

Marks: leopard's head uncrowned; black letter small l for 1866; lion passant; head of Victoria.

COWLINGE. S. MARGARET.

CUP: Elizabethan, silver gilt, a floral band round the bowl.

No marks. Height $6\frac{3}{8}$ inches; diameter of bowl $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

PATEN: silver gilt Cover to Cup; diameter $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches, without a foot; two plain rings round the edge. No marks.

ALMS DISH: copper gilt; diameter 1 foot. A cross and a star in the centre. Inscription:—Be merciful after Thy power.

FLAGON: pewter; tankard shaped, with lid; height 1 foot. No marks.

DALHAM. S. MARY.

The Plate of this parish is a fine silver gilt set, all presented apparently by Simon Patrick, Bishop of Ely, 1691—1707, who built a house here in 1705, now the seat of the Affleck family. The somewhat older plate is now at Wangford, in Mildenhall Deanery (Vol. ix., p. 230).

CUP: height 9 inches; diameter of bowl $4\frac{3}{4}$ inches. On the bowl, a double monogram of S. P., within crossed feather ornament, surmounted by a mitre.

Marks: leopard's head crowned; maker's mark I. C.; mullet below, in shaped shield; small black letter o for 1691; lion passant.

PATENS: (1) with a foot; cover to Cup; diameter $5\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Same monogram and mitre underneath the foot. The same marks.

(2) with a foot; same monogram and mitre in centre; height $1\frac{1}{2}$ inch; diameter 9 inches. (See Illustration.) One mark only: I. C. with mullet below, as on the Cup. The other marks near it are incomplete stamps from the same punch.

ALMS DISH: a large circular salver, on a foot, with a rim $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches wide, depressed to the depth of an inch, with raised boss in the centre, on which are the same monogram and mitre. Height $1\frac{1}{4}$ inch; diameter $15\frac{7}{8}$ inches. Same marks as on the cup.

FLAGON : tankard shaped, with lid and thumb piece. The same monogram and mitre of large size, on the front. Height 11 inches ; diameter at the top $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches ; at the bottom outside $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

Marks : leopard's head crowned ; maker's mark R. M. on an arch or bracket ; court hand letter R for 1712 ; lion passant. Possibly the Flagon was repaired and re-stamped at this date, as Bishop Patrick died in 1707. His son was resident at Dalham Hall after him.

DENHAM. S. MARY.

CUP : a silver gilt chalice of medieval shape, of Birmingham make, with boss in stem, and spreading base, much ornamented with jewels and malachite.

Marks : an anchor, the Birmingham town mark ; maker's mark T. T. & Co. ; black letter small b for 1876 ; lion passant ; head of Victoria.

PATENS : (1) silver gilt ; without a foot ; ornamental pattern on the rim. Diameter $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches. The same marks.

(2) not gilt ; on three low feet. Inscription on the back :—The Gift of the Rev. Mr. Gerard Peele Minister of Denham. Obijt 25 Oct. 1727. Aetat 54. Diameter $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

Marks : leopard's head crowned ; maker's mark G., within which is a W, in a shield ; capital Roman N for 1728 ; lion passant.

FLAGONS : (1) plated ; marks T.W. Height 11 inches : head of Victoria.

(2) Pewter.

GAZELEY. ALL SAINTS.

CUPS : (1) Elizabethan ; circular band on the bowl. One mark only, a fleur de lis. Height 6 inches ; diameter of bowl $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

(2) medieval shape, with a knop in the stem, and a sexfoil foot. Height 9 inches ; diameter of bowl $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches. On the bowl is a cross in a circle. On the foot is J B S in a triangle. Inscription underneath :—Gazeley Parish. The Gift of the Rev. Wm. Cooke, M.A. Easter, 1866.

Marks : leopard's head uncrowned ; maker's mark I. K. ; black-letter capital T. for 1854 ; lion passant ; head of Victoria.

PATENS : (1) without a foot. Inscription on the rim :—This Pattin belongs to the Parrish of Gazly in Suffolke, 1673.

Diameter 6 inches ; mark I. N. in a heart. (See Cripps under 1662.)

(2) Cover to Cup, without a foot. This appears to be an old piece of 1696 made into a paten to match the cup No. 2. Diameter $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches. In the centre an "Agnus Dei," and round the rim in Lombardic capitals :—O Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world, have mercy upon us. Underneath, the same inscription as on cup No. 2.

Marks : Britannia ; lion's head erased ; maker's mark D i with pellet below, in shaped shield ; court hand a for 1696.

FLAGON : tankard shaped. Inscription, Gazeley Parish.

Mark : cross keys in a shield.

ALMS DISH : of brass. Presented by Miss C. and Miss E. Justice, at Easter, 1888.

HIGHAM GREEN. S. STEPHEN.

This Parish was formerly a Hamlet of Gazeley, and was formed into a separate benefice in 1861, when the church was built.

CUP: a beautiful silver gilt chalice of medieval shape, obtained at Florence, and presented to the church with the other vessels, by H. J. Porteous Oakes, Esq., of Nowton Court. Height 7 inches; diameter of bowl $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches. The knop in the stem has facets with small medallions in copper, representing a Bishop, Priest, and Deacon, and the Rood. This part is ancient, probably 15th century; the bowl and base may be of later date. It is not English work. No marks.

PATEN: silver gilt; i h c in the centre in a foliated circle; stamped T. Keith, 41. Westmoreland Place. City Road. London; diameter $5\frac{1}{4}$ inches.

Marks; leopard's head uncrowned; maker's mark I.K.; small black letter d for 1859; lion passant; head of Victoria.

FLAGON: of glass, with silver gilt mount, and a cross upon it.

ALMS DISH: of brass; i h c in the centre. Inscription round the rim, ✠ Tua sunt omnia Domine et de Tuis Dedimus Tibi. Stamped: T. Keith, &c.

KENTFORD. S. MARY.

CUP: straight sided bowl, on baluster stem; height 6 inches; diameter of bowl $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches.

Marks: leopard's head crowned; maker's mark T.R., crescent above in a shield; black letter capital E for 1662; lion passant.

PATEN: without a foot; K on the back for Kentford; diameter 5 inches. No hall marks.

LYDGATE. S. MARY.

CUP: a silver gilt chalice, of late medieval shape, bought of Messrs. Lambert & Co., of London, and of foreign make, perhaps Nuremburg, of the seventeenth (?) century. The bowl is plain: the stem has a cup-shaped knop of six ribs: the foot is sex-foiled, and has a crucifixion somewhat coarsely engraved on one of its compartments. Underneath the foot is scratched ¹⁰⁻¹⁷₁₄₉₈₄.

Height $8\frac{3}{4}$ inches; diameter of bowl 4 inches.

Marks: the letter I in a shield: a crowned shield with perhaps a coat of arms (a bend within a border?); another obliterated.

PATEN: a flat dish without a rim or foot. Bought from Messrs. T. Lambert, Coventry St. London. Diameter 6 inches.

Marks: leopard's head uncrowned; black letter O for 1869; lion passant; N—1868. A.S.

MOULTON. S. PETER.

CUP: plain bowl on tall stem. Height 8 inches; diameter of bowl $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Inscription underneath the foot. Given to the church at Moulton in the County of Suffolk by Mary Anne Sister of the Rev^d Edmund Mortlock the Rector, 1853. By Harvey & Co., Regent Street.

Marks: leopard's head uncrowned; maker's mark F.F. in square; black letter capital S for 1853; lion passant; head of Victoria.

Miss Mortlock died June 5, 1853, aged 60, buried in Churchyard near East window of Chancel. M.I.

PATEN: flat; with a foot; with I. H. S. in rays in the centre; height $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches; diameter $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches; the same marks and inscription as on the Cup.

FLAGON: tankard shaped; I. H. S. on the front; height $10\frac{1}{2}$ inches; the same marks and inscription.

ALMS DISHES: a pair; diameter $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches; the same marks.

The older plate of this church was sold when the above set was given.

OUSDEN. S. PETER.

A fine set, with the arms of the Moseley family of Ousden Hall on each piece; but the marks are somewhat indistinct.

CUP: Height $7\frac{1}{4}$ inches; deep bowl; diameter $3\frac{1}{4}$ inches. In front an achievement of the arms and crest of Moseley in a "Jacobean" frame, viz:—Sable, a chevron between three mill-picks, Argent. Crest: out of a naval crown, a demi-lion rampant holding a mill-pick.

Marks: leopard's head crowned; apparently a small black letter a for 1678; or a small Roman a for 1736; lion passant. The latter corresponds best with the engraving of the arms, which however may have been an addition.

PATEN: on a foot, height $2\frac{3}{8}$ inches, in an oval frame of ornament of the Queen Anne period; the same arms and crest in the centre; diameter $8\frac{3}{8}$ inches.

Marks: Britannia; apparently court hand P for 1710; underneath is T.M.; maker's mark indistinct, perhaps L.E. with a crown above for George Lewis, as in Cripps under 1701.

ALMS DISH: a deep bason; a raised boss in the centre with the same arms, but in a "Chippendale" frame of about 1750. On the back is T.M. conjoined in italic capitals.

Diameter $9\frac{3}{8}$ inches. No Marks.

FLAGON: tankard shaped. The same arms on front in a "Jacobean" frame with scale ornament of about 1730.

Height $9\frac{3}{8}$ inches.

Marks: as on Cup, but maker's mark R.L. or A.L. with star above and below.

THURLOW GREAT. ALL SAINTS.

CUP: Elizabethan.

Height $6\frac{3}{4}$ inches; deep bowl with double band of foliage; diameter $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches; edge moulding on the foot.

Marks: leopard's head crowned; small letter black k in plain shield for 1567; lion passant; another mark defaced.

PATENS: (1) cover to Cup; with a foot and a band of foliage.

Diameter $4\frac{1}{8}$ inches.

(2) with a foot. Diameter $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches; height 2 inches.

The Paten and Flagons were given in 1753, by Mrs. Ann Freston.

FLAGONS: two large, have some marks as Paten (2) but the maker's initials W. C. (William Cripps) are plain.

Another Cup, Paten, and Flagon, of electro plate, by Jones and Willis, were lately given by the widow of the late Rector; on the Paten is :—In Maiorem Dei Gloriam, et in piam memoriam Gualt, Gul. Jones, A.M. Huiusce Ecclesiae Rectoris per annos MDCCCXCIII—MDCCCXCV, d. d. Uxor mœrens I. M. I.

Rev. Wm. Jones died Tuesday 7 Nov. 1895.

WOODBIDGE. SECKFORD HOSPITAL.

CUP: PATEN: and FLAGON: are well gilt, and probably of French or Continental make.

The Cup and Flagon are very fine of repoussé work, the Paten is plain.

Each piece bears this Inscription :—In Usam Hospitii Pauperum Apud Woodbridge Fundati A Thoma Seckfordi Anno D. 1587.

No marks; the general design is somewhat like the Clare Cup, and the Rushbrooke Cups and Patens, each known to be Continental.

NOTES ON THE WOODBRIDGE CHURCH PLATE.

By V. B. REDSTONE.

Extracts from Parish Register.

In the year 1753, Mrs. Anne Freston, widow of the Rev. Thomas Freston, late Vicar of Cratfield, in this County, and sister and heiress of Charles Scrivener, late of Sibton Abbey, in this C^o, Esq. on her succeeding to her brother's estate, being then resident in this town, made a pious donation out of the first fruits of her estate, to the Church of Woodbridge, of two large silver flagons, and one silver plate, for the service of the Communion Table. To avoid ostentation she desired that no arms or inscription should be engraven on the plate—only a glory. Lest the memory of her munificence should be soon lost this record was made by (1779—1791).

THOMAS CARTHEW Rector.

Copy of Mrs. A. Freston's Letter to the Rev. John Clark, Rector, 1753.

Sir,

I thought it but reasonable to dedicate the first fruits that I received from my new fortune to the bountiful Giver of all good things, and I could not think of anything more proper than a couple of silver flagons for the service of the Altar—the occasion of this address to you, is to beg you would be so good as to convey them to the proper place where they should be which I cannot do without discovering from whence they came, which I desire may not be known.

A. FRESTON.

PITMAN MONUMENT.

Pitman. The arms are given by Dallinger as—Gules 2 battle axes in Saltire or between 6 mullets argent. Crest: A Moor's arm proper, advancing a poles axe, handle or headed argent.

The Pitman monument is on the East Wall of the South Aisle. It is of red-veined marble bordered with death's heads. In recesses all in kneeling attitude, are Jeffrey Pitman facing West, his two wives facing North and South, and underneath his two sons also facing each other.

Inscriptions.

1. Constant Pains ye Waye to Prayse
Wealth and Honor did him rayse
Wch. of Pride and Strife ye Seedes
In him bred no such ill weeds
An humble quiet life he ledd.
Now sleeps in Christ, is not dead.
2. Alice his former wife and Spouse most deare
Like fruitful Vine grew by him many a yeare
To him a Sarah a Marthah to his house
A Dorcas to the Poore and Piteous
This Sarah, Marthah, Dorcas fell asleep
Left Husband, House, and Poor for her to weep.
3. William his elder Sonne living was one
In whom divinest Graces brightly shone
Witte Learning Vertue, Faith, & Feare of God
All rarest ornaments in him abode.
Thus graye in Youth, Death cropt him in y^e Springe And's Frendes much grieve him endless joy did bring.
4. Here lyeth
Jeffrey Pitman, Esq. and sometime
High Sheriffe of Suffolk. who died ye 21 of May A^o 1627 Ætatis 67. He had two wives
Alice & Anne. Alice dyed 29 of Aug 1613 Ætatis 52; By her he had 7: children. 3 died in their infancy, William his eldest Sonne was a long time student in Grayes Inn. He died Sep 23
A^o 1615 Ætatis 24: Jeffrey his second son was lik wise a student in Grayes Inn and died y^e 9 of Feb A^o 1626 Ætatis 24. Anne his second wife still liveth as also his two daughters Mary and Avise
5. His younger son that bore his name
Through Christ his Saviour freed from blame
His life was short yet lives he ever.
Death has his due yet dies he never.

If the cups bear date 1636, and Jeffrey Pitman died 1627, is it not more probable that his relict, Ann Pitman, was the donor than Jeffrey?

MINISTERS OF SUFFOLK EJECTED 1643-4.

BY REV. FRANCIS HASLEWOOD, F.S.A.,

Rector of S. Matthew's, Ipswich.

Among a miscellaneous collection of papers forwarded to the Honorary Secretary by the Rev. Sydenham H. A. Hervey, Vicar of Wedmore, son of the late Bishop of Bath and Wells (Lord A. C. Hervey), one of the original founders of the Institute, was the following document. It is written on a single folio sheet of paper, in a fairly good hand. As so many clergymen, and the benefices they served, are mentioned, a careful transcript of the manuscript will prove of interest. There is no clue as to the writer, the original being merely endorsed,

PARISH REGISTER OF BRADFIELD S. CLARE.

BY REV. FRANCIS HASLEWOOD, F.S.A.,

Rector of S. Matthew's, Ipswich.

A fragment of the Church Register of Bradfield S. Clare has been brought to light after its removal, some thirty years ago, from the Parish Chest, which had been its proper depository for upwards of three centuries.

This interesting record consists of twenty-four pages, written on small quarto paper, and contains Baptisms, Marriages, and Burials from 1541 to 1595. Its dilapidated condition, and the absence of the title page prevented its identification with Bradfield S. Clare, as explained by the memorandum with which the Rev. W. Airy prefaces his careful transcript. His letter (which was pinned on to it) addressed to the late Bishop of Bath and Wells gives a further account of its history. The two entries which he notes as "interesting" appear thus: "1553 October i. the same daye was crouned at Wenssmyster the ladye Mary Qwene of Englande thankes be on to God" (p. 6): and "1588 Julye xxi ther beinge a publike fast uppon the occasion of the Spanishe invasion an unseasonable whether" (p. 22).

It appears that the original Register had been transcribed by another hand, since several entries are repeated in the copy from which the late Canon Cooke made numerous extracts. As both manuscripts contain similar entries:—notably, the burials of two Rectors, namely, that of John Walker in 1556, and Richard Wadnowlle in 1578, we have conclusive evidence that the fragment of Register relates to the Parish of Bradfield S. Clare.

In 1835 the portion of a parish-register inserted at the end of this book was found in the parish-chest of Bradfield S. Clare; but as the registers of that parish were complete,* and as the name "Monks Bradfield" occurs twice,—once in the year 1588, where it is erased as if unneeded—and once in the fragmentary record on page 23—I presumed that this is a portion of the early registers of Bradfield St. George. As its state of preservation is by no means good, I made a literal transcript of it, to which I have attached the original.

W. AIRY

Vicar of Keysoe and Rector of Swynshed, formerly Rector of Bradfield St. Clare.

P.S.—In July 1856 I called upon the Rector of Bradfield St. George, and, by his permission, examined the Registers of that Parish, but found that they were perfect from 1555, and not accordant with this; so that it is still doubtful to what parish this belongs.

W. A.

The Vicarage, Keysoe.
30 Sep^r 1863.

Dear Lord Arthur Hervey

By this post I have forwarded to you a portion of a parish-register, which, if the parish to which it belongs cannot be ascertained, ought certainly to be in your hands both as Archdeacon and as antiquary. The note which I made at the commencement of the transcript many years ago explains its history: and from the evidence there referred to, I always supposed it to belong to Bradfield S. George, but when I offered it to the late Mr. Davers he refused both to accept it, and to let me compare it with the registers of that parish. A few years since I had the opportunity, through the courtesy of Mr. Cartwright, of comparing them, and the result I have set down in a postscript to the note before mentioned.

The two entries which I have noted as "interesting" refer, I see, to the coronation of Queen Mary, and the publick Fast on account of the Spanish Invasion.

With apologies for troubling you, I remain,
dear Lord Arthur Hervey,
very faithfully yours,
W. AIRY.

Interesting entries occur in the years 1553 and 1588.

* From, I think, the year 1535.

Shortly after this entry under the year 1661 (p. 34) an entry of seven lines has been obliterated with a pen so completely as to be for the most part illegible. It seems to refer to the exit of M^r Samuel Crossman on St Bartholomew's day: possibly it may have been a protest: for immediately under it follows the emphatic entry:

Thomas Constable formerly vicar of Lindsell Essex was legally instituted and inducted upon St Jeames his day 1661

Under M^r Constable it is usually distinctly stated whether marriages were by banns or license.

On p. 16 in vol. 4 there is a curious notice of a child who was privately baptised in 1789 and not received into the church till nearly 30 years afterwards viz, May 28th 1818. The number of private baptisms all through this volume is very remarkable, though the children were generally received into church soon after. Altogether the way in which the Registers have been kept throughout is most creditable to those who successively had charge of the books, not least to Mr Samuel Crossman the puritan who began them as they now stand.

ANNUAL EXCURSION.

GRUNDISBURGH, BURGH, WOODBRIDGE, SECKFORD HALL, GREAT BEALINGS, PLAYFORD.

The Annual Excursion took place on June 9th, 1897, when the neighbourhood of Woodbridge was visited, the Institute not having met there for twenty-five years. The rendezvous was Ipswich Cornhill, where vehicles were in readiness to convey members to the different places named on the programme. The first halt was made at Grundisburgh Church, of which Mr. V. B. Redstone (on behalf of the Rev. A. E. Flaxman) gave some account. The party alighted next at Burgh Church, which stands on an elevation, with only one house near. The nomenclature denotes Roman occupation, and the many "finds" in adjacent fields leave no doubt that the Imperial legions selected the spot for one of their encampments. The parish clerk had a collection of fragmentary pottery, coins, &c., on view in the porch, all turned up during ploughing operations in the field adjoining the churchyard. Undoubtedly the pottery is Roman; of the coins, it is not so easy to speak positively. Dr. Raven being unable to be present sent his paper, which was read by the Honorary Secretary. Mr. Redstone added some remarks on the dual dedication of the church, and pointed out a very unique picture in one of the windows, representing Jael slaying Sisera.

Dinner was served in the Assembly-room at the Bull Hotel, Woodbridge, the Rev. P. E. Tuckwell, head master of the Grammar School, occupying the Chair, the Rector of S. Mary's (Rev. T. Housecroft) being from home. The company included Rev. W. Wyles, Rev. M. B. Cowell, Rev. F. S. Barry, Miss Coates, Mr. T. Harrison, Mr. W. A. Bunn, Mr. B. P. Grimsey and Miss Grimsey, Mr. T. Miller, Mr. H. Miller and Mrs. Miller, the Misses Key (Aldeburgh), Rev. Dr. Haslewood (Chislet), and Mrs. Haslewood, Rev. F. Haslewood, F.S.A., and Mrs. Haslewood, Mr. W. H. Booth, Mr. Percy Wainwright and Mrs. Wainwright, Mr. V. B. Redstone, Mr. John Arnott, and several visitors and friends, including many ladies. The Honorary Secretary (Rev. F. Haslewood, F.S.A.) mentioned that some considerable time had elapsed since the last excursion to Woodbridge, and expressed pleasure at the opportunity of visiting the town again. During the past ten years the membership of the Institute had been well maintained. An annual volume has been punctually delivered, and he had been able to make a return of all the Church Plate in the county. The publication as regards twenty-four Deaneries had been accomplished ; the remaining three, he hoped, would soon be complete, and when that work was done he thought his office as Honorary Secretary would terminate.

Mr. Redstone gave a tersely summarised history of the town, the principal point of which was the ancient rivalry with Ipswich. When the market was proposed, Ipswich raised an objection, and the matter was settled by compromise : yet every Ipswich notable was cradled in Woodbridge ! Woodbridge had an important carrying trade—it was a limb of Yarmouth ; Ipswich could not do anything without the help of Woodbridge ; it was so at the time of the Armada, when two Woodbridge ships were sent, to one from Ipswich. The Cromwellian period was “a glorious time” for Woodbridge ; the Protector made a great dockyard by the Deben, and therein many warships were built. It was at Woodbridge that the first blow at the power of Wolsey was dealt by a Commission. All these and many more points of interest were touched on, Mr. Redstone having evidently made himself master of the archæology and history of the district.

Members then proceeded to S. Mary’s Church, where Mr. John Arnott read a paper on the Church and Priory.

The visitors found an unusually large number of objects of interest. The parochial registers yielded surprising testimony to the virulence of the pestilence in 1666, and there was a narrative of a desperate engagement between the train-bands of Ipswich and Woodbridge, in 1626, at Martlesham. The Ipswich band, led by Edward Withipoll, having vanquished their rivals—the captain and lieutenant of the Woodbridge band were among the slain—returned to ring the church bells by way of triumph.

Before resuming their seats in the carriages, members inspected the exterior of the Town Hall, and Weigh house, the latter being one of the very few still in existence, as illustrating the steel-yard principle of weighing heavy goods in olden times.

A short drive brought the excursionists to the fine Elizabethan Mansion known as Seckford Hall, thrown open to the visitors by Mr. G. W. Hunt, and a history of the Seckford family was given by Mr. Redstone. The date of erection is put at 1550 to 1580. Not a Seckford can now be found in Suffolk, and there are no descendants of the renowned soldiers and citizens of London.

Visits were also paid to Great Bealings Church and Playford Church, both dedicated to S. Mary ; in the latter is a fine brass of Sir John Felbrigg, A.D. 1400. For a small village Playford has a history, or rather from Playford have gone forth men of renown in the philanthropic and scientific world—Thomas Clarkson and Sir George Biddell Airy ; the remains of both are interred in the church and churchyard. At Playford Hall, a good example of the moated mansions of Suffolk, the party were welcomed to tea by Mr. George E. Crisp, one of the most diligent collectors of curios in the country. The mansion has become familiar to Ipswich antiquarians, Mr. Crisp having on former occasions welcomed members of our Society.

BURGH, NEAR WOODBRIDGE.

BY REV. JOHN JAMES RAVEN, D.D., F.S.A.,

and Honorary Canon of Norwich Cathedral.

Among the dozen places in the county in which the syllable burgh in some shape survives, two retain the name pure and simple, both noted as Roman Camps, the station of the Count of the Saxon shore on the Yare estuary, called Gariannonum, which we visited some twelve years ago, and the place where we are assembled to-day.

In itself the name is of no small etymological importance. Time was when everything was traced to the Hebrew. Recently the pendulum has had an opposite swing, and a hard and fast line was sought to be established between Semitic and Indo-Germanic roots.

But resemblances, though not accountable, are not therefore to be put out of account. Certain it is that we find Birah in late Hebrew, used in Nehemiah ii. 8, for that fortress of the temple called Βάρις, and Turris Antonia. Gesenius suggests a connection between this word and one with a prefixed Aleph, signifying very mighty, but in any case it is allied to the well-known Sanskrit pura (fort) existing in so many names in Hindostan, and among others to the Greek πύργος, a tower. Apparently Burgus did not get into the Roman Vocabulary through the Greek, being a very late arrival. Conquerors pick up the language of the conquered, and possibly from a German source arose this convenient name for a fortress, which is first found in the treatise of the Constantinopolitan Vegetius Renatus on Warfare, about the end of the fourth century. "Castellum parvulum quem burgum vocant" are his words. As in troublous times people seek to live enclosed by walls, the name soon widened itself to the intramural houses, and thus the present use of borough, burgess, &c., came about.

When this name became attached to the camp where we are met to-day is not clear, but probably, as in the case of Burgh Castle, in the early Saxon period. When Ptolemy was putting forth his geography there was more activity in North Britain than hereabouts. O'vventa (Venta) is the only Eastern Counties name which he condescends to notice, but I wish to lay before you the evidence which has led to the identification of this place with the Combretonium of the Itinerary of the Provinces, commonly called Antonine's Itinerary. It has fallen to my lot to speak so frequently of this record that I need only say on the present occasion that its date appears to be c. 200, and that Caracalla, son of the great Emperor Septimius Severus, called Antoninus, is probably the person whose name the Road-book bears.

Combretonium occurs in the Ninth of the British routes, on a road running to London from Venta Icenorum, which I identify with Norwich, not with its ancient neighbour Caister, on the Tase, which seems identical with Ad Taum in another authority. The stations on the road with which we are concerned are Sitomagus, Combretonium and Ad Ansam. Starting from Venta Icenorum the lengths of the stages are respectively 32, 22 and 15 miles. I assume here that Ad Ansam is Stratford S. Mary, venturing to refer to my Suffolk, Chapter III., for evidence. We thus have 67 Roman miles to account for between Norwich and this village on the Stour. The actual distance is roughly two thirds of this, and consequently there must have been a considerable deflection eastward or westward.

The eastward theory, which I adopt, gives Dunwich for Sitomagus, and places Combretonium here. The westward deflection, favoured by Camden, takes us to Thetford and Brettenham. Camden's reasons are mainly etymological, and etymology in his hands is too ductile, for he calls the Thet the Sit, against all authority. Brettenham for Com- bretonium is ready to hand. There are traces of a camp there, less distinguishable every year, about three-quarters of a mile from which is Castle Hill, a somewhat commanding situation. Thus, though there is no tradition as to the finding of coins, pottery, &c., at Brettenham, as Canon Betham tells me, there is prima facie evidence to connect it with Combretonium, were there not stronger evidence for Burgh.

Camden's selection does not go beyond Thetford. His disciple William Burton (1658) in his Commentary on Antoninus his Itinerary (p. 229), leans towards Brettenham, but does not speak positively.

That "capital fire-side traveller," as our lamented old friend Mr. Bloxam used to call him, Reynolds (Iter Britanniarum, Cambridge, 1799) places Combretonium at Stratford, possibly Stratford S. Andrew (if so, far too near Dunwich), possibly Stratford S. Mary (if so, far too near Colchester); Conrad Mannert, who on this occasion pays most regard to measurement, favours Woodbridge, and Lapie, whose good genius seems to have momentarily deserted him, takes the place to Ipswich. All these, however, favour the eastward deflection. Of greater importance is the testimony of the Tabula Peutingeriana. This remarkable relic, which is now in the Imperial Library at Vienna, was probably copied (c. 1265) by the monk who wrote the Annals of Colmar from another, which had its origin in the Map of M. Vipsanius Agrippa (c. B.C. 10), but must have received many subsequent modifications and additions. Here Convetni, one of those pleasing varieties of spelling for which students of Itineraries must be prepared, is evidently Combretonium, for close to it is written xv., the Antonine mileage between that station and Ad Ansam. No road is drawn passing through it, suggesting that the fine post-Itinerary road from Ipswich northward, which is indicated clearly as going through Ad Taum, had already drawn the traffic away from Antonine Route ix. There can be no doubt as to the eastward position of both the disputed stations, in spite of the abominable drawing. The numbers at Ad Taum and Sinomagi are blundered, but the latter is of course the Sitomagus of the Itinerary.

BRITISH SHEET FROM PEUTINGER'S TABULA,

The camp must have been a large one, stretching from the churchyard at Clopton to that at Burgh, but I can give you no detail of dimensions. The fictile fragments which you have seen are of too ordinary a character to call for remark. With regard to coins, I heard some time ago a legend of a gold coin picked up here, and sold to a watch-maker at Woodbridge. From Mr. Maude I have received four bronze coins: the largest, much rubbed, possibly a Tiberius, with S.C. on the reverse; one of Crispus, the unhappy son of Constantine the Great, with a reverse referring to Vota Decennalia, never to be fulfilled, surrounded with the words CAESARVM NOSTRORVM P (ecunia) S (ignata); another, apparently of the same period, which I cannot read, and a minim with the head of Constantine II. in all resemblance.

And here ends all that can be said about the Roman settlement here, except by way of conjecture.

The Counts of the Saxon Shore, who were officers under the Master of the Foot in the West, would be sure to visit their posts by cruising, but it might happen in exceptionally coarse weather that a water-weary Count should take the road to Colchester or London.

There was a coast road from Burgh Castle southward, and thus Nectaridius, Nannenus, or even the celebrated Carausius himself might have found hospitality within these walls.

We must pass with a bound to the days of William the Conqueror. In Domesday Book we are again confronted with great varieties of spelling. Burch is the normal type, suggesting to my mind that the well-known East Anglian surname in its diversities may hail from this place. Burc, Burh, Burhc, Burgh, Burcg and Burg are alternative forms, of a phonetic character.

So far as I can judge, about a quarter of the land was under cultivation.

Ten owners are named, Count Alan, Count Hugo, Robert Malet, R. de Glanville, Roger of Poitou, William de Warenne, Hugh de Montfort (which we find by the Inquisitio Eliensis to have been pronounced Munford), Geoffrey de Magna Villa, the Countess of Albemarle and Humphrey the Chamberlain, in addition to the lands of S. Etheldreda, held by the great Benedictine House at Ely. These are of the type who, like Abraham and Lot in the Book Genesis, divided the land. Take the Poictevin Roger for instance. I find him here. In the parish of Fressingfield he was possessed of the fair lands of Wetyingham; and a glance shows him at Hawkedon in Risbridge Hundred and many other places, especially South Lancashire. How these people looked after their property is a wonder. In passing from Norman grantees I should be glad of any information about the Countess of Albemarle, as the earliest notice I can find of the title is in 1097, when the Conqueror granted it to Stephen, son of Odo Earl of Blois, whom for the further maintenance of his estate he also endowed with Holderness. This Stephen, described as son of the Conqueror's half-sister by the mother's side, appears to have been succeeded in 1126 by his son William, who was buried at Thornton-on-the-Humber, leaving two daughters. But the earliest of these dates is ten years too late for the lady on whose land in this parish were two free men, one under the protection of S. Etheldreda, and the other of the Count Ralph. Her Burgh property does not seem to have been well managed, there being only half a plough-team at the Survey in the place of the two plough-teams of former days. Indeed, with the exception of William of Warenne's assessment, things seem to have gone back here on the whole since the days of Edward the Confessor. His money value is a little up, and where there were 16 pigs, there are now 12 pigs and 17 sheep. Under the heading of his lands also is named "i. ecclesia de viii. acris," and it is significantly added "et plures habent partem," built as it was doubtless by the joint efforts of the Burgenses. Brixteuuold, a freeman of S. Etheldreda, seems to have thriven, as we find Brixuoldestona among the Ely lands in Colneis Hundred, 6 quarentenes by 2. No manor is mentioned in Domesday Book.

The Uffords were Lords of the Manor here in the fourteenth century. Two of them held the Earldom of Suffolk, and their arms, Sable, a cross engrailed or, are often found in glass, or in the quarterings of subsequent coats. Thomas, the first Earl, married Margaret de Norwich of Mettingham, a daughter of the great Admiral who won the battle of Sluys one fine summer day. Their son William lies at Woodbridge, and in his day shared fully in the troubles which befell the country. In the great Villein insurrection under the "lewd Priest," John Wraw, in 1381, when some fifty thousand are said to have been in revolt in Suffolk, there was an intention to bring "William Ufford, Earl of Suffolk, into their fellowship, but he, advertised of their intention, suddenly rose from supper and got him away." Thus Baker, after William of Walsingham, from whom we learn that Ufford, "disguising himself, came through by-ways to the King at S. Alban's, with a Wallet on his shoulder, pretending to be a servant to Sir Roger de Boys" (Tindall's notes to Rapin).

Next year, after the marriage of the King with Anne of Bohemia, "Parliament began again, in which William Ufford, Earl of Suffolk, being chosen by the Knights of the Shires to deliver, in behalf of the Commonwealth, certain matters concerning the same; the very day and hour in which he should have done the business, as he went up the stairs towards the upper House, he suddenly fell down and died, having been merry and well before to all men's judgments." It was indeed an exciting time, the Commons objecting alike to Rebellion, and to the proposed methods of preventing it, and using a Temporal Peer to head the opposition which seemed too feeble if emanating merely from the House of Commons. The times are verily changed. Thus sinks the noble house of Ufford, Lords of the Manor of Burgh, and with this collapse must end this paper, which has run its normal length.

THE CHURCH AND PRIORY OF S. MARY, WOODBRIDGE.

BY JOHN ARNOTT.

At what date the earliest parish church of Woodbridge was founded there is no evidence to show ; but Domesday book records that among the possessions of Robert Malet, in " Wodebryge " was a Church with nineteen acres of land.

From the Malets the estates passed to the famous Earl Bigod ; and then to the families of Rufus or Rous and Seagrave, members of which were by marriage connected with Thomas of Brotherton, son of Edward I.

The Priory was founded either by Ernardus Rufus (or Rous) or his son Hugh at what precise date is uncertain, but probably about 1193, and was of the Order of Saint Augustine of Hippo, the chief of the orders of regular Canons. There were at first only some five or six Canons, but it soon increased in numbers, and was endowed by many benefactors with lands in Woodbridge, Hasketon, Burgh, Grundisburgh, Stradbroke, Ipswich and elsewhere. Between it and the great Abbey of Butley there long existed a close connection, while at Alnesbourn, near Ipswich was founded a daughter cell. The advowsons of Brandeston, and of S. Gregory, Ipswich, Hallowtree in Nacton, and Alnesbourn were vested in it. The first Prior of whom we know is Prior Ambrose, in 1267, and after him the 19 who followed can be traced in regular succession.

WOODBIDGE

But the Priory Records were dispersed at the Dissolution, and it is only possible to gather up fragments of its history here and there from charters and deeds, and there is little over which we need linger. The Priors fostered and supervised the commercial life of the town. They provided for its educational requirements, and for its spiritual needs: and even their enemies have no scandalous tales to tell of the Canons of Woodbridge Priory.

The old Parish Church served for a time as the Priory Church too, and within its walls were buried many members of noted Suffolk families:—Ufford, Rous, Brews, Peyton, Weyland, and others. In it was an Altar of S. Thomas of Canterbury. Of the Priory buildings no trace is now left, but they were probably of considerable extent. Whether any portion is incorporated in the present Abbey building is very doubtful; more probably they stood further westward, for the great Gateway was in Sackford street. The rectangular fish pond yet remains.

The exact date of the foundation of the present church and its founder's name cannot now be certainly known. It has long been ascribed to John Lord Seagrave and Margaret de Brotherton, his wife; but the former died in 1353, and the architectural features of the building forbid us to date its founding earlier than the last years of the XIVth, or early in the XVth century. Sir Robert de Brews, one of a great church building family whose hand is traceable in many Suffolk churches, contributed largely to the building of the splendid Tower and North Porch, which were completed soon after 1450. Sir Robert married Ella, daughter of Sir Miles Stapleton, of Ingham, and the Arms of Brews and Stapleton may be traced upon the North Porch, and in the West Window of the North Aisle, the only fragment of pre-reformation stained glass now remaining. But these great Perpendicular Churches speak to us not so much of Warrior Nobles and belted Knights and feudal power, as of a new race of freed-men emerging into wealth and influence, of a prosperous trading class expanding and thriving in a spacious time.

It would seem that almost every person of substance who died in the town during the XV. century, left some bequest towards the building, and doubtless the Trade Guilds, here as elsewhere, gave their help to the good work. And at last there stood the Church as we now see it, with its splendid proportions, its noble arches, its beautiful clerestory, its fine western arch and window and its tower and porch, which, even in Suffolk, have few rivals. Within it were, besides the High Altar, Altars of S. Nicholas (as is usual in shipping towns) in the North Aisle, and S. Anne in the South Aisle. Piscinæ mark the sides of these, and the row of sedilia on the South side of the Altar for the canons assisting, reminds us of the Priory near.

The Church, which is a fine example of the flint Churches of the Eastern Counties, is 109 feet in length (excluding Tower), and 53 feet wide, the height of the nave and chancel (between which there is no external distinction) is about 49 feet, and that of the tower 108 feet. The pillars and arches which support the roof of the nave, the clerestory, the western window, and the tower belong to best period of Perpendicular Architecture. The Aisle windows exhibit lingering traces of the decorated style; a distinctly decorated window in the South side of the tower was perhaps brought from the Priory buildings. I would point out as worthy of close inspection the curious "grotesques" which adorn the corbels of the roof of the South Aisle. Two alone of these—near the South door—are proper faces, and these may probably be portraits of the founder and his wife. The woman has a caul head-dress, date about 1400. The flint panelling of the Porch is very fine, and that of the Tower parapets and the band of tracery beneath them is exceptionally good.

The Rood Screen, of which the mutilated base alone remains, when complete was probably little inferior to any of the famous Suffolk Screens. It was very lofty, as will be observed from the height of the upper doorway, and richly carved, gilded and painted, and was erected by John Albrede, twill-weaver, and Agnes his wife who died (as their Wills indicate) about 1450. The Saints depicted on it are probably as under :—

There were formerly at least 34 panels, of which coloured drawings (made about 1790) are in the British Museum, including S. Kenelm, S. Oswald, S. Blase, S. Leodgar, S. Jerome, S. Quintin, and others. These most interesting portraitures, some of which are very rarely found, seem to have been specially selected for destruction about 1830, when a number of the panels were grained over and used to form a reading desk! The Inscription so far as legible in 1790 was "orate pro animās Johannis Albrede et Agnetis uxoris ejus qui soluerunt pro pictura totius hujus operis superni.....videlicet crucis crucifixi Marie Archangelorum et.....Totius candelabr....."

The Font, too, though sadly mutilated, is worthy of notice. The designs in its Panels are very quaint, and represent the Seven Sacraments with the Crucifixion for the eighth panel. They are—8 The Crucifixion.

The base is adorned with the Lily of S. Mary. The head dresses of all the women depicted are of the period 1470—90.

It was not long that the Church and Priory remained in their completeness. About 1530 Thomas Cook, the then Prior, acting under the influence of one of Henry VIII's Ecclesiastical Commissions, alienated a large portion of the Priory Estates into lay hands. After him came Henry Bassingbourn, the last Prior, whose medallion-portrait is still shown in the Abbey, and in 1540 the final dissolution of the Priory, and the grant of its house and manor to Sir Antony Wingfield, of Hasketon. It is a sad and sordid history of self-seeking, and illustrates very clearly that ungodly scramble for Real Estate upon which so much religious benediction has been expended. "Every other nobleman hath his portion," writes the Earl of Norfolk to Thomas Cromwell, "I trust well for Bungay and Woodbridge." He obtained a portion of the estates. The Chancellor, Sir Thomas Audeley, got his picking; Thomas Alverd, of Ipswich, had the Manor of Alnesbourn; the Burgesses of Ipswich sent over post haste to secure the Market Rights. The Tithes of the parish went with the Priory Manor to Sir Antony Wingfield, leaving this large Church and parish only a bare curacy, practically unendowed. The Churchwardens and others sold Church plate to the value of £26 7s. 6d., and applied the proceeds to expenses which should have been defrayed out of the local taxation, also £57 worth more to Sir John Wingfield, for which it is doubtful if he ever paid. In 1542 Sir John pulled down the Priory Church and added the site on which it stood to the Churchyard. In 1564 the Priory lands passed to Thomas Seckford, who paid into the Treasury the sum of £764 8s. 4d. for them.

To Thomas Seckford we owe (1587) the last addition to the fabric of the Church—the North Chancel Aisle in which the Organ stands, and under which is a vault wherein the Seckfords lie buried. To his descendant Dorothy Seckford, who died in 1673, the parish is indebted for the restoration of the Tithes to the service of the Church. Jeffry Pitman, High Sheriff of Suffolk, who died in 1627, and whose imposing monument is seen at the East end of the South Aisle, bequeathed his estates in Martlesham for the reparation and maintenance of the Church. But these are only fitful gleams of better things. In 1640 the Organ was destroyed, and the Commandments painted on the East wall (“very indifferently,” says a subsequent visitor) at a cost of £1 19s. 0d. On January 27th, 1644, the day after his orgie of destruction at the beautiful sister Church of S. Mary at Ufford, came the Parliamentary visitor, Dowsing, who “took down two superstitious inscriptions in brass, and gave order to take down 30 superstition Pictures.” For this the Churchwardens paid 7s. 8d. The Font was disfigured, and a small iron basin costing 2s. was fixed near the pulpit: the painted windows were broken, and the beautiful rood screen defaced; the brasses wrenched from the sockets and ultimately sold. The old oak benches with their carved poppy heads were destroyed. Soon unsightly pews filled nave and aisles: galleries “scaffolded” the Church on all sides, and to make room for them the upper portion of the screen was taken down. About 1658, to save something in the roof timbers, the pitch of the roof was materially lowered, to the sad detriment of the external aspect of the Church.

It was not till 1863 that the parish awoke to its splendid architectural heritage, and the North Porch, which had fallen into serious decay, was tenderly restored. Eleven years later, pews and galleries were swept away, the piscinæ, sedilia, priest's door and rood staircase brought to light, and the rood screen restored to its original position. And if some modern embellishments are conspicuous rather for their good intentions than for their artistic merit, we may at least be glad that again, to quote old Weever's words as to this very parish, "people of all degrees are forward to beautifie the House of God."

TOWN HALL.

This quaint Flemish-looking structure was built by Thomas Seckford about 1575, at which date the Quarter Sessions of the Peace were removed from Melton, where they were formerly held. He gave the upper part for the use of the County for ever, reserving no rent, and the lower portion was and is used as the Market Hall. Formerly the lower part was open on all sides, like many old Market Halls, but in 1803 the arches were enclosed and windows and doors inserted, and other considerable alterations were made. Doubtless the Architect was one of the immigrants from the Low Countries who settled in East Anglia in large numbers in the 15th and 16th Centuries, and who added so materially to the prosperity of their adopted country.

WEIGH HOUSE.

This curious erection, which is attached to a very old half-timbered Inn, was for the weighing of waggon or carts with their loads on their way to the Market Hill. Chains were passed under the cart, which would be just lifted from the ground by the counter-balance during the process. The principle is merely that of the ordinary steelyard—a small weight on a long arm counterbalancing a heavy weight on a short arm—and differs not at all from that of the trim weighing platforms which we find in modern markets. The weigh-bridge has not been used for many years (although the writer remembers seeing a waggon of straw suspended from it some fifteen or twenty years ago), but it is to be hoped that this picturesque and almost unique survival of bye-gone days will long be allowed to remain.

WOODBIDGE, ITS HISTORY AND ANTIQUITY.

BY VINCENT BURROUGH REDSTONE.

The picturesque valley of the Deben has no more charming point of view than the spot where the quiet town of Woodbridge stands upon its right bank. This delightful neighbourhood must have been as attractive to the earliest settlers in Britain, as it is to the modern English householder. The district afforded the early Britons, by the presence of the tidal stream, extensive marshes, heaths, woods and rising ground, abundance of food, and strong protection. In the numerous Haughs—Sutton-haugh, Kingston-haugh, and Bishops-haugh—rising on either side of the river, there remain traces of the first encampments, burial grounds, and homesteads of our ancestors. Doubtless the very name Deben was the word uttered by the savage Gauls who admired the silvery waters of the river winding through its pristine glades, over the bones of antediluvian monsters, and beds of fossil remains. The flint axe of the neolithic age, lying a few feet below the surface, has been discovered in the working of coprolite beds. Other names for the Woodbridge river were the Deave * and the Thredling. Its tributaries the Fynn, and the Naverne, bear Celtic names; the latter now passes through glazed pipes for several yards, the former enters the Deben at Martlesham creek.

When the Romans banished the Britons from their marshes, they fixed over the waters a durable causeway of timber that gave the name Udebryge to the Saxon settlement established on the site adjacent to the old Roman Camp of Combretonium.† A Roman brick-kiln in complete working order was discovered at Byng Hall, about two miles from Woodbridge, in 1846.* Other towns and hamlets of the name Woodbridge, lie in Wiltshire, Surrey, Somerset, Cambridgeshire, New Jersey, U.S.A., and Canada. They are all situated near streams.

The first mention of Woodbridge as a town occurs in the "History of the Abbey of Ely."† Notice is therein taken of a grant of land lying in Udebryge, Brihtwell, and Melton, by King Edgar to the monastery. Bishop Athelwold further increased the wealth of this religious house by the purchase of more lands. Oswy and Leofleda, natives of Woodbridge, endowed the Abbey, (within the precincts of which their son, afterwards Bishop Ailwin, was educated), with all their worldly possessions. It was at Kingston-haugh that Ailwin for a time concealed the relics of King Edmund the Martyr, when the Danes ravaged East Anglia in the days of Ethelred the Unready.

From the survey of lands recorded in the Domesday Book we learn that the domains of S. Etheldreda were greatly diminished, and the territory formerly held by King Harold was divided among the Norman Knights, Geoffrey de Magnaville, Roger de Rheims, Earl Alan, Roger de Poictou, Roger Bigot, and Robert Malet. The proud Bigots, who were endowed with the lands of the outlaw Malet, appear to have been held in great awe by the simple country folk; from them was begotten the headless horseman of the night who rode, and even now rides, unceasingly within the dark shadows of "Erlebygottes Lane."‡ The church which existed in the town at the time of the Norman conquest was given to Robert Malet, but was afterwards the manorial property of the Bigods and Uffords. The priory, founded by Ernaldus Rufus in 1190—1195, was attached to the West end of the church. The date of the foundation of Woodbridge Priory is obtained from a charter§ still extant, signed by Geoffrey, Archdeacon of Suffolk, who died in 1195; William, prior of Butley, 1190—1213; and Roger Capel, who died 1199, with others.

The next fact in connection with Woodbridge history which requires establishing is the date of the grant of Woodbridge market. The historian of Stowmarket,* and the editor of Bacon's Annals of Ipswich, misled by a conception that the Priory was not founded till the end of the 13th century, believed the market was not established before late in the reign of Henry III. Ipswich received its first charter in 1200,† and the burgesses were eager to maintain their newly created rights, when they heard that the monks of Woodbridge sought to establish a market in the town "to be held upon Wednesday in every week." An agreement was signed by which one moiety of the said market with all the customs, tolls, and appurtenances belonging to the said moiety, was granted to the Borough of Ipswich. The signatories on behalf of the Woodbridge monks were, Egidius Rufus, and his son Ernaldus, who was the founder of Woodbridge Priory. Upon the death of Ernaldus in 1227, the manor and market were granted to his son Hugh Rufus.‡ The market having been established during the life-time of Ernaldus, we may take the date 19 Nov. 8 Henry II., § to be 8 Henry III., i.e., the year 1224. The rapid development of the market is seen in the increasing value of the moiety farmed out by the Ipswich Burgesses. It is not known whether the town of Ipswich has in these days any claim over this share of Woodbridge market, or whether the right was lost when Mr. Bailiff Sparrow and the Town Clerk hurriedly despatched John Ward to London "to maintain the liberties of the town," without the necessary documentary evidence, 14th March, 1541. In 1286 Roger Bigod was prescribed to have a fair upon Michaelmas Day, and a market three times a week. The Wednesday market continued as such until 1854, it was especially noted for the sale of hemp.* The history of the Priory forms to a great extent the history of the town, and this is doubtless to be found carefully compiled within its Register, which receives a laudatory notice in the preface to the first edition of Stow's Annals. This Register is now lost, only a few meagre extracts, to be read in Weever's "Funeral Monuments," and the following in Stow's Chronicles (p. 133), are in existence.

"When William II. being returned out of Normandy into England, kept his feast of Whitsuntide very royally at Westminster, in the new Hall, which he lately caused there to be builded, the length whereof was 270 foote and 70 foote in bredth: and when he heard men say that the Hall was too big, and too great, he answered and said, This Hall was not big enough by the one halfe, and is but a bed chamber. in comparison to that I mind to make."

Of the names mentioned by Weever, there are two worthy of notice; Sewell de Woodbridge who supplied Edward I. with horses when he set out from Harwich upon an expedition to France; and Muriell Gouncil who erected a magnificent stone cross dedicated to S. Peter. This cross is mentioned in the Court Rolls of the Priory manor as standing until the days of the Commonwealth.

Besides its market Woodbridge had a large carrying industry; vessels laden with corn left the Woodbridge quays for the distant shores of Iceland, in 1440.† In 1417 Sir Robert Willoughby obtained the livery of the Quay and Pool of Woodbridge, which in 1436 were by licence granted to the Priory. In 1528 upon one tide set sail from Woodbridge three ships for Iceland‡ and three for Scotland. A proclamation had been issued 23rd February, 1484, against ships going to Iceland, "to all owners, masters, mariners of the navies of our counties of Norfolk and Suffolk as well fishers as others intending to part into the parties of Iceland [under penalty of loss of ship and goods] if not purveied of wraughters for your surety in that behalve . . . to gather in havens of Norfolk and Suffolk . . . departe alle together to Hull." * The pirates of the North Sea frequently plundered the English vessels, but it was the Suffolk seamen who in the reign of Edward II. were accused of piracy, and of plundering the ships from Iceland and Denmark.† The study of the carrying trade of Woodbridge is one of great interest. A work upon the maritime enterprise of Suffolk would fill many pages, and not the least exciting part of this history would be the story of John Fox who released the Christian captives from Alexandria, 1577.‡ Limit of space will permit only a small estimate of the great ship-building industry, once the glory of the town.

Referring once more to the Priory, it may be noticed that its inmates were keen observers of the signs of the times. When the commission which sat in Woodbridge, 1529, found Wolsey guilty of breaking the Act of Premunire, Prior Thomas Cook, well versed in canonical law, sought a speedy resignation of his office, and received a pension from the Priory funds which he enjoyed whilst he held the livings of Melton and Bawdsey.§ At the visitation held by the Bishop of Norwich in 1532, complaint was made that although barns and store-houses were empty, and the door of the Convent Church was in decay yet—
"Dicitur quod domus nimium oneratur cum pensione Magistri Coke nuper ibidem."

In the former visitation, 1514, complaining to the Bishop, "Mag. Thomas Cooke dicit quod prior non exigit pecuniam pro certis terris sed omittit videlicet 4^d in una villa, et 8^d et 12d in alia villa, in prejudicem domus ad summam 3 or 4 £.

Item quod Dom : Willelmus Furton habit capacitatem et non est beneficiatus sed est firmarius priori de Butley."

The convent became bankrupt, the priory was in ruins, when its lands and estate were given up to the king who granted them to Sir Antony Wingfield for a term of twenty-one years. Great harmony appears to have existed between the clergy and townsmen under monkish rule. Upon only one occasion does there appear to have been anything like a disturbance. The prior and convent imposed a tax upon the tenants of Robert de Ufford for the repair of the helfry. After many days of contention an amicable settlement of the dispute was made before the Justices in Eyre, 1286.* Whilst the neighbouring villages of Hasketon, Ufford and Boyton, laid complaints of the corrupt practices of Robert de Aviaus, and his clerk Reginald de Martlesham,† and accusations were made against Walter de Butley and others for carrying wool to parts‡ beyond the sea against the royal command, the people of Woodbridge were leading a quiet life under the protection of the Church. When the enraged followers of Jack Straw, incited to further acts of violence at Ipswich, murdered Walter Fraunceys, one of the King's tax collectors, and marched upon Sunday, June 16th, 1381, to plunder and ransack his house at Melton, and to destroy the manorial dwelling of Judge Staverton at Rendlesham,§ they proceeded without any rioting through Woodbridge; the convent escaped molestation. Sunday was the day for riots. It was upon the Lord's day that Richard Flour, with his sons Edward and Hugh at the head of a mob from Ipswich, armed with swords, slings, and arrows, marched into Coddtenham to attack John de Ponte, 8 Ed. Suffolk was long famous for the stout timber of its magnificent oaks,¶ and Woodbridge situated upon a creek and near the forest district afforded a good centre for ship-building. The increase of its commerce had caused the erection of new Quays and larger Docks, and the formation of new Thorofares. To avoid the hills and fens on which the town was developing itself a street was formed, which, after the lapse of nearly four centuries, still bears its original name of New Street, all the other streets of the town have several times been re-named. Within New Street is erected the Old Weighing-machine. The Sessions hall was removed from Melton to Woodbridge about this period by Thomas Seckford, then lord of the manor of Woodbridge Priory (1564—1587). Many ships for the navy as well as for the mercantile marine were built at these docks under the supervision of Peter Pett,* one of the Lords of the Admiralty and chief constructor in the royal dockyard of Deptford, under Cromwell and Charles II. A quotation from the Diary of John Rous, 1628, will show the activity which prevailed in the Deben docks, and the high rank to which the Woodbridgeshipwrights had attained. The Calendar of State Papers, Domes. Series (1626—1660) contains much information upon this subject.

“The Earl of Warwick (Lieutenant of Essex) is to have a new ship built whose timber with the workmanship (iron excepted) must cost twenty-two hundred pounds; it must be fleeter, drawing less water than ordinary, and is to be made at Woodbridge.”†

This was the year in which a fight between the Ipswich train-band under Sir William Withypoll, and the Woodbridge soldiers under Lieutenant Wright, took place upon Martlesham bridge. The lieutenant and his ensign were slain. Two years previous the militia had been guilty of acts of insubordination at the muster of arms on the Market Hill, “men absolutely and contemptuously refused to serve in arms.”‡ This act was only a forerunner of the many acts of defiance which preceded the Great Rebellion. Woodbridge refused to pay ship-money, and the leading inhabitant, John Hodges, captained a body of Suffolk horse which assisted in the siege of Colchester.

Upon the return of monarchical rule the activity of the docks gradually decreased, probably owing to the Royal displeasure falling upon the head of Peter Pett, which led to his dismissal from office. The town was found a convenient place for the imprisonment of one hundred and forty-one Dutch seamen, captured in the fight off the Suffolk coast, November, 1665. The Dutch sailors, who mainly formed the crew of the "Prince Maurice," were placed in the custody of John Margets.

The present Woodbridge school was founded in 1662 by Dorothy Seckford and the leading inhabitants. The first school was founded by John Annott, of Lowestoft, who died in 1577, aged ninety years. The grant was lost to the town in law proceedings in 1606; it cost the town of Lowestoft in 1591 nearly £120 to defend its rights to the school founded under the same will.* A steam saw-mill now occupies the site of the old school, and a neat sketch of the old ornamental timber work which adorns the entrance to the mill is to be seen in Barrett's "Illustrated Tour in the Eastern Counties." The Town Common leased in 1660 to Edmund Munday for the disputed term of 999 years was bequeathed to the town by John Dodd, 1476. The Plague found many victims here. A contemporary writer states, "The sickness is very sad at Norwich and Woodbridge, there died last week at Norwich sixty-three of the plague, eighty-seven in the whole, at Woodbridge forty, 18 July, 1666."† The Earl of Oxford had removed his troop of horse from Newmarket to Woodbridge to escape the plague 28th June, 1666. Bearman's Hill, now Mill Hill, is traditionally stated to have been the place where the victims of this scourge were buried.

Woodbridge has frequently been selected as the station for the quartering of horse soldiers.

It was in 1804 that the Barracks were built at Woodbridge, which were able to contain, Cavalry—Officers and Men, 724; Horses, 720; Infantry—Officers and Men, 4165: number of soldiers' wives and children, Males, 199—Females, 459. The burial ground belonging to the Barracks was consecrated September 13th, 1808.

Much wealth and industry was brought to Woodbridge as well as to other important towns on the Anglian coast by the colliers plying between Newcastle and London. When the "hoastmen" decided to lay up their ships a great coal famine pervaded London, and the "strike" came to an end when the City agreed to allow free and just trade and to pay seventeen shillings a chaldron. The decline of the coal trade caused the passing of the Act of 1 James II. to encourage the building of ships in England.* "Strikes" and "boycotting" appear to injure commerce. When there was a great demand for Suffolk cheese in the London market, "Daniel Herne a Woodbridge warehouseman refused to export cheese for Domville of London, as by so doing he would be shut out by all other cheese-mongers," 1698.† Defoe mentions the export of corn and butter, stating that "the port for shipping off of Suffolk butter is chiefly Woodbridge, which for that reason is full of corn factors and butter factors, some of whom are (1722) very considerable merchants."‡ A great blow was given to trade when the Lords of the Admiralty decided to exclude Suffolk cheese from use in the Navy for the space of three years on account of its inferior quality.§

Should this half-told tale of the history of our quaint old town induce any reader to collect information concerning the life-story of the past ages of the district in which he resides, the writer will consider that his labours of research have not been in vain.

THE RECTORS AND CURATES OF WOODBRIDGE.

There exists a doubt in the minds of many who are interested in the history of the town of Woodbridge, whether the Incumbent of the Parish Church should be designated Rector, or Perpetual Curate. It is certain that when the Priory estate became the property of a layman, the Parish Priest was called the "Curate," but the Monk from the Priory who served the Parish Church before the Dissolution of the Monasteries was also called the "Curate of the Parish" (v. Bishop of Norwich's Visitation 26 June, 1532). The Priory buildings when erected circa 1190 were added to the Church which was standing at the time of the Domesday Book-Survey, and the advowson of the Priory was held by the lord of the manor to whom the manorial Church belonged. This circumstance caused the Convent to levy a tax upon the tenants of Robert de Ufford, for the repair of the Belfry, 1286 (Harl. Ch. 45, A. 50). The present Church was not erected before the 15th Century, for in the various documents wherein the advowson of the Priory is mentioned (I.P.M. Robert de Ufford, 19 Ed. II.; P.F. John Brewse, 7^{mo} Richard II.) no allusion is made to the Church. The Prior was Rector of the Parish, and this title fell upon Sir Antony Wingfield, and Sir John Wingfield, who became the owners of the Priory buildings, and with them of the old Parish Church which was pulled down in 1541 to enlarge the Churchyard. The new owners of the Priory estates appointed the "Curate" as the Priors had previously done. Dorothy Seckford by her will, dated 1672, conferred the Great tithes upon the then Curate, Edmund Brome, for a term of sixty years, after which they were to be the property of three trustees. The tithes have subsequently been the property of the officiating Priest, who, being responsible for such repairs, and holding such claims as fall upon a Rector, has consequently assumed the title.

Browne, in his "History of Nonconformity" upon the authority of Calamy states that Robert Cade, and Frederick Woodall were ejected from their livings at Woodbridge in 1662. Cade remained in his cure until his death in 1665, and Woodall the founder of the Congregational sect in Woodbridge, came from Yarmouth, 1645, and occupied the Pulpit in the Parish Church, as an Independent Preacher, 1645—1651. Cade was for that period sequestered from his living under the order of the Earl of Manchester. For early career of Frederick Woodall, as founder of Quay Church, see petition of fourteen of his Congregation forwarded to Cromwell 10th July, 1656. (Cal. State Papers, Domes. Series.)

F. Woodall was Rector of Brome 1614—1649. v. Institution Books.

19. Edmund Brome was instituted to the living of Southrepps, Norfolk, 14 January, 1647, from which living he was ejected in 1662. His son Edmund, the Woodbridge Incumbent, born at Clerkenwell in 1642, was admitted at St. John's Coll., Cambridge, in 1658, and graduated there a few months before his father's ejection. After holding a Curacy at Clerkenwell for a short time, he became Master of Woodbridge School, 1665, and the following year was appointed "Curate" of Woodbridge. He was also Rector of Great and Little Bealings. He was twice married, his first wife, Anna, died in 1678, by his second wife he had no less than 14 children. John Brome, his eldest son by his second marriage, was Rector of Bromeswell 23 Sept., 1708, and Curate of Hollesley. His son Edmund entered St. John's Coll., Cambridge, 1686, was 10th Wrangler in 1689, and proceeded M.A. 1692, B.D. 1701. He was elected Fellow in 1691, and President in 1714. The Rector of Woodbridge resided with the family of Alan Warwell at the Abbey. He died April, 1719, and his widow in 1724. For interesting facts concerning his ministration see Edmund Bohun's Diary, 1677, and for his experience as a ghost-seer, Glanvill's "Sadducismus triumphatus," pub. 1726, p. 355.

20. John Blyth was appointed to the Rectory of Broxholme, Lincolnshire, in 1714.

22. Rev. T. W. Salmon, M.A., died near Great Yarmouth, 16 July, 1848.

23. During the Incumbency of the Rev. H. Hardinge (afterwards Rector of Theberton) the present Rectory, then a farm-bailiff's house, was selected for the residence of the Rector. The Rev. T. S. Bomford was a feeble old man when appointed to the living; he required the services of two men to assist him in and out of his prayer-desk. He was selected to the sacred office on account of his age, so that the advowson might realize a high market value. The bill announcing its sale ran thus,—

THE SECKFORDS OF SECKFORD HALL.

BY VINCENT BURROUGH REDSTONE.

Seckford Hall stands off from the highway, and comes suddenly into view as the pedestrian ascends either of two neighbouring hills. It is surrounded by undulating fields, called parks; the many swales and ridges, together with clusters of sombre firs, form a most pleasing prospect. The old Elizabethan dwelling bears unmistakeable signs of the grandeur and vicissitudes of the times of the last three centuries, wherein the statesman and landed-squire have given place to the sturdy yeoman, as tenant.

Upon the exterior walls are fixed the various Coats of Arms quartered with those of Seckford. The most conspicuous of these coats are those representing the arms of the Hunter, Hackford, and Jenney families. Within the interior may be seen the fleur de lis and Tudor Rose, which adorn many of the noble residences erected in the days of Henry VIII. The most interesting portion of the house is the remains of a spacious guest-room, which still retains its galleries, whence musicians viewed the feast, and the massive andirons upon which many a yule log has blazed and hissed. The galleries retain their ancient position through the support of fluted wooden pillars erected in the days of George IV. Such a dwelling as Seckford Hall cannot be without its Tradition and its Ghost. Tradition asserts that his Satanic Majesty during the hours of darkness moved the foundations across the road when the residence was being erected; and a restless "unlaid" spirit supplies the superstitious peasantry with a ghost. It is not known who was the actual founder of the Hall. Either Thomas Seckford, who was the chief restorer of Great Bealings Church, or else his son Thomas, who died at Bealings Magna, in 1575, was its first occupier.

By a curious coincidence these Seckfords were descendants of the Sekfords de Sekford (Sedgeford),* County Norfolk. The Manor of Sekford,† lying between the Parishes of Bealings and Martlesham, existed during the time of the Domesday Book survey. In King Edward the Confessor's days it was held by Aluric, son of Ulviet, under commendation to Harold. After the Conquest it formed part of the domains of Odo, Bishop of Bayeux, and was held by Robert Bigot. The Manor takes its name from the shallow reedy (A.S. secg. a reed) ford where the highway passes over the river Fynn, a tributary of the Deben. Until very recently the bridge which spans the river at this spot was known as Seckford Bridge. The name of the hamlet of Suffolk, like that of the neighbouring County, has passed under various spellings, Seccheford and Sekeford being the names of most frequent occurrence.

A genealogist tracing the pedigree of the Sekfords would start from William de Sekford,‡ who lived before the days of Richard I. “Bartholomew fil. Willi de Sekford dēb. v. m. ut loqula audiatur in Curia int. ēū et Hamel. Bart. de Middleton,” 1189. The descent may be continued by means of an existing charter, § signed in 1286 by William, son of Robert, son of Bartholomew de Sekford, “pro Priore et Conventu Ecc. S. Trinit. de Norwich.” This William de Sekford was a benefactor to the religious house of Norwich. || On the 15th February, 1286, licence was granted for the alienation in mortmain to the Prior and Convent of Holy Trinity, Norwich, of a messuage, together with twenty acres, two roods of land in Thornham, by William son of Robert de Seccheford. This is probably the William Sekford, ¶ placed by an historian of Ipswich amongst the list of Priors of Holy Trinity, and of the Monastery of S. Peter and S. Paul in Ipswich, who resigned in 1289. A recent writer discredits the fact that Sekford was Prior of Holy Trinity, Ipswich,* but a charter signed by William,† Prior of this Monastery in 1286, on behalf of the Ipswich Burgesses, appears to confirm the former statement. The earliest Sekfords held office in the Church.‡ John Sekford was presented to the Church of Combes in the Diocese of Norwich, in the King's gift, 3 June 1308.§ A grant was made by William Shepherd, of Dartford, Kent, to Sir Thomas Sekford, perpetual Curate of that Parish, and three other persons, of a yearly rent of seven gallons of oil for the maintenance of a lamp hanging in the nave of the Parish Church, before the High Cross, the Sunday after the feast of S. Augustine, 41 Edward III. A letter was forwarded by the Pope to John de Seckford,|| donsel (Lt. dominicellus, a secular canon) and Joan his wife of the Diocese of Norwich, 4 Non. March, 1353. This is probably the John de Sekford,¶ Clericus v. comp. de vi^l de firma terra in Sekford and Debenham in Co. Suffolk, q. fuer. in man. Regis occōne junioris aetatis filii et here. de Andrew de Sakeville defunct.* * He was the first of the Norfolk Sekfords who settled in Suffolk.

At this period the Sekfords held high positions as merchants in the cities of London and Norwich. Andrew de Seccheford†† in his will dated 12 Mar. 1348, desired to be buried in S. Mary's Chapel in the Church of S. Vedast, and bequeathed to Henry, son of Henry Seccheford, Alderman of Aldersgate Ward, his brewery houses and rents in S. Martin le Quern. A Thomas de Seccheford‡‡ was burgess of Lynn, March, 1309. The greater portion of the land in Sekford, Co. Norfolk, had been granted to the Priory of Norwich, but this fact did not prevent Henry Sekford and William Sekford,§§ brothers, from enclosing two sheep-folds in that Manor. These the inhabitants pulled down, asserting that the Prior alone possessed the right to erect sheep-folds, but the Sekfords asserted that the right had always been theirs. The original Seckford * Coat of Arms was "Ermine, an escallop in fess gules," and was in the Austin Friar's Church, Norwich, for a George Seckford. The Crest was a Cock. The escallop denoting the performance of a pilgrimage to the Holy Land was subsequently changed for the more religious emblem of three escallops, which marked the arms borne by the Seckfords of West Harling and Bealings. When the Sekfords no longer held office in the Church the Knightly squires changed their crest, the Cock of S. Peter, for the Sportsman's dog, the Talbot. A Robert Seccheford, † Armiger, accompanied the King of Castile to Spain in 1386.

In 1335 the Priest, Sir John Sekford, obtained the right of free warren in Woodbridge, previously held by Bartholomew Ellingham, and Gilbert de Pecche.

The Manor of Bealings Magna ‡ formed part of the lands of Robert Todenham, who also held possession of the Advowson of Bealings Church. § The Manor of Sekford had descended from the Bigods to Mary, Countess of Norfolk, wife of Thomas de Brotherton, relict of Radulphus de Cobham. The former manor became the property of the Sekfords about 1370—1400. Great Bealings Hall stood in a field adjacent to the Parish Church, the advowson of which was held by Sir George Sekford in 1450. The Sekfords were styled Sekfords of Bealings Magna until the year 1553. Subsequently in documents referring to the transfer of lands in the neighbourhood, Charles Sekford, heir and grandson of Thomas Sekford who died 1575, is called Sekford of Sekford Hall; his uncle John held the title of John Sekford of Bealings Manor. It is probable, then, that the estate of Sekford Manor passed into the hands of the family at the time of the erection of Sekford Hall (1553—1575).

The Sekfords were merchants as well as priests and knights. On 26 February 1440, || licence was granted to John Seccheford and John Candeler, both of Bealings, to export corn and other victuals to Iceland for the use of the Bishop of Schalhette, and confessor of the King of Denmark. In 1575 * the customer of Milford Haven complained to Cecil, Lord Burghley, of the frauds committed by Thomas Sekford in the shipment of corn and malt, and in the smuggling of hops. The crew of one of his vessels were apprehended, 1583, for the spoil committed upon the ship of Herman Van Oldinshed, merchant, of Lubeck. Henry Sekford† petitioned the Queen's Council for payment for supplies furnished to the Venetian argosy brought into Plymouth, 1590; and for recompense for the attendance of his ship upon the said argosy. It is probable that his prayer was not heard, for in 1592 he was mulcted in a heavy fine of £12,000 for an attack made by the crew of his ship upon the Venetian merchantman, "Uggera Salvagnia."‡ Henry Seckford§ had incurred heavy debts in connection with the performance of his office as Keeper of the Priory Purse, and in attending Elizabeth upon her royal progresses. Clement Draper, of Woodbridge, complained to Her Majesty that Sekford "borrowed ready-money of him, and pretended by his service to be privileged to the use of poor men's goods at his pleasure, and to pay when he willed or not at all." The Queen had not paid Sekford for provisions supplied by him to the army in Ireland.|| In 1598 a warrant was issued to strike tallies on the customers of the port of London for 980 crowns for Henry Sekford and others as the Queen's reward towards their building four ships. Sekford was re-appointed to his office of Keeper or Groom of the Privy Purse, upon the accession of James I.; and also received the gratuities arising from the position of Master of Tents and Pavilion. He was Knighted at Charterhouse, 11 May, 1603.

the Seckford Charity, Woodbridge, was educated at Gonville and Caius Coll., Cambridge. He entered Gray's Inn * as a Student, in 1540; his name in the register stands next to that of Cecil, Lord Burghley. He became barrister 1542, ancient 1547, and Lent reader 1556. He was sworn one of the Masters of Request in Ordinary, 9 December, 1558.† In 1559 the Burgesses of Ipswich elected him to represent them in Parliament, an honour again conferred upon him in 1572, the year following that upon which he was made Knight of the Shire for the County of Suffolk. He received the grant of lands held by the Manor of the Priory of Woodbridge for the sum of nearly eight hundred pounds paid into the Treasury, and likewise purchased lands at Felixstow. He held at his death the Manor of Over-Hall, Dedham, which was in pre-Reformation days the property of Campsey Ashe Priory.‡ About this time he built a noble mansion at the end of S. James' Walk, Clerkenwell, § which he named Woodbridge Hall, and wherein he detained as prisoner his cousin, Lady Margaret Clifford. He erected also the Great House, or Seckford House, which is frequently alluded to in the Churchwardens' accounts of S. Matthew's, Ipswich. At his death in 1587, it descended to Charles, son of Francis Seckford, who, being the next heir at the death of Thomas Seckford, his grandfather, then held the Manors of Seckford Hall and of Great Bealings. Charles Seckford sat for Aldeburgh in the Parliament of 1572, his grandfather sat for Orford during the reign of Queen Mary. Charles Seckford married Mary Steyning, || daughter of Frances, Countess of Norfolk, widow of the Earl of Surrey, who was beheaded the 21 January, 1547.

An extract from the Manor Rolls of Woodbridge late Priory illustrates the remark of a recent historian, ¶ that "even the first well meant efforts of Corporations to shut pigs out of their streets, and banish wandering dogs, by levying fines from any inhabitant who had an 'irrational animal going about' in the churchyard or the market doubtless added to the dangers of the pestilence by removing the only scavenger known to the early Borough." Sir Humphrey Seckford, Knt.* and twenty other tenants permitted their pigs to go at large in the Churchyard, market, and street, to the hurt of their neighbours, and the Lord of the Manor. They were warned no longer to permit this nuisance under penalty by whatever pig is bought at large in these place, twopence.

Litigation appears to have been the cause of the downfall of the Seckford family.† Mary Seckford, who came to the estate of her husband in 1592, entered upon a suit to compel Robert Fisher to give an account of all rents and fines accruing from the Manors of Great Bealings and Seckford Hall. Thomas Seckford,‡ who was Knighted at Newmarket, the 5th March, 1607, became possessor of the entire Seckford estates at his mother's death in 1596. They devolved upon his son Thomas, who at the time of his father's death, in 1610, was only two years of age. He died whilst a student at Trinity College, Cambridge, 1624, and his uncle Henry erected a monument to his memory in the Chapel of that College. An oil painting of this youth hangs upon the walls of the Seckford Lending Library, Woodbridge. There are also portraits of his great, great grandfather, Thomas, and of his cousin, Dorothy Seckford, to be seen in the Library. His sister Mary§ married Sir Antony Cage, of Ipswich, who disputed the legitimacy of Henry Seckford, of Clerkenwell; heavy law expenses were incurred by all parties to the suit which was decided in favour of Henry Seckford. Cage sold Seckford House, Ipswich, to Sir Robert Hitcham, of Framlingham, 1631, whither the true portrait of the Woodbridge benefactor was conveyed. The inhabitants of Woodbridge sold town property to defend their cause, and the inmates of the almshouses forwarded a petition to Sir Harbottle Grimston, Master of the Rolls, stating that "on some pretence, or title unto us unknown, there is some obstruction in the receiving of the rents appointed for the payment of our pensions." The dispute rose so high that "John Warren, Churchwarden, was arrested in the town's cause," for which annoyance he received remuneration to the amount of two shillings.

Dorothy Seckford, wife of Henry Seckford, became owner of the estates upon her husband's death in 1638.

In 1650,* "one Gibbon laid claim to the Clerkenwell estates as John Seckford, and got possession of the house." He received the support of Lady Bedingfield, whose husband, an ardent Royalist, had been committed to the Tower. A force of military was needed to eject "the claimant" from "Seckford's Seat." The claim was renewed by Gibbon's wife after the Restoration, who by gift entitled the King to the house and garden, 25 May, 1669. The Woodbridge townsfolk would not yield up their claim, and they readily paid "Mrs. Aldis ten shillings for healing old Stewart's wife of the hurt that Seckford's man gave her."

With Dorothy Seckford the name and family died out 1672. Descendants were left, who proved their connection with this ancient house by the adoption of the name, as Seckford Cage, Seckford Gosnold, Seckford Purpet, Seckford Drury, but even this mark is now swept away, and there remain only the noble Hall, and the still more noble Charity to make the name of Seckford a lasting one in the County of Suffolk.

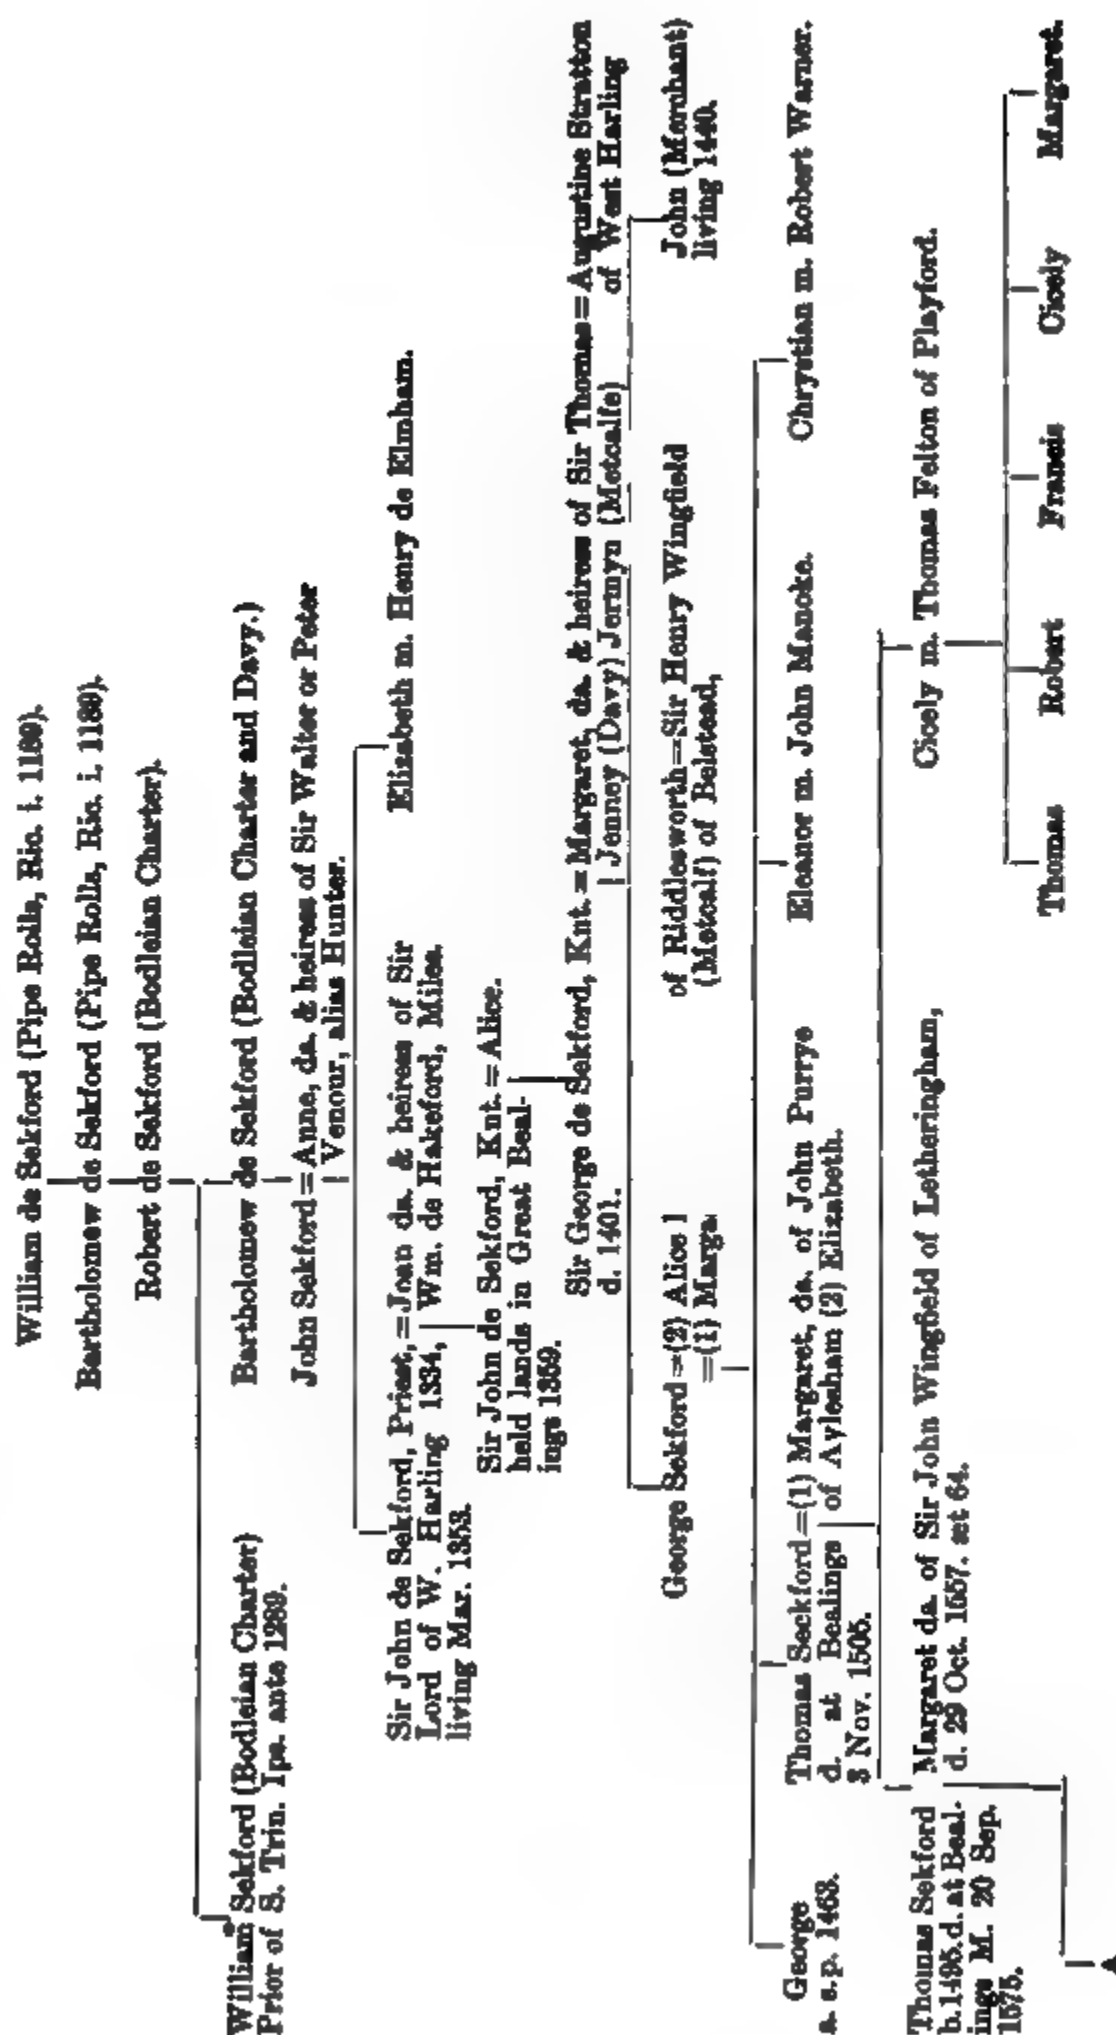

Seckford Hall † in the days of the Commonwealth was occupied by Captain Robert Kirby, a staunch Cromwellian, and relative of the Seckfords. It was sold by Seckford Cage to Samuel Atkinson, Esq., of Croydon, in Surrey, and in 1844 was the property of James Morrison, Esq., M.P., by purchase.‡ It is now owned by Captain E. G. Pretyman, M.P.

PEDIGREE OF THE SEKFORDS OF SEKFORD HALL.

LAVENHAM CHURCH TOWER.

BY HENRY C. MALDEN, M.A.

Date of Erection proved by wills in the Courts of Canterbury and Bury S. Edmunds.

Rich as Suffolk is in its Churches, few, if any, of the Church Towers can compete with that of Lavenham in grandeur. Rising to a height of 141 feet on walls seven feet in thickness at the base, it is in as good condition as when first built; the lower part is faced with split black flints only, most of which are very small; as the work advanced, however, the builders were not quite so particular as to the materials used.

Weever tells us that Thomas Spring, in conjunction with John de Vere, Earl of Oxford, built the greater part of the steeple, but the following extracts from various wills show that this is not strictly accurate. John de Vere died in 1513, leaving legacies to numerous Suffolk Churches, but nothing, apparently, to Lavenham, probably for the very good reason that he had just completed the building of the body of the Church. Still, at the time of his death, the tower was only half completed, as we shall presently see.

Previously to the year 1486, only small legacies to the "reparation" of the then edifice are found, the most important being one by Thomas Spring, in whose will, dated 16 June, 1440, preserved at Bury S. Edmunds, vol. ii., fol. 19, we read "Lego summo altari ecclê pro oblatis oblitis £10. Lego fabrico p'dict ecclie c sh." But in 1486, Thomas, the eldest son of the aforesaid Thomas Spring, died, and by his will left 300 marks, i.e. £200, "ad edificationem Campanilam in stepyl ecclesie." The foundations were therefore laid about the year 1486. How long the work ceased for want of funds is uncertain, but that it did so is clear from the will of Robert Sexten, dated 1514, and P.C.C. in the year 1517, in which he leaves £40 towards the building of the steeple on condition that they sett thereupon within the space of two years after his death. This was done and a large legacy in 1523 allowed the work to be finished shortly afterwards.

A careful survey of the tower shows that the work stopped just half-way up. Coarser materials were used, stone being freely mixed with flint; and there are no finials in the ornamentation of the buttresses, as in the lower half of the tower. Grand as is the tower there is no doubt that to this day the original design has never been carried out. Local tradition says the architect fell from the top, and his death stopped the work. Be the cause what it may, a visit to the summit shows that the work is incomplete; the parapet is unfinished, and the winding steps, by which the ascent is made, have been carried up some five or six feet higher than at present necessary, and come to an abrupt ending close to the flat roof of what doubtless was intended to be one of four lofty turrets, none of which were built.

The following extracts from wills proved in the Court of Canterbury show that the tower was nearly forty years in building. I have included a few legacies to the rebuilding of the Church, two of which are taken from wills proved at Bury S. Edmunds.

1487 Aleyn Sexten left "£40 to makying of the Stepyll." P.C.C. 7 Milles.

P.C.C. 24 Milles.

1492 John Fuller "£1 to the reparacion of the Church."
P.C.C. 21 Dogett.

1493 James Spring (who was killed in a fight between Lavenham and Brent Eleigh) "to makying of the Steepul £40." P.C.C. 4 Vox.

- 1494 Rose Grome, widow "to the makyng of A Arche in the Church £20." Bury S. Edmund^{da}. Vol v., fo. 92.
- 1502 Simon Branch "to the new buyldyng of the Church 20/-." Bury St. Edmund^{da}. Vol. v., fo. 138.
- 1502 Elizabeth Branch, widow "towards the repairs of the Church 100 marks, as I promised my Lord of Oxenford; of which sum I have already paid £10." p.c.c. 11 Blamyr.
- 1502 Joan Sexten, widow "to the new bilding of the Church £10." p.c.c. 20 Blamyr.
- 1502 John Newton "to the Church £5." p.c.c. 20 Blamyr.
- 1504 John Risby "to the making and reparacion of the Church 40/-." p.c.c. 20 Holgrave. There are several wills during the next twelve years, but no bequests to the steeple till.
- 1517 Robert Sexten who bequeathed "to the byldyng of the Stepul, if they will set thereupon within the space of two years after my deth, £40." p.c.c. 6 Aylofffe.
- 1517 Edmund Clogge "£30 to the Church, on such things as are most necessary." p.c.c. 1 Aylofffe.
- 1520 Agnes Sexton "to be bestowed upon the bilding of the Stepyl, £40." p.c.c. 21 Aylofffe.
- 1523 Thomas Spring "to the fynishing of the Stepull £200." p.c.c. 11 Bodfield.

There are no later bequests.

From these extracts it appears that the bequests towards the erection of this noble tower amounted to £580; a very large sum for those days, such as would go far towards the total cost.

[REDACTED]

THE GREY-FRIARS MONASTERY, IPSWICH.

By B. P. GRIMSEY, F.R. HIST. SOCIETY.

The Religious fraternity, some of whom possessed and occupied the property, the site of which, in relation to the position of existing roads, streets, and buildings, is shown upon the accompanying plan, and purports to be described by this paper, was founded—as the Friars Minors—by Saint Francis, who was born in 1182, at Assisi, in Italy, and whose rules for such were approved by Pope Innocent III., in 1210, revised in the Lateran Council of 1215, and confirmed by Pope Honorius III., in 1224, in which year—being two years before the death of their Founder and Patron, and the vii. year of King Henry III.—some nine of them came to England with Letters Recommendatory; five of whom settled at Canterbury, where they established the first Franciscan Convent in England, and the other four proceeded to London, where they succeeded, with assistance from the wealthy Citizens thereof, in founding a like institution, on or near the site of what has for very many years been so well known there as Christ's Hospital. Their designation—Friars Minors, was intended to indicate deep humility, “Sum Minor omnibus beneficiis tuis,” and the appellation—Grey Friars—the distinctive color—undyed white grey—of the habit they adopted.

This Monastery, as shown by Ogilby's Map of Ipswich (1674), occupied the space of ground in the Parish of S. Nicholas in that Borough, extending from the north-west corner of Friars Road—Mr. Arthur Beard's shop—southward in a quasi straight line to a point a few yards south of the south-west corner of Wolsey Street, and thence westward to the fresh-water river, the Gipping, which then flowed by there in all its primitive beauty, freshness, and clearness, and from the before-mentioned north-west corner of Friars Road westward to a point on the same river nigh to a bridge crossing such, which was in 1674 and until its destruction in 1879, or early in 1880, known as the Friars Bridge. The black lines on the accompanying plan indicate those on Ogilby's map, and the red ones those on the Ordnance Survey map of the same locality, so that it is apparent all Wolsey Street, and about half Little Wolsey Street, all the streets, houses, and gardens northward of Wolsey Street, and between Friars Road and the Sewer now formed in the bed and place of the said river, and up to the said northern boundary of the premises, are on the site thereof.

The building at the south-east end doubtless belonged to the Monastery, being shown on Ogilby's map, though omitted to be so indicated, and from its position it is likely to have been the Hospital and House of Reception for Indigent Wayfarers.

In the garden of the house in Friars Road (at the junction with Priory Street), belonging to, and in the occupation of Mr. Frederick Messent, are the only known remains of the Monastery Buildings, such consist of two window arches, and a part of the wall in which they were built.

In the Vestry room of the Church of S. Nicholas on the opposite side of Friars Road is a Map executed in 1827, on which is a drawing representing these window arches and three others adjoining, and there are existing anastatic copies of an etching by Henry Davy, executed in 1839, giving the same five arches which originally were formed in the Monastery Building, marked C upon the accompanying plan, and the Ordnance Survey map evidences that the erection of the north wall in Mr. Messent's garden divided the two southernmost of the five arches from the others, and the consequent position of the others—were they still standing—would be in Priory Street; the other Monastery Buildings were probably long previously destroyed.

The measurements of the several buildings existing in 1674, and marked A B C D and E, are stated on the plan ; the northern boundary of the site extending 430 feet, and the southern 213 feet, the frontage length upon Friars Road and onward to the corner of the other building shown thereon was 627 feet ; the houses 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th in Portman Street from Princes Street appear to occupy part of the site upon which the building marked A stood. The houses southward of the 5th house in Portman Street, counting from Priory Street end, and to the 4th house from the east side of Portman Street, appear to occupy the site upon which the building marked B stood. The position of the building C has been stated, and it will be seen by the plan that but very little of it extended to the site of houses on the north-west side of Priory Street. The position of the buildings marked D and E cannot be demonstrated better than they are shown on the plan. The building referred to as situate at the south-east end of the Monastery grounds measured 117 feet on the north-east front, 111 feet on the north-west side, and 40 feet at the south-west end.

A little more southward than mid-way in Friars Road on the west side exists an old Wall, the property of Mr. Edgar Jermyn Brown, apparently either part of the wall of the Friars Orchard, or containing some of the materials of which such wall was probably built.

In the pictorial representations of parts of the Town on the Sepulchral Memorial of William Stuart, who died in 1599, which is in the Church of S. Mary-at-the-Tower, there is one accredited as showing part of these Monastery Buildings, so accepting it, and granting the artist due license, we may gather therefrom and the map before us that the building marked A is that intended to be depicted. The views given are very small, but present points clearly distinctive. In Wodderspoon's "Memorials of Ipswich" (1850), p. 380 : there is an engraving—reduced in size—from a drawing and etching by Walter Hargreen, representing the whole tablet and a late parishioner of S. Nicholas—Mrs. Cotton—made an enlarged and beautifully neat drawing from the original of the view, considered to represent this Monastery building and Church of S. Nicholas adjacent, which doubtless is still in the possession of her family.

This Friary is considered to have been founded under the patronage of, and with assistance primarily from Sir Robert Tibetot (whose name is sometimes written Tiptoft, sometimes Tiptoth, sometimes Typtoft), who was of "an antient family first seated at Bramford in Bosmere Hundred" in Suffolk, and nigh unto Ipswich, and who died seized of the Lordship and Manor of Nettlestead in the xxvi. year of King Edward I. (1298); and if this be so, then it must have been founded less than lxxv. years after the first members of the order came into England, and most probably was founded before the Patron mentioned entered upon the last year of his mortal existence. Wodderspoon, in his "Memorials," ante p. 58, fixes the date as 1290. In only very fragmentary statements is there known to be preserved any mention respecting these local Friars themselves, but their local influence was certainly great, for we read in the Roll "De recognicionibus ac de Testamentis" xii. Edward II. "Before the Bailiffs, in the presence of a Coroner, and certain men in the Court of Gippeswic, and in full Court, Master John Strikes and Geoffery the Cook of Gippeswyc came and said they were the Executors of the Testament of Robert de Fornham, and showed the Testament of the deceased not signed, nor proven before the Ordinary, and produced not witnesses to prove the same in accordance with the law and custom of the town, but two Friars Minors to testify to the aforesaid Will, namely Friar Robert de Swanton, and Friar John de Dyngton, who on the peril of their souls declared and testified that they were present, and hearing where the aforesaid Robert, being of good memory made his said testament (etc.), and for fulfilling and executing all things in the said testament, named and ordained the aforesaid Masters John Strikes and Geoffery, his executors. Whereupon free administration was granted for doing in accordance with the contents of the testament."

The Chapter House Papers, Vol. A, 3, 11, formerly in the Rolls Office and now at the Record Office, contain "An inventory of the Grey Friars in Gipswch made the vii. day of Apreyle in the xxix. yere (1537-8) of King Henry VIII. by the King's Visitor, Richard, Suffragan of Canterbury," a copy of which can be read in Part III. of the Suffolk Archæological Association's original papers (1848) page 14. In Weever's Account of the Foundation and Fall of Religious Houses (1631)—containing however no statement as to the foundation or suppression of this Monastery—is given a long list of notable persons buried therein, but except as to "The Founder, and Dame Una his wife" with which the list begins, and their descendants named therein and their wives, any attempted historical statement would seem profitless. The Founder here referred to is Sir Robert Tibetot, before mentioned (page 376), he died in 1298, but the date of Dame Una's death is undiscoverable. "Payen de Tibetot," was their son, he became heir to his father—the founder—when ten years of age, and was at the Tournament in the Town of Dunstable in the 2nd year of King Edward II. (1308), and killed at the Battle of Striveling, in the 7th year of the same King's reign (1314): "Sir John Tibetot," was his son and grandson of Sir Robert the founder and married Margaret one of the daughters and co-heiresses of Sir Bartholomew Badelysmer (or Badlesmere), who died in the xli. year of the reign of King Edward III. (1368). "Sir Robert Tibetot," was their son, he married Margaret, daughter of William Deincourt, and died on the 13th of April, 1372, seized, as was also his father before him, of the Lordship and Manor of Nettlestead, in the County of Suffolk, "Elizabeth Lady De'Spencer," was the youngest of their three daughters, his co-heiresses, who "wedded to Sir Philip le De'Spencer," the younger. In the ix. year of King Richard III. (1386), partition was made between the said three daughters of their father's lands, and though no record of the death of Lady Elizabeth is discoverable, it is apparent Sir Philip survived and died in the ii. year of King Henry VI. (1423), leaving an only child, Margery, who became first the wife of John Lord Roos, of Hamlake, and afterwards of Sir Roger Wentworth, of Nettlestead aforesaid, and was buried in the Monastery in the xviii. year of King Edward IV. (1479).

The Sir Robert Curson (called Lord Curson) referred to in the Suff. Arch. proceedings, Vol. vii., pp. 255 and 381, and Vol. ix., p. 271, was also buried in this Monastery, and probably his wife also, the Inventory mentioned ante page 377, contains the items "a feyr herse cloths yt lay upon Lord Cursons herse, and ij feyer silke pelowys yt was Lady Cursons."

The suppression of the Monasteries generally, by King Henry the VIII., began about the year 1535, but the date of this one in particular cannot be fixed. It would have been interesting, to trace the transmission of its ownership from the Holy Friars to speculative builders, but no materials are to hand.

NOTE.

The value of this Index to archæologists is now recognised. Every effort is made to keep its contents up to date and continuous, but it is obvious that the difficulties are great unless the assistance of the societies is obtained. If for any reason the papers of a society are not indexed in the year to which they properly belong the plan is to include them in the following year; and whenever the papers of societies are brought into the Index for the first time they are then indexed from the year 1891.

By this means it will be seen that the year 1891 is treated as the commencing year for the Index and that all transactions published in and since that year will find their place in the series.

To make this work complete an index of the transactions from the beginning of archæological societies down to the year 1890 needs to be published. This Index is already completed in MS. form and it will be printed as soon as a sufficient number of subscribers to cover the cost is obtained. Particulars will be forwarded by the Honorary Secretary to anyone interested in this work.

Societies will greatly oblige by communicating any omissions or suggestions to

THE EDITOR OF THE ARCHÆOLOGICAL INDEX,
Society of Antiquaries,
Burlington House, London, W.

Single copies of the yearly Index may be obtained. Many of the societies in union with the Society of Antiquaries take a sufficient number of copies to issue with their transactions to each of their members. The more this plan is extended the less will be the cost of the Index to each society. For particulars of this and other works now being carried on by the societies in union application should be made to the Honorary Secretary,
